New Storm Brings Snow To Mt. Tam

Chilling Winds, Rain Felt In Other Areas

A wild new storm slammed into the Bay Area today, lashing Marin with heavy winds, rain and even snow. (See two more photos, page 32.)

More than an inch of snow fell on Mount Tamalpais in less than an hour this morning, forcing closure of Ridgecrest Road from the Pan Toll ranger station to the top of the mountain.

"It's coming down in sheets, definitely a blizzard," reported Ranger Jerry Hayes. "Right now, out the window I can see snowflakes as big as half dollars."

The gate to the Mill Valley Air Force Station atop Mount Tam was also closed by the snow and personnel warned not to come to work today unless they had snow tires or chains, he said.

A snow plow and grader were working to clear the road, but Hayes said the snow was coming down too fast for them to make much headway.

Travelers who found Ridgecrest closed didn't seem at all perturbed, according to the ranger. "They're sure having fun down in the Pan Toll parking lot," he said. "They've got toboggans, snowballs, everything."

The nasty weather was expected to continue through tonight, with occasional rain and snow predicted as low as the 500-foot level.

Friday will be clear and cold, the weatherman said, with high temperatures in the upper 30s and low 40s, dropping to the 20s during the night.

Gusty winds were expected to continue with speeds up to 30 miles an hour, stronger in some areas of the county.

Pleting rain lashed much of Marin and Southern Sonoma last night and this morning, bringing up to .83 of an inch to Woodacre in the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today.

Other rainfall reported around the two counties: Fairfax, .30; Novato, .25; Petaluma, .36; San Anselmo, .22; Novato, .25; Belvedere, .10; Sausalito, .05; Mill Valley, .24, and Tamalpais Valley, .22.

San Rafael had .85 of an inch of rain in the 24 hours ending at 11 a.m. today and reported a low of 25 degrees during the night.

Elsewhere around the state, travelers advisories warned of hazardous driving conditions in the San Frnacisco and Monterey Bay areas because of snow "near sea levels" at times. Driving also was difficult in the Sierra Nevada and northwestern California as snow fell in Ukiah and Red Bluff early today.

DAD THREATENS LEAP

'The Baby Or The Bridge' Saves An Unborn Child

By PAT ANGLE

When Robert Espinoza's girlfriend told him she was going to have his child, the 21-year-old Vietnam veteran was delighted and wanted to get married.

But the girl didn't share his joy and decided to have an abortion. Espinoza's pleas could not make her change her mind.

So the Concord youth climbed to the top of the north tower of the Golden Gate Bridge this morning and threatened to hurl himself off the 746-foot structure unless his girl promised to have the baby.

It took three long, wet hours of pleading by California Highway Patrolmen and bridge workers and a call from his girl to persuade him not to jump.

The drama began about 1:20 a.m. when California Highway Patrol officer Richard E. Simmons and his partner noticed a car parked on the span. When he stopped to investigate, Espinoza ran to the tower and used its large cable to climb to the top.

His roommate, Dennis M. Thompson, told officers Espinoza had threatened to jump from the bridge and said he had come along in the hope he could talk his friend out of killing himself.

More highway patrol officers and some bridge workers arrived and began the task of coaxing Espinoza down. Sgt. James D. Dukes of the patrol and ironworkers Eugene Peil and Mstislv (Mitch) Chestohin took the elevator to the top of the tower to talk to him.

Dukes said that once Espinoza saw his uniform, the young man broke down in tears and hugged the CHP officer, but still resisted rescue.

About 2:30 p.m., while the drama continued, it began to rain and snow lightly. Meanwhile, a 44-foot Coast Guard motor lifeboat circled the base of the tower, using its floodlights to illuminate the man.

Plans For Big Development On San Quentin Peninsula Outlined

By BILL ROBERTS

Cluster housing, an office center, specialty shops, restaurants, a 300-room lodge, a 14-court tennis complex and a sunken exhibition amphitheater have been proposed for 105 acres on San Quentin Peninsula.

Lincoln Property Co. of Menlo Park today released the plan and indicated it will be submitted to the Larkspur Planning Commission later this month.

The Hutchinson Quarry and Remillard lands were purchased by Lincoln last week for $5 million from T.I. Properties of Los Angeles, land investor which held the land since 1970.

The number of housing units for the development has not been determined by Lincoln. Apartments, condominiums and townhouses will be built to fit the population objectives of the Larkspur General Plan, according to Norman T. Gilroy of Sausalito, planning consultant on the project.

A 7,500-seat amphitheater would be built on the northern ridge of the property in a bowl created by the quarry operations.

The lodge would be built against the hillside near the middle of the development.

Specialty shops, movie theater and restaurants would be built near the flat area of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to serve residents of the development and patrons of the proposed Larkspur Ferry Terminal.

A market, drug store, service station and bank would be included in the development to make it nearly "self-contained."

A strip is earmarked as an "office park" in the development for administrative and professional offices.

The plan also includes park and open space areas to fit the general plan's proposed uses for the area. A park would be located near the center of the project with the hilltop ridge behind the development preserved in open space.

Bicycle and hiking trails are envisioned within the project and would connect with city and county trails serving Ross Valley and Southern Marin.

Several problems in the proposed site are noted by Lincoln including traffic and water.

The proposal says some water is available through the water system at the quarry operation but more sources are needed. Traffic problems are to be eased with the widening of Sir Francis Drake to four lanes east of Highway 101 through an assessment district started by the city.

No estimate of when the project will be completed is given, according to John J. Ford III, attorney for Lincoln, because a date for starting work is contingent upon city approval.

Complete title transfer to Lincoln is based on completion of quarrying work, presently under lease to Basalt Co. of Napa. Ford said quarrying may continue for as long as three years but phases of the development could be begun before the quarrying is completed.

Architectual and planning work on the project was done for Lincoln by Piero Patri of Sausalito.

Question Of Illegal Voters In Sausalito

As many as 154 houseboat dwellers just outside Sausalito may be incorrectly registered as city residents and thus in a position to vote illegally in the March 5 election, Sausalito City Clerk Miriam Ansell told the city council last night. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 23.)

Mrs. Ansell blamed most of the invalid registrations on the computer system in the county elections office. "One-hundred and fifty-four is too many," she said. "One is too many."

At her request, the council agreed to ask the board of supervisors next week to have the county elections office declare all the questionable registrations invalid.

"Normally I don't pay much attention to the registration lists we get from the county," Mrs. Ansell said. "But someone came in and tried to register under what I thought was a phoney address in Marinship. I looked at the lists and saw pages and pages of names in Gates Three, Four and Five which I thought were improperly registered."

She said that of 154 questionable registrations 118 are on Gate Five Road. Occupants of

900 Show Interest In Car Pooling

The Marin Sierra Club's campaign to form new car pools attracted some 900 commuters through last week, reported the chairman of the unit, Gilbert M. Deane.

Club volunteers working last Friday and Saturday came up with 200 recommended car pools for 500 of the registrants, all of which have been mailed instructions on how to form the recommended pools. Up to 90 per cent of the remaining commuters will be matched into pools tomorrow and Saturday, Deane said.

The project to register commuters for pools is continuing weekdays from 6 to 10 p.m. by volunteers manning a telephone at 454-4121. It also is manned weekends from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

About half of the 900 registrations came over the telephone and from forms distributed by businesses, and half from the 20,000 forms distributed to motorists by Golden Gate Bridge toll officers. About 15 registrations a day continue to come in.

Interested commuters also can write the club at Post Office Box 6086, San Rafael 94903, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Cala Family Member Is Slain In Store

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A member of the Cala Foods chain family was shot to death last evening as he wrestled with a would-be robber in one of the firm's San Francisco stores.

Anthony Peter Cala, 42, died instantly after being shot in the head and in the chest, police said today.

The violence occurred about 5 p.m. as "quite a few customers" at the checkstands in the Sunset District market looked on.

Police said a slightly built young man with shoulder-length blond hair walked up to Cala, pulled a gun and demanded money from the store's safe in the front of the store.

As Cala ordered an employee to fill a paper bag with cash from the safe, a struggle ensued between the store manager and the robber, police said. Several shots were fired, two striking Cala.

The would-be robber then fled to a waiting car and escaped police said. They described the car as a General Motors model made in the early 1960s. A witness said the car bore a California license beginning with the numbers 75.

None of the stunned bystanders attempted to chase the murderer, police said. Cala was pronounced dead at the scene of the shooting.

Cala had been manager of the store for about a year. It is one of a chain of 19 markets, six of which are in Marin County.

A spokesman for the family said it had not yet been determined whether to close the markets tomorrow, the day of Cala's funeral.

Cala's survivors include eight brothers, one of whom, Samuel Cala, lives in Kentfield. He is also survived by his wife, Joan, of the family home in Daly City, two sons, Michael and James, and a daughter Karen, and two sisters.

A funeral Mass will be said tomorrow at noon at Holy Angels Church in Colma. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at Duggan's Serra Mortuary in Daly City.

Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery in Colma.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Warning To Detroit Criminals

DETROIT (UPI) — Coleman A. Young, the first black mayor of Detroit, yesterday said it's time for the criminal element in the Motor City to "hit the road."

Young

"I issue open warning to all dope pushers, all rip-off artists, all muggers," Young said in his inaugural speech. "I don't give a damn if they're black or white, if they wear super-fly suits or blue uniforms with silver badges. it's time to leave Detroit. Hit the road."

Young, who defeated former Police Commissioner John Nichols for the mayoralty by some 16,000 votes last November, said he would restructure the police department to make it "people-oriented."

"What is good for the black people of the city is good for the white people of the city," he said. "The city has too long been polarized. We can no longer afford the luxury of hatred and racist division."

Copper Strike

COPPERTON, Utah (UPI) — A wildcat strike by 200 electrical workers shut down the world's largest open pit copper mine yesterday.

A restraining order against the members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 1081, made the strikers remove their pickets last night, but they were not expected to return to work.

The strikers' main concern was the transfer of employes from one scheduled area to another.

First Day On Job

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first working day of Abe Beame, New York's new mayor, was interrupted yesterday by the report of a stabbed policeman.

He rushed to the hospital to console the wife of the wounded probationary officer who had been attacked by a man who wanted the policeman's gun.

Beame arrived at work before 9 a.m. and had the big mayor's desk moved from a corner, where his predecessor, John V. Lindsay, had kept it, to the center of the room, a spot that he said would make the room seem friendlier.

Israeli Oil Fire

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A stubborn fire with 100-foot-high flames raged through a group of Israeli oil wells in the Gulf of Suez today and Finance Ministry officials said the blaze was costing $240,000 a day in petroleum production.

A ministry spokesman said firefighting experts from the United States have been summoned to combat the flames, which broke out Tuesday in several offshore installations opposte Abu Rodeis in the southern Sinai peninsula.

Raiders Sought

BEIRUT (UPI) — Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat is trying to find an Arab country to try the five Arab commandoes who carried out the Dec. 17 Rome airport massacre, the newspaper Al Anwar said today.

Al Anwar said Arafat was awaiting replies from two unidentified Arab countries to which he sent messages requesting permission for the Palestine Liberation Organization to take the guerrillas for trial by a PLO revolutionary court.

Thirty-two persons died in the attack at Rome airport and the hijack of a Lufthansa Boeing 737 that followed it.

Thai Withdrawal

BANGKOK (UPI) — The United States has quietly begun withdrawing another 3,700 airmen and a squadron of planes from bases in Thailand in the first troop reductions in more than three months, military sources said today.

No fighter planes or bombers were involved in the reduction of forces, which got underway yesterday and will reduce American troop strength here to about 35,000, the sources said.

Rockets Kill Four

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Rebel forces slammed seven 122-mm rockets into the heart of crowded Phnom Penh today, striking a crowded refugee center and a military hospital.

Police reported at least four persons killed 18 wounded. It marked the second consecutive day of guerrilla rocket attacks on the capital.

The attacks came 19 hours after rebel gunners lobbed six 105-mm artillery rounds from a captured American howitzer into a squatters area on the northern fringes of the capital.

Sniper Attacks

BELFAST (UPI) — Snipers in alleys and on rooftops attacked police and army patrols today in a series of raids against security forces in the Northern Ireland capital.

Authorities said there were no injuries in the latest fighting as Protestant extremists began adopting some of the same tactics as the outlawed Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Troops in armored personnel carriers moved from Catholic sections of the capital to Protestant areas today in an attempt to crack down on Protestant raids against security forces.

Cuban Revamp

MIAMI (UPI) — Cuban armed forces minister Raul Castro yesterday said the Cuban bureaucracy may be revamped by the end of 1974 to the method "most suitable" to the nation's needs.

Fidel Castro's brother delivered the annual New Year's address to cheering Cubans and visiting dignitaries in Havana, marking the 15th anniversary of the overthrow of the government of the late Cuban dictator Fulgenico Batista.

Fidel has been making a series of speeches in other Cuban provinces in recent days, and his brother has often delivered major addresses in the past, particularly on military and economic matters.

Castro said attempts would be made to have more popular participation "in the different levels" of government.

Bomb Alert Ordered Throughout Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Police today ordered a bomb alert throughout Britain after two Irish Republican Army (IRA) time bombs exploded in the heart of Birmingham.

"If the attacks follow previous patterns, we can expect bombs in other areas," a police spokesman said.

Neither of the bombs caused casualties, but one wrecked a store inside Birmingham's New Street shopping center. The second bomb exploded harmlessly against a warehouse 100 yards from police headquarters in the Midlands industrial center.

The bombs were the first outside London in the two-weekold IRA terror campaign that has injured 81 persons in 25 explosions but caused no deaths.

Police today discounted a newspaper report from Beirut that the Palestinian guerrilla movement has agreed to cooperate with the IRA in the bomb campaign, a spokesman said.

Disclosure Law Causes Resignations In Exeter

EXETER (UPI) — The Exeter City Council, devastated by the conflict of interest bill, picked up one new member yesterday and may be up to full strength again after Jan. 8.

The two members remaining after the mayor and two councilmen quit rather than comply with disclosures mandated by the conflict of interest bill, met yesterday to appoint Raymond Sanchez to fill one of the vacated posts.

Remaining councilman John Goode was named mayor and the second councilman who stayed on, Charles Hitt, was named vice mayor.

They set Jan. 8 to apoint two more members as well as a planning commission chairman and a planning commissioner who resigned earlier for other reasons.

Former mayor John Mangini and councilmen Warner Walker and Bill Maaske objected to requirements of income disclosure imposed on officeholders by the new conflict of interest bill and resigned prior to its going into effect Jan. 2.

War On Rust

SYDNEY (UPI) — Australian home owners and industrialists are spending $650 million a year combatting rust, a research report says. The total bill for corroded water heaters in 1972 was $24.8 million and rust-damaged car mufflers are costing motorists $22.6 million a year.

Israeli Pullback Is Said In Works

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The well-informed Israeli newspaper Ma'ariv said today Israel had agreed to a unilateral withdrawal from the Suez Canal as a means of breaking the continuing deadlock in the Geneva military withdrawal talks and permit opening of the canal.

Ma'ariv said Defense Minister Moshe Dayan may present the plan to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger when they meet tomorrow in Washington. There were reports from Geneva yesterday that the Israeli and Egyptian negotiators had reached "an important stage," and U.S. administration officials said agreement was expected by the end of the month.

The plan was said to be similar to a partial settlement proposal made by Israel in 1971, whereby "Israeli forces will withdraw into the Sinai as far as the Mitla and Giddi passes, Egyptian forces will remain in the positions they now hold on the east bank, while a buffer zone for United Nations forces will be maintained between the Egyptian and Israeli forces."

Ma'ariv said the plan would allow reopening of the canal to international shipping "and it is therefore believed here that the Soviet Union will show interest in the Israeli plan for a separation of forces."

UPI diplomatic correspondent K. C. Thaler reported from London that the United States and the Soviet Union have let it be understood that they intend to remain in control of decisive stages of the Middle East peace talks and this was the reason for the Dayan-Kissinger meetine forthcoming Moscow visit of Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi.

Both Israel and Egypt reported the situation along the Suez Canal had deteriorated in recent days, and Israel said artillery fire from Egyptian and Syrian troops killed three and wounded 10 of its soldiers yesterday, the highest one-day casualty toll since the ceasefire went into effect Oct. 24.

A military spokesman said in a delayed report that the deaths and two of the injuries occurred on the Syrian front yesterday, but announcement was held up until the families of the dead had been notified.

A spokesman for the U.N. Emergency Force in Cairo said Egyptian forces in the Qantara sector of the Sinai front east of the Canal moved forward several hundred yards Tuesday to new positions in violation of the cease-fire, and began laying mines.

The spokesman also reported Israeli forces temporarily disrupted truck supplies to Israeli-encircled Egyptian 3rd army forces on the east bank of the canal in retaliation for an Egyptian shooting incident.

JANUARY Reader's Digest

Legislature To Reconvene Monday; Familiar Issues

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The 1973-74 California legislature reconvenes next Monday for an election-year session saddled with the energy crisis and its rippling economic effects.

Although state revenues may slump due to a predicted financial downturn, Gov. Ronald Reagan will not ask for any new tax hikes during 1974, according to Press Secretary Clyde Walthall.

Important legislation to be considered this year include measures to create a state energy "czar," provide secret elections for farm workers, construct a new Capitol, regulate lobbyists' activities and grant collective bargaining rights to public employees.

This will be Reagan's final year as governor. Half a dozen legislative leaders from both parties are running for statewide office. Incumbent senators and assemblymen also will be campaigning in newly apportioned districts.

Democratic and Republican leaders agree that the top billing in 1974 will go to "energy crisis" legislation.

The forecast economic squeeze triggered by energy shortages also could result in bitter fights over ways to trim the 1974-75 state budget, which Reagan hopes to keep below $10 billion.

For example, the Department of Transportation may find its gasoline tax revenues cut substantially because of gas shortages, resulting in less money for highway construction and vital services such as the Highway Patrol.

Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, and other prominent Democrats have proposed two basic energy bills, one for short-range problems and another to avert future shortages.

The first bill would designate the Reagan administration's secretary of resources as a state energy czar with power to ban outdoor display advertising, ration fuel and take any other immediate steps to east the energy crunch.

The other measure would create a new statewide energy commission, with the task of finding ways to increase energy production and efficiency while curbing demand. Reagan vetoed this type of measure last year.

The future of the 104-year-old state Capitol will kindle another lively controversy.

The current golden-domed structure is being evacuated because it could collapse in a moderate earthquake. Some top Democratic lawmakers want to build a modern new office building, but Republicans prefer to reconstruct and expand the present Capitol. A final decision is expected early this year.

Other major proposals before the legislature would:

Require lobbyists to disclose more details of their financial dealing with lawmakers. The bill by assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Oakland, stalled in the Senate in the final moments of the 1973 session. Legislative leaders predict a compromise bill will pass this year, but note it would be superseded by a broader "political reform" initiative on the June primary ballot.

Grant public employees the right to bartain collectively and to strike if necessary. The bill by Moretti passed the Assembly last year but awaits action by the Senate Public Employment Committee. Reagan vetoed a similar bill last year granting collective bargaining rights to teachers but without the explicit right to strike.

Establish a no-fault automobile insurance system in California. A major no-fault bill backed by the Reagan administration cleared the Assembly last year but is logjammed in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Impose limitations on state taxes. Reagan has not given up his idea of a tax limitation despite defeat of his plans at the polls last year. Democrats also have a plan to reform taxation, but with steps such as closing tax loopholes. The differences between Reagan and Democratic legislators appear to be great, and most observers think it only could be resolved by another tax initiative.

Provide life imprisonment without parole for drug pushers. This bill was proposed late in 1973 and has not been heard by a committee.

Expand protection for news reporters. Various bills were proposed last year to remove the threat of reporters having to divulge confidential sources of information but final action on the measures was delayed untis this.

Rewrite key sections of California's criminal code. Reagan last year unveiled a crime-busting legislative package, but virtually none of it was passed. The Senate Finance Committee defeated the cornerstone bill, which would eliminate the so-called "exclusionary rule" that prevents evidence obtained in illegal police searches from being used in a trial. Reagan hopes to revive it and other crime-fighting measures this year.

Judge Refuses To Halt Work On Highway 5

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge has refused to halt construction work on 17 miles of Interstate 5 between Stockton and Sacramento that border the controversial planned Peripheral Canal.

U.S. District Judge Robert H. Schnacke yesterday declined to stop the highway project which some conservationists contend is the start of the canal.

"We're going to appeal the judge's ruling," said Connie Parrish, spokeswoman for Friends of the Earth.

"We claim a federal environmental impact statement has to be obtained before the excavations can begin.

Playboy Sued Over Puzzles

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two San Francisco Bay area men have filed suit against Playboy Enterprises Inc., accusing the firm of stealing their idea of using the magazine's centerfolds on jigsaw puzzles.

J. William Eral, a Cupertino artist and one of the plaintiffs, said yesterday he suggested the idea to Playboy in 1965. At the request of the company, he said he showed them a prototype of the puzzle.

"My friend Mark Green, the other plaintiff, went back east with the prototype, but later we received a thank you letter from them saying they weren't interested in the idea," said Eral. "We wrote to ask them for the prototype back, but we were informed that they couldn't locate it."

The suit, filed in San Francisco County Superior Court, contends Playboy has been selling playmate jigsaw puzzles for two years.

Green is a Burlingame businessman.

Fraser Seeks Return To Sausalito Council

Sausalito City Councilman Stephen A. Fraser says he is seeking reelection in the March 5 election "to complete and protect the program I ran on four years ago."

Fraser, 34, is among nine candidates seeking two seats, his and that of Councilman Earl F. Dunphy.

"Most important," Fraser said, "is getting an open space program that includes major waterfront parcels, getting autos off Bridgeway during peak periods, opening up the entire waterfront to resident-oriented use and preserving and enhancing Caledonia Street as a residential and local shopping area."

Answering critics who charge he has gone soft on waterfront development, Fraser declared, "No growth is a negative policy. All that will preserve is chain link fences."

He said he favors "a good, low intensity development" in the Marinship area, with the city requiring the developer to provide public access and underground public parking which would relieve Bridgeway of traffic congestion.

Fraser described the Schoonmaker development concept as "excellent," although it should be reduced in scale.

He recommends cutting from the $40 million project one restaurant, 55 hotel units, 10,000 square feet of offices and 20 marina berths, as well as requiring that the developer subsidize the commercial fishing industry and local boat repair facilities.

He said he will campaign on his record and cited a number of accomplishments by the city that were on his instigation: the Caledonia Street zoning ordinance, designed to protect the residential character of the area, and the Marinship guidelines, which place strict limitations on waterfront development.

He said he has advocated waterfront open space and will support the city buying as much waterfront property as possible.

Fraser is the Marin director for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control Board. He is a former professor of urban studies at Sonoma State and San Francisco State Universities and has served as a government consultant on planning and open space.

He holds a doctoral degree in political science and public administration from Johns Hopkins University and a master's degree from the University of Michigan. He currently is working on two novels and is employed as a waiter.

A native of England, he has lived in Sausalito eight years. He and his wife, Judith, and their two children live at 53 Central Avenue.

College Sets A New Fall Opening

College of Marin students will begin classes Aug. 19 next fall semester, nearly a month earlier than usual, and will have a month-long vacation at Christmas, Marin Community College District trustees decided last night.

The school's calendar was changed to facilitate transfer of students to state universities after the fall semester, according to Earlene Jones, district publicist.

In the past, students returned to the college after Christmas to complete the fall semester. Thus, they were not eligible to enter state universities during the winter quarter which begins immediately after the first of the year and had to wait for the spring semester to begin near Easter.

Ending the fall semester before Christmas allows students to apply to other schools for the winter quarter.

The change will not increase costs to the college because the same number of operating days are required of college facilities under either calendar, according to Berkeley Johnson, dean of instruction.

Trustees approved the calendar change for a one-year trial.

The Marin Community College District board also:

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Edward F. Douglas as an instructor of photography at College of Marin.

FUNDS — Authorized Supt. John A. Grasham to apply for matching state funds for 1975-76 fiscal year for seven projects at Indian Valley Colleges and a corporation yard at the College of Marin.

SATURDAY — Authorized hiring a part-time administrative assistant for the district's new Saturday classes at the College of Marin; to be hired before classes begin Feb. 4 at an estimated cost of $700.40.

SANITARY — Authorized application to Novato Sanitary District for sanitary services to Indian Valley Colleges.

GRANT — Authorized application by Indian Valley Colleges for $31,960 in federal funds for student financial aid.

New Operation Launched To Check Welfare Funding

A new system of checking the eligibility of welfare families receiving Aid to Families With Dependent Children went into operation this week and seeks to keep tabs on outside income, among other things.

The new system requires recipients to fill out a questionnaire each month, listing income, changes in real or personal property, changes in family status and other information used in determining eligibility.

The questionnaire will be sent at the first of each month to about 450,000 families statewide, including about 1,550 in Marin.

It must be mailed back by the fifth of each month or hand carried by the 10th.

Prior to the new reporting system, the Marin County Department of Public Social Services was required to make quarterly reinvestigations into recipients' eligibility.

Under the revised system of monthly "mini-reinvestigations," however, the department is required only to make full reinvestigations annually.

Social Security Benefit Boost Signed By Nixon

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — President Nixon signed legislation today increasing Social Security benefits by 11 per cent this year for 30 million persons.

The first 7 per cent will be effective with April checks and the additional 4 per cent will be paid starting in July checks. The $2.3 billion increase will be financed through an increase in Social Security payroll taxes.

Both the House and Senate passed the compromise measure Dec. 21, the final day of the 1973 session, and while Nixon had reservations about the size of the increase, he decided to sign the bill before a deadline of midnight today.

The administration agreed last July to go along with a 10 per cent hike starting at mid-1974.

The bill also increases payments to 3 million aged, blind and disabled aults on welfare who receive special benefits under the new supplemental security income program.

Individuals will receive an additional $10 per month for January for a total of $140, and couples get an additional $15 for a total of $210. Additional increases of $6 for individuals and $9 for couples are effective in July.

Another amendment to the bill calls for an extra 13 weeks of unemployment insurance payments in areas of high unemployment. This authority lasts only 90 days, however, meaning Congress must take up the issue again by spring.

Payroll taxes of 5.85 per cent will apply under the measure to the first $13,200 of income, increased from $10,800 in 1973. Before the new law was enacted, it had been scheduled to apply to the first $12,600 of income.

The average old age benefit, now $167, would rise to $178 in April checks and $186 in July checks. An aged couple would get $296 in April, compared with $277 now, amd $310 in July. For aged widows, the average benefit would increase from $158 to $169 in April and $177 in July.

houseboats in unincorporated waters near that road keep mailboxes inside the city limits, but are not legally Sausalito residents.

A check with the fire department revealed that there are only 17 living units on Gate Five Road inside the city, she said. "I think it's inconceivable that 118 people could live in that many dwellings," she said.

She said the Sausalito postmaster was checking the names too and halfway through her list had already found 71 people living outside the city limits.

Some registrations were fraudulent, she said, like a businessman at Gate Four who registered at his business address instead of his home in Alto and a man who moved a mattress into the city's Marinship Area, but actually lived in a houseboat outside the city waters.

Of names registered for Gate Four she said, "It's impossible to live there. There's nothing there. They'd have to live in a cardboard box."

But she blamed most of the foul-ups on the county's computer.

She said she had agreed with the county elections office a few years ago that when Gate Five residents came in to register she would have them point out on a map where they lived. She then wrote the word, "outside," next to their address to show that they lived in county areas. But she said the county computer was never reprogrammed to read "outside," and occupants of houseboats in unincorporated areas were registered as city residents.

Mrs. Ansell said that the only way to correct the problem was for the county to mail notices to all 154 voters telling them that their registrations were invalid and that they had to reregister.

workers, talked to Espinoza for nearly three hours in the bone-chilling cold. "He kept wanting promises, but I said 'you're not living up to your promise to come down,'" Peil said.

He added that Espinoza once straddled the handrail on the walkway and another time played his harmonica. "What are you doing out here when you could be using that talent elsewhere?" the foreman asked Espinoza.

At one point, a 35-pound turnbuckle, used to tighten the bridge cables, crashed from the tower and smashed a hole in the span's concrete sidewalk. Espinoza told officers it slipped and he almost fell from the cable with it.

Near the end of the vigil, Espinoza asked to speak to his girlfriend. The highway patrol contacted the young woman, who in turn called the bridge office.

Using walkie-talkies and radios, officers and bridge workers managed to put her in touch with Espinoza.

She promised Espinoza that she would have the child, according to officers.

At 3:45 a.m., after talking briefly to Thompson, Espinoza surrendered himself to Sergeant Dukes and was assisted down from the tower by elevator.

The 6-foot-1, 240-pound man told newsmen that he threatened to jump as a protest against women's liberation and abortion. "If I jumped off the bridge and smashed my brain against the road, she wouldn't have an abortion," he said. "And now she's not going to."

"I don't think he ever intended to jump; he just wanted someone to listen to him," said Officer Simmons. "He was troubled, but he wasn't out of his mind. He cried a little when he was up there, but he was quite calm when he came down."

Nevertheless, Espinoza was taken to Marin Mental Heatlth Center and held for observation.

Country Singer Tex Ritter Dies At 67

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Singing cowboy Tex Ritter, whose recording of "High Noon" became a Western classic, died of a heart attack last night while visiting a friend in the Davidson County jail.

A veteran of 85 movies, 78 of them Westerns, and a singing career that touched six decades, Ritter, 67, was visiting Lamar "Jack" Watkins, a member of his band, when he was stricken. Watkins had been jailed on a nonsupport charge brought by his wife.

Ritter died at a local hospital a short time after the attack.

Services were scheduled tomorrow at the First Presbyterian Church with burial Monday in Nederland, Tex.

TEX RITTER
'High Noon' fame

Ritter, who got his professional start singing on a Houston, Tex., radio station in 1929, was active until his death.

He was prosperous in his later years, continuing his career and launching a chain of restaurants. In 1970, he unsuccessfully challenged Sen. Bill Brock for the Republican senatorial nomination from Tennessee.

Ritter was one of the original six members of the Country Music Hall of Fame, highest honor in the industry, and was a past president of the Country Music Association.

His biggest record was the mournful theme from the Gary Cooper western "High Noon."

Ritter was born Maurice Woodward Ritter in Panola County, Tex., Jan. 12, 1906. His father raised cotton and cattle on a spread settled by his grandfather when Texas still was part of Mexico.

He enrolled in the University of Texas as a law major in the early 1920s and used his knowledge of Texas folklore by staging a show called "The Texas Cowboy and His Songs." He began touring and landed in Chicago where he enrolled for a while in Northwestern University.

Boar Looking? Try The Zoo In Vienna

VIENNA (UPI) — Visitors are admitted on foot during the spring and summer to Vienna's famed Lainzer Tiergarten, a zoo that was once a royal hunting preserve.

The zoo is essentially a walled woods where 500 wild sheep, 190 deer, 80 stags, nine aurochs wild oxen, and four wild horses roam. It is closed to the public during the breeding season.

Reilly Succeeds Bennett As Equalization Board Chairman

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — George R. Reilly, a member of the state Board of Equalization since 1938, was unanimously elected yesterday by the board as its chairman for 1974.

Reilly, a San Francisco Democrat, succeeded William M. Bennett of Kentfield, who will continue as a member.

The board, the state's primary revenue-collecting agency, is composed of four elected members and the state controller. Together, the five choose a chairman and vice chairman for one-year terms.

The board administers all state taxes except the income tax, assesses utilities for property tax and guides state policy for local property taxes. It also hears all types of tax appeals.

As the new chairman, Reilly will serve as one of three members of the Franchise Tax Board, which collects the state income tax.

The group this year is expected to grapple with the controversy over President Nixon's claim of exemption from state income tax since 1968. Reilly will be the only Democrat on the board. The other members, Controller Houston I. Flournoy and Reagan administration Finance Director Verne Orr, both are Republicans.

Selected vice chairman of the Board of Equalization was Richard Nevins, a Democrat from Pasadena.

Lower Thermostat Can Save Money

NEW YORK (UPI) — Virginia H. Knauer, director of the Office of Consumer Affairs in Washington, D.C., says turning down the thermostat 10 degrees at night can save 10 per cent in a fuel bill.

Also at night, to conserve energy, close shades and drapes. Keep the fireplace damper closed, too.

Gas Shortages Reducing Probes

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — City detectives may have to cut back on investigations and undercover work to comply with a gasoline rationing order issued by Mayor Pete Flaherty, a police official said yesterday.

The administration last week ordered a 40 per cent reduction in gasoline usage by most city vehicles and confirmed yesterday the order applied to unmarked cars used by the police department.

Assistant Police Superintendent Robert J. Coll warned in a memo to his staff that the order could interfere with investigative work.

OIL SPILL SWEEP-UP

Employees of Pacific Pollution Control Co. of Berkeley swept a two-mile stretch of Oceano Beach near Pismo Beach yesterday while wildlife agents attempted to save birds caught in oil leaked from the USNS Pvt. Joseph Merrill. The oil spilled from the Merrill after it was struck by a Liberian tanker, was contained, and then broke out of the containment when strong winds and sea swells swept through Port San Luis Harbor, where the Merrill is anchored for salvage and repairs.

Michigan Employee Has Had It With Her Smoke Filled Office

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Lorraine Van Buren has had it with smokefilled rooms.

A government employee who claims cigarette smoke has a severe effect on her, Mrs. Van Buren has filed a complaint against the state of Michigan seeking damages for her health problems.

Mrs. Van Buren, 36, a $6,500-a-year typist-clerk for the Department of Education since September 1971, filed the claim before the Board of Workmen's Compensation seeking reimbursement for medical expenses and time lost because of illness.

Mrs. Van Buren, who brings a small vaporizer to her windowless office to minimize the impact of smoke on her eyes, ears and respiratory tract, said she is $3,000 in debt because of medical expenses. Additionally, she said she missed 50 days of work in 1973 because of her reaction to cigarette smoke. Only 24 of those were paid sick days.

Education department officials maintain they have done everything possible to help Mrs. Van Buren, including installing a new ventilation system, moving her desk and offering to help find her a new job.

"We have tried to accommodate her," said assistant personnel director James Rynbrandt.

At one point, Mrs. Van Buren said she was taken to a hospital from work because of her reaction to the smoke.

"I was given shots and told I could not drive home. So it was an emergency situation," she said.

"What would happen is that I would swell up and cut my breathing off. When the nose area swells up and when there's enough pressure, This is when I have to go to the hospital."

She also maintains that she has suffered periodic losses of hearing because the smoke affected her middle ear area.

Department officials say they fear that Mrs. Van Buren's claim, should it be successful, would open the door for a flood of similar complaints.

But Mrs. Van Buren said she is more concerned with getting some legislation to prohibit smoking in public places and public offices.

"My complaint's not important," she said. "If I recover back wages and medical expenses, what have I won if I have to go back to the same working conditions."

Drowning Of Novato Man Seen

A young Novato man who disappeared Dec. 22 while fishing on the Marin headlands is believed to have drowned, according to sheriff's deputies.

James T. Young, 22, left his home about 5:30 a.m. that day to go fishing near Point Diablo on Fort Barry. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Young, of 128 Montego Key, were not worried when he had not returned by the next day, since the youth often camped out.

In the early morning hours of Christmas Eve, however, military police called the elder Young to report that his son's auto had been found parked just off Conzelman Road at the fort.

The beach area nearby was searched and military police found some fishing gear in the rocks, but no sign of Young.

"He apparently was washed off the bank or fell into the ocean," Deputy Russell Hunt told the Independent-Journal. "That is a very treacherous hillside down by the point."

Hunt said there was no indication of foul play. "It's our belief that he drowned," he said.

Young, a mechanics helper for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in San Francisco, attended schools in Mill Valley and was a 1969 graduate of Tamalpais High School. He served with the Navy in Vietnam during the war.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by a brother, Charles J. Young, serving with the Navy in San Diego; a sister, Frances Prael of Kochi City, Japan, and his grandmothers, Sarah R. Young of Corte Madera and Laura Rosentreter of Sonoma.

Nebraska law provides that everyone hunting deer with firearms in the state must wear at least 400 square inches of hunter orange on the head, chest and back.

Bolinas Begins '74 On Same Note: Water Issue

The moratorium on new water hookups in Bolinas will continue, but voters will get a chance to ballot on an improved water system before the year's end, directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District decided last night.

Board members set themselves a six-month deadline to come up with a plan for long-range solution to the water shortage that has been declared an emergency condition since 1971.

The measure could appear on the June ballot if plans are complete in April. Most directors thought a November election more likely.

In other business the board took up the case of a resident who had complained of an $88 water bill due to a leaking pipe and decided to soften the previous policy that all such bills must be paid in full.

Unless negligence is a factor, the new policy states, residents must pay an amount equal to the highest bill rendered during the previous year plus half the difference between that and the amount caused by leakage. Board clerk Lyman Robinson estimated that approximately 20 such cases come up each year, some for amounts of more than $100.

The board also postponed decisions on replacing director Orville Schell until director Lewis P. MacAdams Jr., who has been detained on a trip to Texas, has returned. Schell previously announced his resignation effective Jan. 1, but he said last night that he could continue until the end of the month.

James Michael Groshong, runner-up in last November's election, submitted his application for the seat with a supporting letter signed by four directors of the Bolinas Property Owners Association. Conrad F. Golich, a previous candidate, announced he was withdrawing his application in favor of Groshong.

Director Paul D. Kayfetz reported state authorities had approved designs for the proposed new sewage system. An opinion from the state attorney general's office on the legality of a proposed septic tank ordinance which affect state grants for the sewage system, is expected by Jan. 15, Kayfetz said.

Board chairman Marguerite K. Harris, announced that applicants for the job of assistant maintenance man will be interviewed at 1 p.m. tomorrow in the district office.

Body Of Teen-Age Hiker Recovered

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Rescuers trudged shoulder-to-shoulder through dangerous snow drifts yesterday to recover the body of a 15-year-old hiker who died in a thundering avalanche on nearby Mount Kotoya.

Probing with long sticks, the rescue party found the body of Mark Rainey about halfway up the 1,500-foot slide, not far from where church leader Patrick McDaniel, 35, died in an avalanche Sunday.

SEN. GEORGE MOSCONE
Victim of short funds

No Governor Race For Moscone

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Sen. George Moscone, declaring himself a victim of short funds in a tight money year for politicians, formally withdrew today as a contender for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Departure of the 44-year-old liberal lawmaker from San Francisco trimmed the Democratic field to six announced and potential major candidates in the June 4 primary election for Governor.

Moscone called news conferences in Sacramento and San Francisco to formally bow out and to offer himself as a candidate for re-election to the Senate from a newly reapportioned San Francisco-San Mateo county district.

"Campaign financing has been extraordinarily difficult for this race," said Moscone, who has been running for about two years. "I have met my day to day commitments, but the prospect of raising the vast amount necessary for modern media and organizational efforts seem to be unattainable."

Moscone, who said he refused to seek funds "in return for any special favors," observed there "is a general lack of public interest in the gubernatorial campaign, perhaps due to Watergate perhaps just general apathy."

"This has hurt my campaign since a central theme placed heavy reliance on Democratic activists particularly in population centers," he said.

Moscone, floor leader of Senate Democrats since 1968, received wide attention as chief author of a controversial new anticonflict of interest law which requires public officials to disclose their financial assets.

Rep. Jerome Waldie of Antioch, along with Moscone perhaps the most politically liberal of the Democratic hopefuls, was elated at Moscone's departure and viewed himself as the chief beneficiary.

"No question this is a major, major boost to my campaign, something I've been hoping for," said Waldie who starts the second leg of his California walking tour today. "This should make fundraising for my campaign easier. There have been an awful lot of people who have been sitting back. Now they don't have to be confronted with that."

Moscone recently completed a statewide tour of California—part of it in a four-wheel drive vehicle—where he sought both votes and money.

He told UPI last week that a primary budget of about $1.2 million would enable "you to do the kind of things you want to do."

Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, who is expected to formally announce his candidacy for governor late this month, and announced candidate William Matson Roth of Ross, a wealthy San Francisco shipping executive, both termed Moscone a casualty of the high cost of seeking public office.

Moretti said the withdrawal of Moscone "underscores the need for public financing of political campaigns. Roth said it "dramatizes all that is wrong with statewide politics today."

If you have a savings account, you should read every word on this page.

Never before has it been so difficult to maintain your standard of living

With shortages causing more inflation, and the outlook so uncertain, you must be sure to get the most for your money:
1. By getting the highest assured return, and
2. By reducing expenses.
Now, at Fidelity Savings, you can do both. Here's how:

1. Highest assured return. Interest rates are up everywhere. Since, directly or indirectly, you are paying them, you should also be getting them. But rates are not up equally everywhere. Fidelity Savings is paying the highest rates in its history. But make no mistake: commercial banks are not allowed to pay as much and most do not pay as much as they could: 4½% on passbook accounts, for example, while Fidelity passbook accounts pay 5¼% (16⅔% more) to 5¾% (27.7% more). And, of course, accounts at Fidelity Savings are insured by an agency of the Federal Government.

2. Reducing expenses. For the first time, Fidelity Savings is offering to all its savers an exclusive list of free money-saving opportunities that can help you cut unnecessary expenses. These are not frills: they are things you are paying for now; things you want and need, but could pay less for. Through Fidelity's Golden Opportunity Club, you can enjoy these money-savings benefits:
First: A package of financial services that costs you a bundle at commercial banks is FREE at Fidelity Savings.
Second: A money-saving coupon book that will save you money every time you do the things you like to do: travel, eat out (or take prepared food home), go to the movies or the theater.
Here are the details:
First the valuable financial services.

Free Bank Checking Account. If you add up the service charges you pay every month on our checking account, this could save you plenty!

Free Safe Deposit Box. This would cost you $7 or $8 at a bank. It's free to G. O. Club Members.

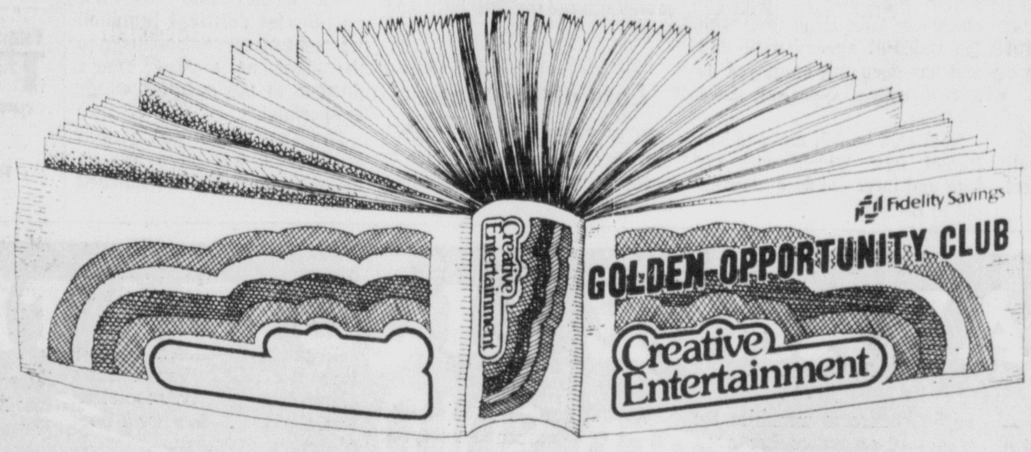

Free American Express Travelers Cheques. The safe way to carry cash while traveling. G. O. Club Members get theirs free of charge at any of our offices.

Discount Auto Purchase Plan. G. O. Club Members present their membership card at participating dealers and receive substantial savings on autos, trucks, and recreational vehicles. (One member recently saved over $750 on the purchase of a sedan.)

Discount Rent-A-Car Plan. If you don't want to buy a car, rent one. As a Golden Opportunity Club Member you are entitled to a 20% discount at America's "No. 1" rent-a-car company. (It's a cheaper way to G.O.!)

Free American Express Money Orders. The safe way to mail money or pay special bills. No charge to members.

Free Note Collection Service. Payments collected and deposited to your account free of charge.

And now a way to cut expenses while your money works

This is more than another gimmick for savers, but it's such an incredible deal that you must actually thumb through this monstrously thick book of passes yourself to believe it. 40 Convenient Locations

We now have more locations in our Northern California service area than any other S&L. Now, that doesn't make us the biggest, maybe just the most convenient. But, we know that it's the one nearest you that counts ... the others are for everybody else. If we're not near where you live, maybe we're near where you work.

Your money is as safe as money in the bank

That's because it's insured by the same kind of U. S. Governmental agency that insures banks. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insures bank accounts, the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corporation insures Savings & Loan Accounts. It's as simple as that. As a matter of fact, no one has ever lost a penny in an insured savings and loan account! So, we can't take any special credit. No S&L should. Accounts are insured to $20,000 by the above named agency and that's that.

If you put it all together–

Some math whiz added it all up and came to the conclusion that if your family used up every single ticket and the weekly bonuses, you could save yourself over $2,000! Nobody in his right mind would do all that, but we worked it out just to impress you with all the possibilities.

All this didn't just happen

The G. O. Club isn't the first time we've gone all out for our savers. Even since we first started out in the Savings & Loan business we have made it a policy to try our best to give our depositors as much as we could in the way of service. We were the first in this area to offer depositors free checking accounts, check-a-month annuity plans, a travel service and more.

Over $690 million in assets

Another indicator of a growing group of people who trust us.

What you have to do to become a member

(or: Something for Something)

In order to qualify for all these nice things, we ask that you maintain a Fidelity Savings account with a minimum balance of $2,500. (or establish that amount as your savings goal and pledge regular monthly deposits). There are some clubs that require as much as $7,500 and others that only ask for $1,000. But, we don't think you'll find any savings club that gives you so much value.

Please don't take our word for it–get tough!

This is the age of the consumer and savers are consumers, too. So, take a little time this week and do a little "shopping" for a savings institution. Visit the S&L's and banks near you and collect their literature. Ask a teller, or if you really want more information, ask the manager. Get tough. Compare. Get the most for your money. You may never use all the services available. However, consider what's in it for you and your family. All we ask is that you give Fidelity Savings and the Golden Opportunity Club a fair chance.

IF YOU WANT TO JOIN, THIS COUPON CAN TAKE AWAY THE BOTHER OF TRANSFERRING YOUR ACCOUNT. JUST COMPLETE AND BRING IT WITH YOUR PRESENT PASSBOOK OR CERTIFICATE TO THE NEAREST FIDELITY BRANCH.

Fidelity Savings: I'm interested in your Golden Opportunity Club. Please take action as checked below:

San Rafael Has Agency Assistant

A Pinole city councilman and former employee of the Oakland Redevelopment Agency was named yesterday assistant director of the San Rafael Redevelopment Agency

Ralph H. Neal, 37, was picked by the city council from 110 applicants and will begin working for the city Jan. 15 at a $20,000 annual salary.

He was selected after a screening committee of Marin Supervisor Robert A. Romiguiere, president Richard M. Kamieniecki of the Peacock Gap Homeowners Association and Steven Goldfarb, redevelopment counsel to the city, reviewed the applicants.

Neal is also a director of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District and said he will resign as councilman and director Feb. 1, according to San Rafael City Mgr. William J. Bielser.

He is a 1961 graduate of Stanford University with a degree in religious education. He was a right-of-way agent for the California Department of Highways from 1962 to 1965, was senior real estate officer in charge of land acquisition with the Oakland agency until 1972 and has been self employed as a real estate appraiser since 1972.

Neal said he will move to San Rafael from Pinole with his wife and three children, according to Bielser.

Two Bicyclists Are Attacked

Two men riding bicycles last night were run off Magnolia Avenue in Larkspur and assaulted by a man driving an orange and white four-wheel drive station wagon, they told Larkspur police.

Joseph T. Breeze of 28 Country Club Drive, Mill Valley, and Robert M. Guy Jr. of 25 Tamalpais Avenue, San Anselmo, both 20, told police they were in the 700 block of Magnolia Avenue when attacked at 6:45 p.m.

They said their attacker yelled about bicyclists hogging the road, punched Breeze with his fist and ran over Guy's bicycle.

They said he fled south on Magnolia Avenue. He was described as 30 to 35 years old, wearing a light colored hat and tan jacket.

Pneumonia Vaccine To Be Tested

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Within the next few weeks, the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center here will begin testing a new vaccine against pneumonia.

Dr. Marvin Fried said yesterday that he hopes 15,000 persons will volunteer for the test. All must be over age 45, when pneumonia usually is the most dangerous.

The vaccine contains extracts from 12 types of pneumococci that cause about 70 per cent of the pneumonia cases, Fried said.

Half of the volunteers will be inoculated with the vaccine while the other half will act as a control group, he said. Pneumonia rates between the two will be compared to determine the vaccine's effectiveness.

Fried said the U.S. Public Health Service provided a $300,000 grant to test the vaccine, manufactured by Eli Lilly and Co.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three-fourths of the earth's surface is covered by 336 million cubic miles of water.

Solzhenitsyn's Book Blistered By Soviets

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has responded for the first time to Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn's new book, unleashing a blistering attack against the Nobel Prize-winning author and his indictment of Soviet prison camps.

The official Tass news agency said in an article last night the book, "The Gulag Archipelago," was a "gross defamation of the entire Soviet people."

The book, a 606-page expose of Soviet prison camps and police methods, was published in Russian in Paris last week with translations in other major languages to follow shortly.

Western diplomats said they would not be surprised if authorities bring Solzhenitsyn to trial for publishing the book abroad.

Tass said the interest aroused by the book in the West was "certainly not" due to its literary merits, which the agency said Western reviewers were forced to ignore.

The agency said "the new anti-Soviet political lampoon was sent by Mr. Solzhenitsyn to the West as a New Year's present to the enemies of his motherland."

The Tass attack was carried in Russian, but there was no indication it would be published by the general media. The only news about the book to enter the Soviet Union so far has come through foreign radio broadcasts.

Tass said Solzhenitsyn's new work was snapped up by "bourgeois" newspapers and "gave them the pretext to try to ascribe to Soviet reality the ulcers and vices typical of capitalism."

Tass said Solzhenitsyn "hates all which was brought about by the October (1917) Revolution. . . and it is this helpless hatred that is the muse for his new works, including The Gulag Archipelago."

Tass described "The Gulag Archipelago" as a "rehash of old themes—postwar prison camps, the network of secret intelligence allegedly shrouding the whole country, persecution of intellectuals, the confinement of differently minded persons in psychiatric hospitals and gross defamation of the entire Soviet people."

Burned Couple Didn't Have Extra Gas Cans

The gasoline which exploded in a flaming wreck in which a San Rafael couple was critically burned Tuesday night apparently came only from a ruptured fuel tank, the Novato Fire Department said today.

There was no evidence that the couple was carrying extra containers of gasoline, according to firemen.

Percy J. Lambrix, 67, and his wife, Charlotte, 65, were reported still in critical condition today at the intensive burn care unit of St. Francis Memorial Hospital in San Francisco.

They were trapped in their burning car after a collision with another vehicle on Highway 101.

An off-duty fireman, Kendall R. Holyome who happened on the scene, broke a window of the blazing car with a hammer, and another passerby, Al Whitehead of Sebastopol, wrenched the locked door open, firemen said.

Holyome and another man, C. Shannon Murphy of Novato, pulled the victims from the car. Holyome suffered minor burns on his hands and forehead in the rescue.

Vendetta Gets Man Jail Sentence, Fine

An apparent vendetta against his ex-girlfriend will cost 26-year-old Gary King Johnson 30 days in jail and a $500 fine.

Johnson, of Point Reyes Station, drew the sentence yesterday from Marin Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best on his guilty plea to two charges, possession of flammable material and battery.

The charges stemmed from several encounters between Johnson and a former girlfriend, Elizabeth T. Daghita of Bolinas, according to Johnson's probation officer.

Johnson admitted hitting her in the face outside her home in October. But instead of pleading guilty to arson in the burning of her antique shop, he was allowed to plead to possessing flammable materials, a less serious offense though still a felony.

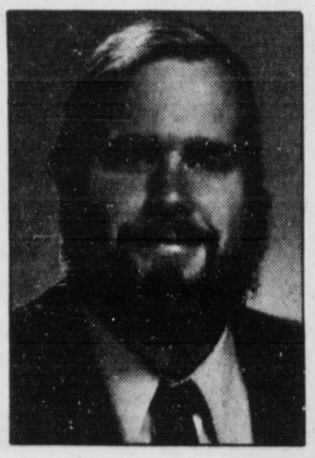

In addition to the jail time and fine, Best ordered Johnson not to annoy Miss Daghita, to reimburse her for the fire damage to her shop and to spend three years on probation.

Windows Broken

Someone firing a projectile broke six windows at West Novato School, 2080 Center Road, Novato, between 8:30 a.m. Tuesday and 7:15 a.m. yesterday, Novato police reported. The damage was estimated at $220.

Judge Quadruples Time On Burglaries

Fifteen days in jail isn't enough punishment for three burglaries, a Marin Superior Court Judge decided yesterday.

Judge Charles Read Best turned down a recommendation of a county probation officer and instead sentenced Robert Dwain Cox and John Allan Jensen, both 19, to 60 days behind bars.

Cox, of San Mateo, and Jensen, of Tomales, pleaded guilty to burglarizing three Dillon Beach houses last January. They said they were drunk and had been smoking marijuana.

Although their probation officer, noting their clean records, suggested 15 days in jail, Best said he couldn't agree.

"I reflect the conscience of the community. Residential burglaries in Marin have got to stop," he said.

Cox, also known as Robert Frankenfield, and Jensen, shared a house in Fallon in Northwest Marin when they committed the burglaries.

The judge placed them on two years' probation, ordered them not to drink alcohol during that time and declared their offense to be a misdemeanor.

Cable Ferry Inventor Sues Bridge Directors

I-J Special Report

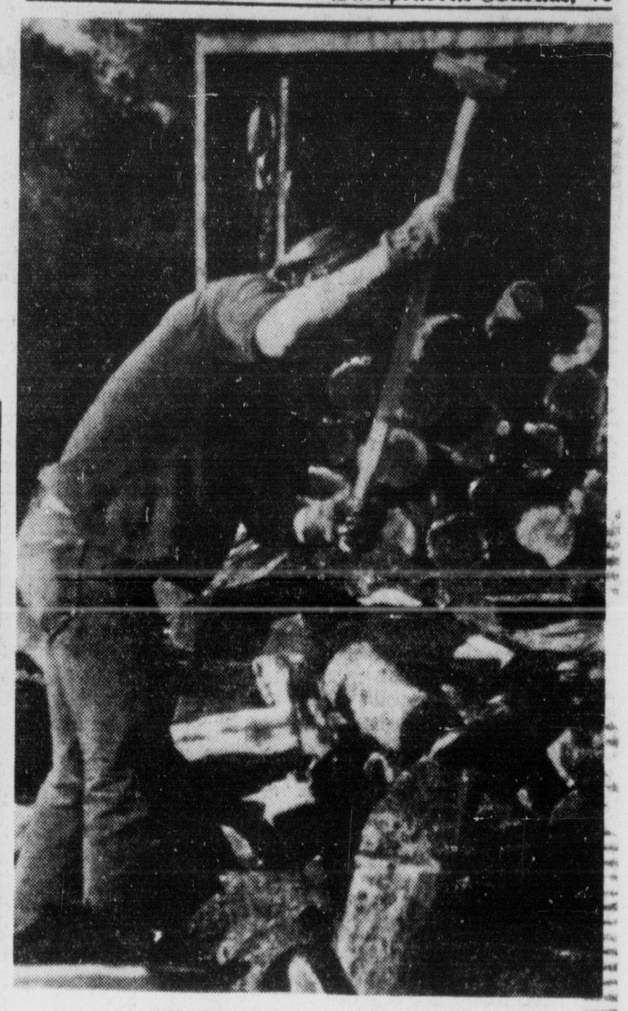

SAN FRANCISCO - A Woodside man yesterday sued the Golden Gate Bridge District for $250,000, claiming it failed to give a "fair and full review" of his plan for a ferry system pulled across the bay by underwater cables.

George C. Roberts, who describes himself as an inventor, had hoped to adapt San Francisco's cable car system to propel ferries to Sausalito.

The bridge district's general manager, told the Independent-Journal that both the district's staff and its ferry transit consultants had found the plan showed "no promise for our operations.

"It was not cost competitive (with the more conventional vessels being built by the district), and it had many other disadvantages - not the least of which was how do you stop the thing because there was so much slack in the 11-mile cable," Luehring said.

Another problem was how to manage bends in the route, he added. The district "spent considerable time and money" evaluating the plan by Roberts before it was discarded, Luehring said.

Rampaging Youth To Serve Prison Term

Richard Alan Kisling, 18, pleaded guilty today to a rape and robbery rampage in September and was sentenced to five years to life in prison.

Kisling, a short, curly-haired youth, will be eligible for parole in six months. But Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best said it was a "pretty remote possibility" the young man would be released that soon.

The Marin County Grand Jury indicted Kisling in September on six counts - three burglaries, two rapes and an armed robbery.

He was accused of being one of two men who broke into houses in Lucas Valley and Terra Linda, bound the husbands and raped the wives and rampaged through the residences stealing goods and money.

Kisling also was charged with a third break-in six days later at the San Rafael home of Robert Nelson, manager of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce. In that case the men bound Nelson and his wife and fled with jewelry and the family auto.

A 17-year-old Novato youth was arrested and charged with aiding Kisling on his rampage. He was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Kisling, who previously denied the charges, answered "Yes, I do" in a strong voice when asked by Judge Best if he gave up his rights against self-incrimination by pleading guilty.

The judge dismissed a sixth count, armed robbery, filed in connection with the looting of the Nelson house.

Tired Passengers Await Bus To End Amtrak Trip

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Unhappy and tired Amtrak passengers were waiting for a bus here today after what they described as a cross country trip climaxed by a night on a Nevada railroad yard siding.

They were on board the San Francisco Zephyr which left Chicago Monday and was due in California yesterday.

After being delayed by freight train derailments in the Midwest, the train was halted in Sparks, just east of here by Amtrak officials.

According to passengers, they were told about 1 a.m. today that they would have to get off in Sparks, where buses would meet them for the final leg of the trip.

The train arrived here about 2:30 a.m., the passengers said, but the buses were not there. After waiting all night, four buses were found parked about a half block from the train, the passengers said. They had been there since 11 p.m. yesterday.

Three of the buses loaded up passengers and luggage and left, apparently for California. But the fourth driver took his passengers to a downtown casino and told them to get some coffee while he went to see about getting a faulty heater fixed.

The passengers told newsmen the driver told them he would return in about 15 minutes. More than two hours later he still hadn't returned.

The 50 or so passengers waiting at the casino called Reno police and were taken to the Amtrak depot where at midmorning they were still waiting for a bus.

Jeannie Crocker Henderson Dies

HILLSBOROUGH (UPI) — Jeannie Crocker Henderson, granddaughter of Charles Crocker, one of railroad's famed Big Four, died at her home yesterday after a long illness. She was 87.

Her grandfather was one of the key men in the building of the Central Pacific Railroad, part of the first transcontinental rail link.

Her father, Charles Frederick Crocker, was president of Southern Pacific.

Stomping Fatal To Youngster

PASADENA (UPI) — Jamie Freeman, 16, died yesterday of head injuries, stemming from youth gang violence attending the New Year's day Rose Parade.

Freeman, of Glendale, was stomped and clubbed on the head by three youths because he asked them to keep quiet, police said. He and another 16-year-old were spending the night before the parade in sleeping bags in Freeman's van.

Three suspects are being hunted for the killing, police said.

Another youth, Dennis Allen, 22, of Canoga Park, Calif., was stabbed to death by a street gang for no apparent reason, police said.

Efficient Windmill May Help Cut Energy Problem

By DAVID R. FRANCIS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BONN, West Germany — It's puzzling to Walter Schoenball, a West German civil servant.

Despite the energy crisis, no European firm appears interested in the astonishingly efficient, power-generating windmill he and an international group of scientists have developed.

Enterprises in the United States, and, of all places, the Mongolian Socialist Republic, are considering producing the apparatus.

But nobody is in Europe, where the shortage of energy will likely be the worst.

Last July Schoenball's team completed the erection of their novel prototype windmill on the north German island of Sylt.

Tests since then show that the double-rotor mechanism converts more than 60 per cent of the force of the wind into electrical energy.

That compares with a 30 per cent conversion rate for a good, conventional windmill. To scientists, such a huge jump in the efficiency of a power source is astonishing indeed.

It shows that relatively little modern research has been done on utilizing wind to create electricity.

The Sylt windmill has a generating capacity of 70 kilowatts, enough to supply five families with electrical power, including heating. However, Schoenball's group has in the blueprint stage a windmill that could turn out 230 kw.

They also have plans for a 30 kw. wind-powered generator that could easily supply one house.

A question naturally arising from the use of wind as a source of power is: What happens when the wind stops?

Schoenball has a double reply.

First, he notes, in many parts of the world the air is rarely still. The new windmill can obtain power from winds as slow as 4.5 miles per hour.

Through their research with the prototype on Sylt Island, the group expects to improve their windmill efficiency to as high as 90 per cent. In this way the windmill could produce power with only whispers of a breeze.

Secondly, energy can be stored when the wind is blowing. For example, the power could be fed into batteries.

Because batteries are expensive, Schoenball figures a better alternative might be using the power to heat water in special tanks or for heating a special stone heat-storage device. Warmth would be drawn from these during days without wind.

Schoenball is a lawyer who usually works for the Traffic Ministry in Bonn. At the moment he is on leave to serve in Geneva with the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration.

Three years ago he became convinced that the world faced a long-term energy shortage — not just a temporary one prompted by the Arab nations' use of oil as a weapon in their struggle with Israel.

That prolonged shortage, he forecast, would arrive next year. The Arabs merely advanced it by some months.

"Civilization is in danger," he said during a telephone conversation from Geneva.

Thus he helped organize a group of experts to figure a better way for exploiting wind power. The group includes Marcel Jufer, a professor of electromechanics at the University of Lausanne; Jaques Dufournaud, a Parisian electronics expert; Hans-Dietrich Goslich, an expert in aerodynamics from Solingen, West Germany; and Claude Schindler, a Geneva engineer.

The group has spent about $190,000 of their own funds developing and building the Sylt Island windmill.

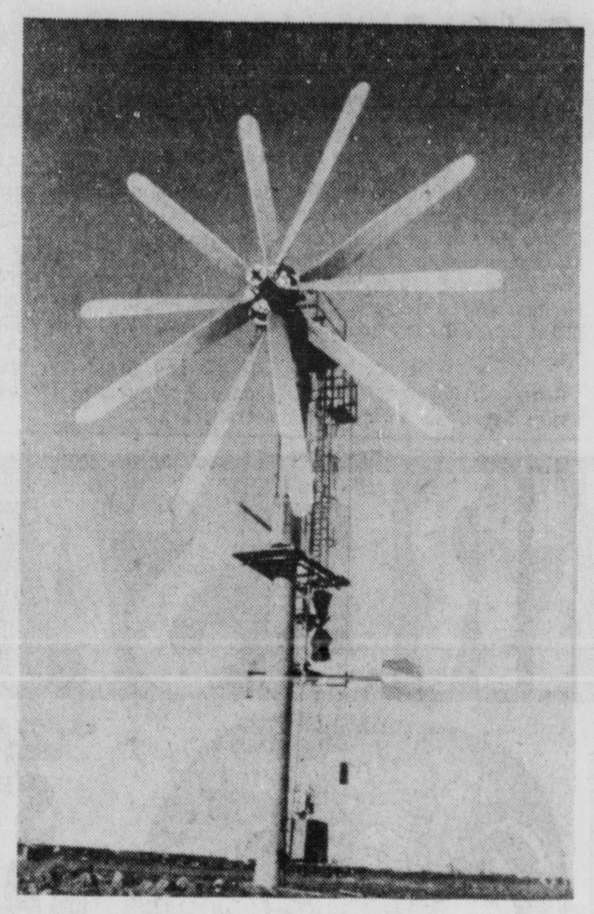

Schoenball estimates it could be reproduced for $46,000, or in mass production, for 20 to 30 per cent less than that.

For the approximately 20-year life of the apparatus, the cost per kilowatt-hour would be a cheap 2.7 cents. That price would not change no matter what happened to the price of oil, he notes.

Since the windmill uses current technology, he reckons mass production could begin as soon as February, 1975. "All the systems are simple," notes Schoenball.

Obviously the group hopes to recover the costs of their "hobby" and make a profit. But Schoenball insists that their main goal has been to help rescue the world from a catastrophic energy shortage that could destroy current living standards and styles in the industrialized nations.

ENERGY MAKER — Walter Schoenball's windmill is about twice as efficient as existing windmills and is the object of considerable interest in some areas of the world, though energy-short Europe has shown little interest at all.

Innocent Plea To Houseboat Slaying

Marvin Moore Jr., accused of the Christmas Day slaying of a retired Navy commander on the latter's houseboat north of Sausalito, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

He was to return to court today for a hearing on setting of bail. Pending the hearing, he was held without bail in Marin County Jail.

His arms shackled to a chain around his waist, the 28-year-old Moore, of no known address, appeared before Judge Robert A. Smallman, who set a preliminary hearing for Jan. 15.

Moore is accused of binding, gagging and robbing Dean K. Prowse, 51, aboard Prowse's houseboat near the Richardson Bay Heliport. Prowse's body was found by a roommate; he had suffocated to death.

Moore, who allegedly stole Prowse's car, was arrested Sunday in Dallas, Tex., when police there stopped him on a traffic violation. He waived extradition and returned to Marin to face charges of murder, armed robbery and car theft.

Attack On Candle Wicks Called Colossal Deception

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A member of the Consumer Product Safety Commission has accused a Ralph Nader researcher of "abysmal" scientific ignorance and a "colossal intent to deceive the public" with a pre-Christmas attack on candles containing lead wicks.

Dr. Lawrence M. Kushner, one of five members of the government commission, said the petition by Nader's Health Research Group for a ban on the candles "appears to have been intended to inflame rather than inform."

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Nader-backed group, had asked for the ban in early December, claiming the lead-bearing wicks could cause lead poisoning. The commission turned him down on Dec. 21.

In a letter to Wolfe released by the commission yesterday, Kushner said Wolfe's petition was "drawn either with abysmal ignorance of elementary physical science, colossal intent to deceive the public, or both ...

"The calculations in the petition of possible concentrations of lead in the air which might result from burning such candles were based on assumptions that are physically impossible, and the results of these calculations were then used to infer a degree of hazard totally inconsistent with reality," Kushner added.

In turning down Wolfe's petition, the commission said its research showed that some of the lead in the wire around which the wick is wound is burned as the candle burns. But it said the amount of lead involved does not constitute an "immediate hazard" and that, pending further investigation which is continuing, it would only advise consumers to be aware they "may be subjecting themselves needlessly to increased lead concentrations through use of the candles."

Wolfe had sought an immediate ban on millions of the candles. He said both the lead fumes and the chance that children might eat candles shaped like candy or fruit made the candles a dangerous product.

Asked to comment on Kushner's letter, Wolfe said "there is nothing inaccurate in our original petition. There is no question as far as I am concerned that they will eventually ban the manufacture of these candles."

Wolfe said commission researchers knew of the issue three months before he filed his petition and "the question is, why didn't they initiate tests then?"

Kushner has a Ph.D in physical chemistry from Princeton and was deputy director of the National Bureau of Standards before being appointed to the commission. Wolfe is a physician.

EXPERT IN FIELD

A Discovery Made Into Ancient Art Of Batik

By BETTY FROST

During her studies of art, Robin Grey of Mill Valley stumbled upon the batik process. Generated by the fascination with the varied effects that could be obtained by using the ancient craft, she has become a specialist in the field.

At her studio in Mill Valley she demonstrated the technique.

"We begin with white fabric, which may range from silk to canvas, but it must be a natural fabric, as dye does not penetrate synthetic fabrics. The white cloth is put through a series of processes she said.

"Hot wax, consisting of a combination of paraffin and bee's wax, is heated in thermostat-controlled pans. The wax is applied to the fabric in many different ways, by paint brush, block prints, or tools, such as are used in Indonesia, which extrude a fine stream of wax."

The wax is a masking agent. After waxing, the fabric is dipped into dye, and allowed to dry, then the waxing process is repeated and other colors used. Cracking of the wax before dipping into the dye produces fine lines. Removal of the wax by heat reveals the finished work.

"From the time I was 9 years old, I took art lessons," Miss Grey said. "When I was a child I would rather have received a book on art than a bicycle for Christmas."

SHE GREW up in Los Angeles, where she obtained her early education. She attended the University of Guadalajara in Mexico, and Lane College in Eugene, Ore., and obtained a bachelor of art degree from the University of California at Santa Cruz.

Her art professor at the Santa Cruz campus encouraged her interest in batik and introduced her to Elizabeth Fuller, a batik expert residing in Claremont.

The two women exchanged ideas while Miss Grey worked in Claremont with the batik artist. Miss Fuller often combines the batik method with guilting for hangings, but Miss Grey frequently uses batik in a manner similar to painting methods.

"Nobody's work is going to come out the same," the Mill Valley woman said. "The real challenges of art come from working with people who are willing to try different ideas. Batik can be adapted to many designs — abstract, subdued, realistic."

She taught at the University of Santa Cruz, where she also had a one-man show of her batik work. In her studio she accepts a limited number of private students whom she trains in batik art. She also assists with decorating in private homes and commercial establishments. Work in progress includes heavy cotton fabric to be used for upholstering wicker chairs in a home where there are young children, and airy cotton organdy with the quality of stained glass "with movement" for window hangings for a San Francisco firm.

On Monday, the artist will begin a batik class under the auspices of the Tamalpais High School Adult School. The three-hour sessions will begin at 7 p.m., and continue for 10 succeeding Monday evenings. She also teaches children.

"BATIK IS an ancient art form," the artist said. "Examples of batik work several thousand years old have been found in parts of Asia, Africa and South America. Indonesia is noted for batik work, and very fine detailed work is still produced there.

"I insist on good fabric and the best dyes obtainable, no old sheets," Miss Grey cautions, indicating that so much work is involved, that failure of materials would be heartbreaking for students.

She is gradually compiling a book on batik and acquiring a collection of examples of batik work from various cultures. Meanwhile Sunset magazine will bring out an article on her work later this spring.

Miss Grey has lived in Mill Valley only five months.

She had frequently visited her aunt, Mrs. Abraham Copperman, in Mill Valley. She found that "the people in Marin are receptive to art, and I like being near the museums and art centers of the Bay Area."

Fireproof Cribs Are Now A Major Concern

By DAVID T. COOK
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BOSTON — "The only fireproof crib would be one made out of iron — and even then the mattress would burn," says Phil Carney, chairman of the crib industry's safety committee.

Nevertheless, the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSE) now is 'looking at" new testing procedures and labeling regulations that would offer families a more accurate indication of how flammable their baby's bed is, according to Ron Eisenberg, CPSC spokesman.

NEW FEDERAL safety regulations which go into effect Feb. 1 deal with a variety of crib dangers — but do not set more stringent flammability standards to regulate fast-burning pastic cribs.

The flammability test cribs currently must pass under the Federal Hazardous Substances Act "may not be the most appropriate" for yielding accurate data on the hazards of plastic cribs, says Ricahrd Armstrong, CPSE engineering director.

In a fire, plastic items — including cribs — "drop flaming droplets which tend to spread the blaze," Mr. Armstrong adds, and in current federal testing procedures this phenomenon is not considered. Plastic cribs thus pass the current federal flammability test.

A REVISED test being considered within the CPSC would consider flaming droplets, and also test the material in a size and placement more closely resembling its use in cribs. Crib material not passing this test would have to be so labeled.

While noting that plastic objects tend "to burn faster than those made of wood because the material below generates additional heat," the commission's engineering director feels recent media coverage of crib fire hazards may be overstated.

"In my judgment plastic-crib fire hazards are not good — but they are not the worst," he said, citing draperies as a more pressing nursery fire hazard.

The federal standards which go into effect Feb. 1:

Require standard interior dimensions to prevent gaps between mattress and frame into which a baby could fall.

Set a minimum side-rail height to prevent babies from falling.

Define narrow (2⅜-inch) slat spacing requirements to prevent injuries and strangulation.

Increase to 10 pounds the pressure needed to unlock side rails.

Mandate a finish "smooth, free from splinters, and free of defects."

Retailers may continue to sell cribs that do not meet the new standards, but manufacturers cannot ship items that do not comply after Jan. 31.

Some retailers are telling consumers the cribs they buy now will soon be out of date.

Plastic cribs can be ordered from a nation store chain around the U.S. "We are aware that they burn like many other things," notes spokesman Dan Fapp. "We are working with the manufacturer to see what can be done to decrease their flammability."

Child Craft, the Salem, Ind., manufacturer, reports "many stores have taken our crib off their shelves."

According to the firm's lawyer, Jerry Strauss, Child Craft is considering improvements in its plastic cribs to make them safer. "We are not necessarily satisfied because the government says it is safe."

From A To Z, A Home Is A Major Burner Of Energy

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Home sweet home is an energy burner of major proportions.

Experts say that one fifth of the nation's total energy is used in the household. Some 88 per cent of a family's energy budget goes into heating in winter, cooling in summer, cooking and refrigeration. The rest is used in drying clothes, lighting and operation of various appliances.

Make a list of those electrically-powered appliances around your house and I wager you're be startled at how many you have.

The American Home Economics Association (AHEA) made such a list for a questionnaire which it used just to check the numbers owned by its own staff in its Washington, D.C., headquarters.

The list ran from A (for air conditioner) to Y (for yogurt maker).

AMONG THE items checked by 50 respondents, there showed up 36 blenders, 35 food disposers, 23 dishwashers; 17 popcorn poppers, 16 tape recorders, 13 typewriters, 12 sunlamps, 11 sanders, 11 slide projectors, 10 humidifiers, 7 ice cream makers, 6 hedge trimmers, 5 pencil sharpeners, 4 ice crushers, 3 dehumidifiers, 3 yogurt makers, 2 intercoms and 1 ceramic kiln.

The AHEA's list of 100 electrical appliances around the home is in the organization's current publication "Journal of Home Economics.

Want to check your energy users against the AHEA list? Here it goes.

Air conditioner (central), air conditioner (room units), battery charger, baby bottle warmer, beanpot, blanket, broiler, broom, can opener, coffeemaker, comb, clock;

Defroster for refrigerator, dehumidifier, dishwasher, disposer, door bell, drill dryer, fan, fingernail buffer, floor waxer, food warmer tray, freezer, fryer, frypan, garage door, griddle, grill, guitar, hairbrush, haircurlers, hair curling iron, hair dryer, heater, heating pad, hedge trimmers, hot dog cooker, humidifier.

ICE CREAM maker, ice crusher, intercom, iron, kiln, knife, knife sharpener, lamp(s), heat lamp, sun lamp, lawn edger and trimmer, lawnmower, lights (indoor night), lights (indoor wall fixtures), lights (outdoor lawn), manicure set, massager;

Mathematical calculater, mirror lighted for makeup, mixer, organ, oven warmer, oven dutch, oven microwave, oven portable, oven toaster, pencil sharpener, popcorn popper, projector, clock radio, standard radio;

Kitchen range, razor, record player, refrigerator, rotisserie, router (a tool), rug shampooer, sander, saw, scissors, sewing machine, shoe polisher, soldering kit, tape recorder, television, thermostat, toaster, toothbrush, train set, typewriter;

Vacuum cleaner, vaporizer, waffle iron, washer, water heater, water pik, woodburning set, and yogurt maker.

"OUR LIST . . . is not meant to be exhaustive," said the publication. "In fact, in the original questionnaire we forgot to list the electric iron, which may indicate that there are a few...appliances that are becoming less, rather than more important."

To supply AHEA with its missing Z on the list, how about an electric zipper? Would save many a dressing struggle.

Or a zither? We have electric organs and guitars, so the precedent for the zither is set.

GENERATION RAP

A Note Is Left But It's Not From An Honest, Upright Driver

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:
I parked my car in a company parking lot while I went in to talk to the manager about a job. When I came out there was a big dent in my fender, and a note on my windshield. I thought, "Get this, an honest driver, finally." But no.

The note said, "Why the hell don't you park straight?"

I was parked straight.

I told the manager about this and he was sorry, he said. But I didn't get the job. Maybe he figured me for a troublemaker, which I'm not.

So I'm out $60 for a repair job, still don't have work, and this is an open letter to a smart-off: "God'll get you for that."

Wish you'd tell me how to get him first. — CRUSHED AND BURNIN'

DEAR C AND B:
If this guy works for the company and pulls his little stunt again (as smart-offs usually do) he'll soon have his tail in a wringer . . . Especially if the next car he hits belongs to a visiting executive.

Let's hope he's found and fired! — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR RAP:
I wisn they'd take those mouth-wash commercials off the air — the ones that show "friends" conspiring to leave a bottle of you-know-what on someone's desk.

Around school, if you have an enemy, you're liable to get a bottle of mouthwash or a can of deodorant tied to your locker door. But you never know whether it's an enemy or a friend who did this — and you keep wondering if you should stand a long distance from people, even though you use all kinds of stuff to keep smelling okay.

Besides, it really hurts when the kids start laughing. You want to fall through the floor.

That "once in the morning does it" might have sold a lot of mouthwash, but if the one that made up the ad had ever had it happen to him — he'd know — ONCE IS ENOUGH.

OIE:
Right. Once is more than enough for ads like these. — SUE

OIE:
On the other hand, don't lay all the blame on a tasteless ad. People were sending their enemies heavy hints about "B.O." and "B.B." long before TV commercials made these reminders "humanitarian." — HELEN

RAP:
My girl friend broke up with me because I did what she asked me to do.

See, her best friend just lost her guy, so Jenny (my girl) asked me to be nice to her. She went to a movie with Jenny and me, and later we stopped at a discotheque. I danced with them both, and when Jenny got tired, I kept on dancing with Lois, and then we came back to the table to find Jenny had disappeared.

She left a note saying she had a headache and had gone home.

Next day she said that since I obviously preferred Lois, I could have my ring back. I got mad and took it.

How do I get my girl back? — "NICE" AND ALONE

N AND A:
Call her up and ask her for a date. She's probably waiting at the phone. — SUE

DEAR N:
And next time, don't take a girl quite so literally. A little kindness goes a long way, when it comes to sharing a boy friend. — HELEN

Study Of Children Of Alcoholic Mothers

A study by Dr. David W. Smith, University of Washington pediatrician, revealed that alcoholic mothers' children have IQs ranging from less than 50 to 83 and their motor skills were well below average youngsters', Family Health magazine reports.

The babies weighed about half the weight of a normal baby, it showed, but Dr. Smith said that why alcohol acts on the fetus is yet unknown.

'Older' Modeling Careers Opening Up

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Look in the mirror again. Those graying hairs and character lines could reflect good news. They could mean a new future for you of the retired set—a career in modeling.

Today's trend in advertising to use more realistic personalities and put less accent on eternal youth are the reasons.

"Retirement Living," a publication, explored the second or third career possible in modeling recently and concluded that, "Yes, it's difficult...to break into the business. It takes time to become known, but it can be done...

"You don't need to be an actor to become a model. But you must be able to follow directions so that the photographer is assured you'll do exactly as he wishes. To laugh, smile, express sadness or joy..."

"IT'S A highly specialized field, though," warned Cye Perkins, president of the New York agency which bears his name. "And it's getting tougher because of the increased competition...older people are more conscious of the chance they have in the field."

The Perkins agency handles all types of models but has several successful older people on the roster.

One of them is Mrs. Edgar J. (Mildred) Smith Sr., a handsome gray-haired widow in demand for elegant, sophisticated and rich roles for television and still photography. Mrs. Smith said, "I try not to carry my age on my back" but she usually is cast as the stylish matron between 55 and 65 years.

Another at Perkins is T. Henry Borland, 76, an aristocratic looking man who usually is cast as a gentleman of wealth.

IN INTERVIEWS both told how they got into modeling by chance.

Mrs. Smith, originally from Baltimore, was hired when her son, Edgar Jr., showed a picture of her to an art director for a Manhattan advertising agency.

THOSE GRAYING hairs and character lines on the face could mean a new career for retired persons — modeling. Mrs. Edgar Smith Sr. left and T. Henry Borland are two whose faces you may recognize. Mrs. Smith, who has eight grandchildren, is in demand for television and still photography, and Borland is usually cast as a gentleman of wealth.

UPI Telephotos

"I'm a late in life career woman," said Mrs. Smith, who has eight grandchildren. "My other life was strictly home life."

She has advice for the young and not so young.

"To the young I'd say don't ever try to take New York by storm," she said. "It will take you first.

"I would tell those getting along to take each day and do the best you can with it. You are preparing for retirement although you don't know it.

"In modeling I think personality counts more than looks. And when you're behind the scenes you know it (the work) is not easy.

"What I hear in the field about the lone woman is that some make it, some don't."

MRS. SMITH also has had several acting roles on television and in films, posed for the aristocratic "Mrs. Exeter" for Vogue magazine, and has written several songs, some of them recorded by the late Mahalia Jackson, Gospel singer.

Borland, born in London, has had a many faceted career. He was an executive for many years with Shell Oil in the Mideast. He served in the British Army from 1941 to 1945 as provost marshal with the rank of colonel.

For four years after World War II, he was on assignement to the government of Ethiopia, putting industry back on its feet after the invading Italians left.

In 1950, he decided to settle in the United States (he'd married a girl from Manchester, Iowa). He joined British Overseas Airways Corp. (BOAC) as part of its international sales force and remained there until retirement in 1963.

WHILE AT BOAC, the airlines used him as a model in advertising promotions and associates urged him to continue modeling after formal retirement. He's now with the Perkins agency and you've seen him or soon will see him as an ambassador, banker, and the like in ads for everything from fine whiskey to fine furniture.

All of the retirees who've gone into modeling caution against the wish for instant success. It means hard work getting an agency to represent you, knocking on the doors of photographers and advertisers.

But as Borland says at $60 an hour, "It's nice work if you can get it."

Warning Issued On Heating With Charcoal Units

The National Safety Council warns that charcoal-burning barbecue units have no place inside the home as a heating substitute.

"The charcoal releases deadly carbon monoxide gases which in an unventilated area can kill an entire family," said Hans Grigo, technical advisor for the council's home department. He added that for those bringing back the wood and coal burning potbelly stove, instructions of installation must be carefully followed.

The stoves must be properly vented to a chimney and children must be warned to keep away from hot unit, he said.

Advisory Centers Give Counsel, Medical Care

VIENNA (AP) — This city has 56 advisory centers for mothers offering counsel and medical care for their children under 6.

The Vienna Press and Information Service reports that each center is visited by an average of 31 mothers per day and more than 100,000 children each year.

Special classes for expectant mothers are provided by the centers, and each new mother receives a free layette from the city.

The relationship between social worker, doctor and mother often becomes a source of personal friendship, the service reported.

Art Classes Set At Tiburon Club

Art classes will begin next Thursday at 9:30 a.m. at the Tiburon Peninsula Club in Tiburon.

New techniques and painting will be taught for beginners and advanced students. A series of four two-and-one-half-hour classes will continue on succeeding Thursday mornings. Warren Brandon is the instructor.

Air Freshener

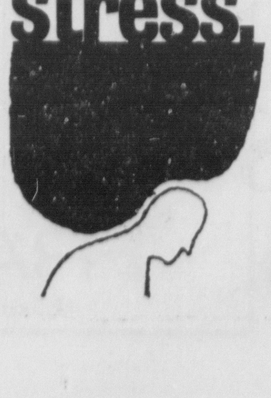

You can make a simple air freshener for the bathroom by filling a glass jar with dry rose petals. Stir occasionally to revive scent.

Frosted Look

Garments made of permanent press fabric blends may develop a frosted look along crease and hem lines after repeated launderings. This generally indicates that the cellulosic fiber (natural) is wearing out sooner than the stronger synthetic fiber with which it is blended. It is worthwhile to turn garments inside out to avoid unnecessary pressure and abrasion to crease lines during washing cycles, suggests the Soap and Detergent Association.

'New You' Series Is Going Again

The second phase of the "New You" series of weekly programs began this morning at the Novato Library when divorce adjustment counselor Mel Krantzler of San Rafael spoke on "The Modern Woman, Half Person or Whole?"

The free programs will continue on Thursdays at 10 a.m. at the library. Advance registration is not necessary, according to librarian Martha Van Etten.

"The first series was held one year ago in Novato. It was repeated in October in Tiburon.

Members of the original committee were Martha Van Etten and Barbara Hughes of the library staff, Marilyn Crowell of the Marin Association for Mental Health and Margery Sell of the Volunteer Bureau of Marin County. The planning committee has been expanded to include participants in the original series, Anabel Purtell, Marge Elliott, Gladys Lloyd, Ann Rivo and Chris Killgaard.

Another series is tentatively scheduled to begin Feb. 5 in Terra Linda.

Ski Gear Work Well For Biking

Riding a bike to save gasoline? Dress warmly in cold weather. Heavy socks. Gloves must allow good finger motion and sure grip. Other warming tips for the bike rider who must pedal when it's cold:

Ski gear works well. A lightweight, insulated jacket is dandy.

Keep a ski face mask handy for those downhill treks when the frigid weather's upon you and wind's a-blowin'.

Make sure the pantlegs are tucked in socks or otherwise held tightly in the ankle area so the wind does not blow them in the direction of the chain sprockets.

Earmuffs are good. But a woolen cap that pulls down over the ears probably is more suitable. It won't jiggle out of place the way earmuffs will when you go over parts of the road paved like a washboard.

Health Collective Sets Presentation

Marin Women's Health Collective will sponsor a free, self-help, self-examination presentation Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Marin Women's Center, 1618 Mission Avenue in San Rafael, according to Valerie Barnsten of San Anselmo.

The presentation will be given by members of the Oakland Feminist Health Service and will include a demonstration, slide show and discussion on medical self-help.

THREE OF Mary Quant's designs of the late 1950s which show a foretaste of the mini which was to bring her worldwide fame.

Designer Quant Feels A Little Depressed About Fashion Salute

By CUNTHIA FIGG
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

LONDON — Mary Quant feels awful about the exhibition called "Mary Quant's London," launched at the London Museum recently.

"She thinks it makes her sound as though she belongs to the past," quipped Alexander Plunkett-Greene, husband of the trend-setting British designer.

Well, it is daunting to become the subject of a museum retrospective when only 10 years ago you were the newest outlook in town. But the fashion evolution grew even more rapid and what was "swinging" in the 60s is already matter for wonderment and study in the 70s.

WHEN YOU look back over Mary's clothes, you find they chart the events and attitudes of the decade most graphically, which is why museum director John Hayes chose her work to illustrate his tale. But Mary is the first to say her fashion succeeded only because the "climate." A climate, she says specifically, the Beatles music helped create.

Mary says her personal revolution was simply a refusal to accept that departing youth was, as she saw it, a totally negative experience.

"Growing up seemed to mean that you had to stop being real, being alive, being an animal, being free, enjoying to swim, putting your head in the water," she explained.

"I fought this through the kind of clothes I designed. They were not for people who suddenly, one birthday, became prissy and tamed."

AT THE same time, a public outlook sharpened by the attack of satirical entertainment and the acid regard of young David Frost on TV could no longer be related to pearl stud earrings and white gloves.

The "modern designers were using perspex and vinyl, the material of the age. I remember French designer Paco Rabanne telling me that just as we had left behind the Bronze and the Iron Ages, we were now coming out of the other side of another era and it would be plastics all the way from then on."

As early as 1963, Mary had launched wet-look tunics, welded at seams as befitted a technological culture doing its own thing. We were flooded with fakes — fun furs, lashes, wigs — and boasted about them.

MARY QUANT'S London was jubilant, satirical, wild. That was one of the words —wild. So was op, pop, psychedelic, way out, fantastic, phantasmagoric, gear. The exhibition, designed by Michael Haynes who did the Beaton anthology, takes it apart, shows us the bizarre details — the Mods and Rockers, the drug deaths, no less than the juke boxes and the charismatic cockney photographers.

But by the year 1973 Mary Quant was ringing still another change. Her autumn collection this year brought a totally new soft look — full sleeves, collars, and trimming. What's for '74? Quant fans await her answer.

PARENT AND CHILD

Why Women Are Not At The Top

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Why aren't there more women in top jobs in church organizations, educational institutions, government and private industry?

It's a measure of a deeper understanding of the women's rights movement that such a question should even be asked.

The primary reason that women don't hold top positions is that general thought and opinion has preferred a male-dominated society. Even when women make up the majority of voters, top elective executive positions are usually won by men and the subordinate, supporting positions such as secretary-treasurer are given to women.

This view of women as unfit to hold top jobs starts in the home. If dad is not alert to teach his young daughter to reach "for the stars" and to share with his son a respect and admiration for a full recognition of women as equals, then he will add to the world's problem of sex stereotyping. He will do it in the way he brings up both his sons and his daughters.

AND MOTHER — what about her role? She must certainly watch daily that she isn't teaching her daughter to seek only supporting roles (stewardess, secretary, nurse, clerk, assistant director), while assuring her son that he deserves to dominate as manager, executive, or director.

But it's not true that top jobs should be held by men and support jobs by women.

Perhaps no industry in the world does a poorer job of providing equal opportunity for men and women in top jobs than education. The majority of employees in the education "industry" are women. This is especially true at the elementary and secondary school level; less so in higher education.

It is difficult to fault the trucking industry or agriculture for not promoting women to top positions; there are so few women involved with equal training and business experience to compete with men.

But schools, colleges, universities and training institutes have many highly qualified and experienced women serving alongside men — until you look at the top management chart.

Principals of schools, more often than not, are men. Department chairmen generally are men. Administrative interns and assistants usually are men. Deans of departments and heads of colleges also usually are men.

THIS SPILLS over into state departments of education in the United States.

Clearly the problem is large. And there is little parents can do to change the habits of college presidents. There is, though, a lot that parents can do right at home. And, certainly in their local schools, they can insist that principals of schools not be appointed by the superintendent or his designate, but that they be chosen by committees consisting of students, parents, teachers and administrative representatives.

But without active intervention by concerned parents, the teaching done at home about equality of the sexes can be nullified at school by the very institutional process of placing men in decision-making positions and women in support jobs.

MET'S SEASON

Two Quality Productions

By LOUIS SNYDER
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — Despite dire announcements about seasonal cutbacks to come, resulting from a runaway deficit in the millions, the Metropolitan Opera has recently put on view two notable new productions and a revival of sizable musical impact.

Surprisingly enough, the range of this variegated fare extends over only 65 years — from Rossini's comic "L'Italiana in Algeri" (1813), through Verdi's ultra-serious "Simon Boccanegra" (1857), to Offenbach's fantastic "Contes D'Hoffman" (1878) — and has provided a revelatory key to audience tastes and compositional proliferation during that short period in operatic history.

A rather gaudy new staging of Offenbach's one serious opera presented Placido Domingo as Hoffman, Joan Sutherland as the four heroines who eventually elude him (including Olympia, the famous dancing mechanical doll), and Thomas Stewart as the quartet of villians responsible for his amorous failures.

A revised version, including restoration of much of the original French dialogue, was conducted by Richard Bonynge, who had previously used it at the Seattle Opera and on a complete and excellent recording for London Records. Bliss Hebert, who staged the Seattle production, and Allen Charles Klein, who had designed it, did the same at the Met.

The temptation to make an extravaganza of "Hoffman," with its wealth of eerie and psuedotragic aspects, has been seized upon by Hebert and Klein. Darkness prevails onstage, along with plenty of fright wigs, Commedia Dell'Arte false noses, and other grotesqueries of costume and makeup, which serve to telegraph the atmosphere of fantasy.

However, the singing is excellent: Domingo is a hero of liquid tenor gold.

Miss Sutherland proves to be never less than the ideal vocal and histrionic exponent of the four femmes fatales.

Huguette Tourangeau, in her welcome Met debut, scores as Hoffman's friend Nicklausse, who doubles in this version as the poet's Muse.

Stewart, the four-flanged villain, registered less impressively. Whether because of a lack of an aggressive vocal bite, or of stage direction which replaced audience contact with visual gimmicks, the ever-present nemesis, like the surrounding scenery, never quite caught up dramatically with hero Deomingo and heroine Sutherland.

Second of the season's new productions is Rossini's "L'Italiana in Algeri" ("The Italian Girl in Algiers").

Staged and designed by the witty, musically aware Jean-Pierre Ponnelle in his Met debut, "L'Italiana" had as its vocally virtuosic, charmingly comedic title character, Marilyn Horne as Isabella, an irresistible Mediterranean shipwreck victim who subsequently takes the Bey of Algiers by storm.

Throughout the course of this fluff-ball of sparkling music and ridiculous fun (treated by Ponnelle with judicious restraint), Miss Horne is consistently enchanting as a spectacular bel canto singer, for whom nothing is unnegotiable, and as an actress whose personal charm and timing in performance is impeccable.

Perhaps a more electric reading of the score than conductor Gabor Otvos gives it would make "L'Italiana" a smash hit, but with Miss Horne, the charming Ponnelle production, and a cast of experts, it is, nevertheless, plentiful fun for eye and ear.

Fun for the eye is not a precise description of Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra," which was revived for the first time since 1968 at the Met Dec. 1.

Frederick Fox's scenery has aged noticeably, and the late Margaret Webster's originally sharp direction is more honored in the breach than in the observance.

But in musical performance, this rehabilitation of one of Verdi's problematic scores achieves something of a triumph.

In the pit, Sixten Ehrling and the Metropolitan Orchestra have given "Boccanegra" an aural dry-cleaning that reveals unsuspected glories in the Verdian tradition. And a cast has been chosen, from its youngest to its most experienced, which should help to move "Boccanegra" out of the neglected-favorites classification.

Ingvar Wixell, in the title role, left no doubt of his preeminence as a major Verdian baritone.

Verdi gives the heroine of this crazy, mixed-up plot her celestial music to sing, and Adriana Maliponte sang it that way.

Richard Tucker as Gabriele Adorno and Giorgio Tozzi as Fiesco, two veteran Verdians, were making their first appearances of the season, and once again proved that there is no substitute for experience.

It could have been an unenviable experience to make one's Metropolitan Opera debut in a cast of this magnitude, but Lawrence Shadur, a young American bass-baritone who has won his spurs in Switzerland and Germany, came forth with flying colors.

As Paolo, deep-dyed villain of the plot, Mr. Shadur's richly colored voice and sound dramatic instinct measured up, in each instance, to the highly charged situations in which he encountered the opera's leading characters, on both vocal and histrionic ground. A really tough assignment, bravely and stirringly met.

PAIRED TOGETHER — Two of the super stars of the operatic world, Placido Domingo and Joan Sutherland, appear in a scene from Offenbach's "Contes D'Hoffman," which has given the Metropolitan Opera a shot in the arm. The company is currently undergoing what has been described as a financial crisis due to rising production costs. (Christian Science Monitor photo)

Driver Cleared In Petaluman's Death

FRANKLIN, Tenn. (UPI) — An Alabama truck driver who underwent a lie detector test yesterday was declared innocent of any violence in the deaths of two young women hitchhikers from Petaluma and Sacramento but was charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Clauzell Dortch of Grove Hill, Ala., told police the two jumped from his truck cab for no apparent reason as it sped along Interstate 65 last Friday night.

"I've just served Mr. Dortch with a warrant charging him with leaving the scene of an accident," Williamson County Sheriff Fleming Williams said. "The man is telling the truth, and he passed a polygrpah test today (Wednesday). There was no type of violence connected with it."

Dortch said he did not stop at the scene of the incident because he was too scared. He said the woman had been smoking marijuana, although police have found no evidence of the drug.

Earlier Williams said Barbara Boynton, 18, of Petaluma, appeared to have jumped or been pushed from the rig, and Nancy Jane Morey, 20, of Sacramento, "just dropped onto the road." Both women died of multiple head injuries.

Williams said the trucker will have to post a $500 bond before he can leave Franklin.

The case will be heard either Friday or Monday of next week, Williams said.

George Haynes, a Tennessee Bureau of Criminal Identification agent, said the women boarded Dortch's truck at a Nashville truckstop shortly before their deaths.

Blast Injures Ski Employee

BISHOP (AP) — A Mammoth Mountain ski area employee was in critical condition after an explosive device used in avalanche control went off in his hands.

The mishap involving William Bohannan, 27, marked the second such incident in the area in the past three weeks.

Marvin Critton, 35, died after a similar device went off prematurely.

A spokesman for the ski area said all use of the devices — explosive charges with a fuse — has been stopped pending an investigation.

Bohannan was injured Tuesday while working on Mammoth Mountain. He underwent surgery at a hospital here for injuries to his hands, legs, chest and lungs.

New Social Security Checks Not Received

The computer age is dealing unkindly with some of Marin's 2,200 persons who formerly received certain kinds of welfare checks from the county.

The federal Social Security Administration's computer in Maryland and the Treasury Department in Washington, D.C., failed to issue the promised new checks to a small but unhappy percentage of the recipients. They were supposed to receive their monthly payments yesterday.

The computerized process is replacing former state and county payment programs for persons receiving Old Age Security, Aid to the Totally Disabled and Aid to the Blind.

One Novato resident reported in amazement to the Independent-Journal, "I've been on aid to the totally disabled since I was 7 years old — but I called the Social Security office in San Rafael and they said they had no record of me.

"I guess I can go without paying my rent or my bills" until the check arrives, 'but I'd rather not,'" the Novato man said.

Ed Luein, San Rafael district manager for the Social Security Administration, reported receiving some complaints. He said it would be late today before his office knows approximately how many checks either weren't issued or were printed with incorrect amounts.

Both his office and the county department of human services are geared to provide emergency help if notified that the federal checks haven't arrived, Leuin said.

He said that after the California Legislature and Gov. Ronald Reagan authorized federal takeover of the three types of welfare payments last month, Social Security workers "faced a real challenge" to get the computer records ready.

The magnetic tapes from which the Treasury Department mailed the first checks, due this week, was completed only Dec. 19. A supplementary tape was completed Dec. 26; checks from it should be received next week, Luein predicted.

Apparently the problem is statewide, but no data was available yesterday on how many checks had been delaved.

Marshmallows Ruled Out As Deadly Weapons

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A judge ruled yesterday that a marshmallow is not a deadly weapon.

Robert Edward Callender, a college student, and Dean Krasomil, a hospital worker, filed suit demanding that their arrests for assault with a deadly weapon be expunged on the grounds it wrongfully hurt their reputations and careers. No formal charges were filed and they were released the next day.

They were arrested on Halloween for firing miniature marshmallows — weighing no more than one-sixth of an ounce — from slingshots "over the heads of the victims, which popped down and hit the victims on the head."

Superior Court Judge Campbell Lucas agreed that the marshmallows were not legally lethal, and ordered the record changed to show they were detained, but not arrested.

Firemen Killed By Falling Wall

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UPI) — The front wall of a burning tavern fell on firefighters Wednesday, leaving fire marshal Gabriel Tichi andanother man dead and two others injured.

They were battling an early morning blaze at the Downtown Tavern when the wall collapsed. Tichi was killed outright and fireman Woody Groom died later on the operating table.

Another fireman, Mike Everett, suffered a broken collarbone, leg and ankle and a fourth man sustained minor injuries.

Driver's Plan Brings A Ticket

LINCOLN, Ill. (UPI) — Paul Rom, 21, Chicago, was stopped by state police last night for driving without headlights.

Rom told arresting officers he had driven all the way from St. Louis, Mo., without his lights to conserve energy but troopers gave him a ticket anyhow.

Simon Loses Pentagon Fuel Fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon has won a bureaucratic battle with the Federal Energy Office, removing energy chief William E. Simon from full control over military fuel allocations.

The energy office's draft rules issued Dec. 13 said the Pentagon's desires for fuel should "be submitted to the administrator of the Federal Energy Office on a quarterly basis and may take effect only following his approval thereof."

The Pentagon didn't like that because Simon was diverting military fuel to the civilian airlines. There ensued one of those mighty clashes in which federal bureaus seek to keep other federal bureaus from impinging on their turf.

The result was a significant change in the final regulations printed yesterday in the Federal Register, which said the Pentagon's desires should "be submitted to the President on a quarterly basis..." The President was substituted for Simon.

Just before Christmas the Pentagon and Simon met head

WILLIAM E. SIMON
A bureaucratic battle

on when Simon ordered 1.5 million barrels of the military's jet fuel diverted to U.S. airlines flying international routes. Simon said this would cause military stocks to fall only 4 to 5 per cent short of their end-of-January requirements.

In a rare break with the normal public decorum draped over bureaucratic battles, the Pentagon squawked publicly. Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Freidheim complained that Simon never contacted the Defense Department before making his decision and said the military stocks were already 30 per cent short and would be even worse off with Simon's diversion.

Simon won that battle, although as a face-saving gesture for the Pentagon a diplomatic compromise was announced decreeing that the FEO would take over only 900,000 barrels immediately and 600,000 when needed.

But it was a Pyrrhic victory for Simon. For in the second battle over who would have final say over the Pentagon's allocations, the Defense Department won by getting the authority moved from Simon to the White House.

San Jose Buys Emergency Gas

SAN JOSE (AP) — The city has made an emergency purchase of 18,400 gallons of gasoline because of a threatened shutdown of Santa Clara County service stations, officials say.

The city bought the extra gasoline yesterday from the Circle Petroleum Co. of Bakersfield without competitive bid "because the urgency of the situation required immediate action," city Treasurer Jean Morse said.

Mrs. Morse said that it seemed "highly desirable" for the city to stockpile a gasoline supply in view of protests from gas station operators.

Waldie Back On The Road Again

PUMPKIN CENTER (AP) — California's walking candidate for governor, Rep. Jerome Waldie, began a trek from this tiny Kern County community today.

Waldie, with an entourage of 40 supporters, began walking toward Bakersfield 16 miles away on the first leg of an 18-day march up the San Joacquin Valley to Sacramento.

Hiker Dies After Night In The Cold

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — A young woman hiker died from exposure after spending a night in freezing temperatures and another hiker suffered a broken leg in a 150-foot fall in separate incidents yesterday in Southern California mountain areas.

Kathy Mankey, 23, a student at Pomona College in Claremont, died at Loma Linda Medical Center after becoming exhausted and spending Tuesday night in near zero temperatures while a companion, Bruce J. Benedict, 23, Hermosa Beach, sought help.

Miss Mankey was airlifted off San Gorgonio Mountain by helicopter but died an hour later.

In the San Gabriel Mountains, Steven Barnes, 16, San Marino, was taken to Verdugo Hills Hospital with a broken left leg, suffered when he fell 150-feet down an embankment while hiking in the vicinity of Valley Force Campground Road.

Skylab's Jerky Gyro Goes Haywire Again

HOUSTON (UPI) — An ailing Skylab control gyroscope faltered for the second day in a row today, leaving ground engineers puzzled as to the cause.

The slight problem, termed a "hiccup," did not prevent Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue from rolling the ship to photograph the earth and collect more data on Comet Kohoutek.

If the gyroscope failed completely within the next few days, the Skylab 3 crew could stay aloft an additional 25 days without maneuvering the 100-ton station to point cameras at the earth or Kohoutek.

The solar observatory could still be used for research of the sun because the station does not have to be rolled. The powerful telescopes remain aimed at the solar disc except when special maneuvers are made for other science tasks.

One of three gyroscopes failed in the second week of the mission, Nov. 23. Gyroscope No. 2 was faltering about once a day before ground engineers began controlling the temperature in the spinning gyro's bearings in an attempt to stop the problem.

Yesterday's "hiccup" was the fourth since then, and lasted about an hour. Yesterday, the gyro faltered for about an hour and a half.

Engineers said the problem did not appear to occur under the same conditions each time and that left them wondering what the actual cause may be.

The astronauts, in the 49th day of their 84-day mission, were awakened an hour and a half early at 4:35 a.m. EST for the earth studies sweep across 3,600 miles of Africa. It began in Southeastern Sudan and moved north of Tehran, Iran, while a battery of six cameras collected information on crops, forests, range lands and insect and disease damage.

Tough Tests For Heart Drug Pledged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said today it will require more stringent testing to assure the quality of a heart drug used by an estimated 3.5 million Americans.

The drug is digoxin, a substance chemically related to digitalis or foxglove, long used as a heart stimulant. An FDA spokesman said regulations soon to be published will require companies making digoxin to conduct tests on each production lot to make sure they are of uniform quality.

Presently, the agency said, patients taking the drug have found that some doses are more effective than others, apparently because of differing rates at which the pills dissolve.

The new regulations will require a uniform effectiveness for the drug, which is made by at least 20 American firms.

IN MARIN, SOUTHERN SONOMA

1973 A Year Of Many Changes

"Energy crisis" probably is the description most Marin and Southern Sonoma residents will remember about 1973, in years to come.

The departed year was one of many changes, mostly low-key though far reaching. Christmas lights were dimmed to save energy, motorists worried about where their next tank of gasoline would come from, and housewives boycotted against high meat prices, followed by a butchers' strike. Bans on new water connections stalled much construction in Marin County, sparking multimillion-dollar lawsuits.

The Pentagon announced that Hamilton Air Force Base would no longer be an active duty base, serving instead for weekend use by reservists, and as military housing. A scramble started for lands the federal government said would be surplus — about one third of the base.

It was also the year the prisoners of war came home from Southeast Asia; Marin's youthful Orchestra Pocolla won standing ovations on tour in Italy, and a Novato lass became California's outstanding teen-ager.

There seemed to be an unusually high turnover in city halls, with city managers resigning in Cotati, Larkspur, Tiburon, Mill Valley, Sausalito and Novato, three city councilmen recalled in Corte Madera and a spate of new councilmen elected.

Here are some of the highlights of the year 1973 for Marin and Southern Sonoma counties, by months:

JANUARY

The weather stole the limelight, with bitter cold the first week followed at midmonth by the most damaging rainstorms, floods and slides in recent Marin County history. Federal, state and local agencies set up a special disaster aid center to assist residents and business owners who suffered more than $2 million damage to homes and businesses.

Annexation of Terra Linda swelled San Rafael's population to 43,000. Marinwood voters approved a $600,000 bond issue to buy open space. Lori Gielegheem, 17, of Novato, was chosen "California Junior Miss."

Schools and offices closed Jan. 25 in mourning for the late President Lyndon B. Johnson. Among the others who died were Edward D. Mahood, 91, former Corte Madera town treasurer and postmaster, and Maurice P. Koch, Corte Madera industrialist.

FEBRUARY

Corte Madera and Larkspur engaged in a shopping center race, with Bullock's, Macy's, Penney's and Ward stores revealed as potential tenants for the Hahn project in Corte Madera, and Larkspur planning a regional shopping center just west of Highway 101.

Novato city councilmen bought the 65-acre O'Hair property for $500,000 for park use, and approved a 2,300-home plan for the Satori Ranch in Black Point.

Kelley Niles, San Anselmo child hurt in a schoolground accident, was awarded a U.S. record in court damages — $4 million against a San Francisco hospital and doctors.

Marin Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission Chairman Richard J. Oesterman surrendered his gavel after fellow commissioners objected to his running police records checks on them.

The Golden Gate Bridge District unveiled plans for a ferry terminal in Larkspur expected to cost $5 million (now pegged at twice that).

MARCH

Prisoners of war Navy Lt. Cdr. Charles E. Southwick and Air Force Capt. William W. Butler returned to their waiting families in Marin.

Scientist-author Arthur C. Clarke advised a College of Marin lecture audience to consume more oil-based food products to combat a predicted natural food shortage.

San Quentin's first woman guard was on duty; state officials refused to sell the prison's idle gas chamber to a British tourist who wanted it for a London museum.

Brent W. Bedayan, 22, was arrested for the murder of three members of the Melvin J. Schallock family in Mill Valley; he later was found insane by a superior court jury.

Marin County Supervisors voted $426,000 for improvements to the fairgrounds at Marin Civic Center.

APRIL

A compromise settled this dispute over the $6 million San Rafael redevelopment plan, with county supervisors and the Marin Community College District agreeing to a formula to offset financial impact of the tax freeze plan.

The Pentagon announced plans to convert Hamilton Air Force Base to reserve status and to sell off part of the base land.

A buyers' boycott cut Bay Area meat sales by 25 per cent.

Novato Police Chief Allen V. Klemme resigned in a dispute involving the police association, City Mgr. Charles A. Brown and the council.

Marin County Administrator John F. Barrows proposed three major shakeups in county organization: abolishing the human rights department (the supervisors refused); merging social services, health and probation departments (which was done) and merging planning, public works and parks and recreation (which wasn't done.)

Deaths during the month included Greenbrae developer Niels Schultz, 85; former Larkspur Mayor Dr. Thurlow C. Jaegeling, 70; Sausalitan Isabel W. McNeill, 100, daughter of a ferryboat pioneer; and Evelyn C. Barbier, mother of late San Rafael City Councilman Harry Barbier.

Jack G. Nixon and Lawrence Mulryan won San Rafael City Council seats, a Novato flood control bond was defeated; Dr. L. Martin Griffin was elected to the Marin Municipal Water District board and a Fairfax public safety building bond was approved in the April elections.

MAY

Marin Municipal Water District and North Marin County Water District voted bans on new water connections, severely curtailing new building.

The Marin Community College District Board voted 5-1 to call construction bids for its Indian Valley campus, despite last-minute protests against development of the North Marin campus.

Marin County Supervisors voted 3-2 to create a new department of corrections to take over the jail and new county honor farm in Santa Venetia. The supervisors also killed off the old San Geronimo Valley master plan, agreeing with a residents' faction that density should be lower.

Students acting as earthquake injury victims gave realism to the county's second disaster training drill.

Deaths during the month included Kitty Oppenheimer, 76, veteran broadcaster and music booster; Tiburon city treasurer and developer Samuel Shapero, 79; former state Public Utilities Commission chairman Maj. Gen. Richard E. Mittelstaedt, 88, of Greenbrae; mental health leader Gertrude Baum, 67, and Charles A. Pease of Petaluma, 76, nationally honored athletic and gymnastics coach.

JUNE

Marin County Supervisors formally adopted the new county general plan that had been years in the making, designed to hold down population and preserve open space. The supervisors also adopted a record $50.3 million budget, but lowered the tax rate about 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Novato City Councilmen adopted the Novato General Plan after marathon hearings, imposing a 500-unit annual limit on new residential building.

Petaluma's previously ordered 500-home limit was upheld in a city election and Mayor Helen Putnam was reelected; a $4.1 million pipeline bond issue for North Marin County Water District was approved by voters.

Three hundred construction workers noisily protested the Marin Municipal Water District hookup moratorium, a months-long stike of beer delivery truck drivers began, and the mercury soared over 100 degrees for the first time in the year.

Holiday Magic tycoon William Penn Patrick of San Rafael died in a Lake County plane crash; other who died during June included Nino Josph Baglietto, 82, father of Assemblyman William T. Bagley; West Marin civic leader Frank P. Myer in an auto crash, and Edith Page Skewes-Cox, 79, Ross social and civic leader.

The Mill Valley City Council voted to forbid Little League play in city parks unless a girl, Jenny Fulle, was allowed to compete in the previously all-boy sport. The stand eventually was abandoned, after nationwide publicity.

The I-J's "Secret Witness" added a reward for conviction of the poisoner who killed some 20 Mill Valley dogs.

JULY

A consultant told the California Aeronautics Board that Hamilton Air Force Base should be put to airline use by 1985, and predicted 235 flights daily. Marin County officials and groups continued to oppose commercial use of the air base.

The Independent-Journal uncovered the nightmare problems of six persons exposed to rabies that health officials had belatedly diagnosed in horses.

Italians in Spoleta gave a standing ovation to Marin's Orchestra Piccola.

The Marin Municipal Water District revived its plans for a $23 million, staged plan to bring Russian River Water to Marin; after pressure from the county supervisors the plan was trimmed but still lost at the polls in November.

Cotati City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen quit shortly before an ordinance designed to enable the council to fire him was to take effect.

In a pioneering court test of whether voice-prints could be as reliable in identification as fingerprints, telephone company worker Stephen A. Chapter was acquitted on a charge of making telephoned threats to bomb his place of employment.

AUGUST

Beef almost vanished from Marin meat counters, as producers held it back for better prices.

Park Ranger Kenneth C. Patrick of Point Reyes National Seashore was murdered by apparent poachers. Five persons were arrested during investigation of the case; two San Franciscans eventually were charged with the murder.

John C. Coleman was named Novato police chief; Robert A. Switzer was appointed Cotati city manager.

A Marin court found that Black Point financier Robert W. Pollock owed $60.9 million to 20,000 investors in his financial empire.

Longtime Assemblyman William T. Bagley announced he would seek election to the state controller's post.

The Sikh ashram in San Rafael's Culloden Park area became the target of an anticommune ordinance, which still is marking time.

Despite a large turnout, the Mill Valley City Council denied the Old Mill Tavern a permit to resume live music. The same council imposed a $3.40 a month sewer charge on property owners.

Sausalito art dealer C. Frederick Faude donated a 15-acre hilltop parksite to the City of San Anselmo.

Marin's Prince Charles Pipe Band competed in Scotland.

SEPTEMBER

Three Cotati City Councilmen survived a recall attempt and two older councilmen immediately resigned; Harry E. Fassio and Laura Washburn were appointed to succeed Herbert T. Winter and Frank P. Dolinsek. The Corte Madera recall election aimed principally at stopping the Hahn shopping center, succeeded in ousting MayorHolmes S. Norville, and councilmen Edward W. Colthurst and Harold B. Wagstaff.

The Marin County Council of Mayors and Councilmen adopted a stand condemning county taxation of city residents for police and other services, as "double taxation."

Gasoline station owners claimed 90 per cent of Marin's station closed down in the first protest against frozen profits and rising costs.

Mignon McDonald, 90, ex-opera singer of Black Point, and Alfred Pinther, 79, Kentfield conservationist and grain dealer, were among the month's deaths.

Sonoma County supervisors banned X-rated movies at drive-ins.

New owners, the Larwin Corp., ordered the Smith Ranch Airport closed.

OCTOBER

Novato and other Marin residents joined a nationwide spurt of sightings of unidentified flying objects.

Carpenters began picketing Marin building projects, protesting thet federal orders were denying them a pay raise pledged before the wage-price freeze.

The Golden Gate Bridge was closed for the second time in a year, to permit relocation of heavy machinery that is still replacing the span's suspender ropes.

Tiburon city councilmen selected Robert L. Kleinert to succeed resigning Bert Balmer as city manager.

Holdout tenants at the old Hilarita public housing project won a respite from orders that they move to Marin City, while awaiting construction of the Tiburon Ecumencial Housing Association's new apartment project.

Sonoma County supervisors rezoned most of southern Sonoma County to a minimum residential lot size of 1.5 acres.

NOVEMBER

Voters dumped a $7.5 million bond issue to tie the Marin Municipal Water District into Russian River supplies, but a Novato bond issue for $4.5 million in flood control work was passed on the second try. The Marin County Grand Jury accused the water directors of defeating their own bond issue, which was denied by directors.

A hit-run driver killed San Anselmo bicyclist Harmen Evers, 40. San Rafael housewife Nina Fischer, 31, was shot to death by an attacker who left her body nude and bound in a San Pedro Point home.

Ronald Usher was named Mill Valley city manager, succeeding William Cunningham. San Rafael councilmen ousted Jorgen V. Lunding as planning commission chairman in dispute over the city's preparation of a new master plan.

J. Dietrich Stroeh was named general manager of the Marin Municipal Water District to replace William R. Seeger, who resigned in October.

Zen poet and philosopher Alan Watts died at 58 in his Muir Wood home.

DECEMBER

State correction officials clamped an all-out lockup on San Quentin and other prisons to halt a wave of violence.

Labor disputes were rife, with the butchers and meatcutters going out for almost three weeks against Safeway and Lucky stores with other chains locking their doors in retaliation. Kaiser employees struck the medical foundation's Bay Area hospitals, but like the butchers, reached a settlement before Christmas.

Corte Madera voters picked Jana G. Haehl, Joel A. Shawn and Albert A. Kostelic as town councilmen to replace Holmes S. Norville, Edward W. Colthurst and Harold B. Wagstaff, recalled in September in the dispute over the Hahn shopping center.

Filings closed with 68 candidates in Marin and Southern Sonoma providing a contest for each of the city council seats open in the March 5, 1974 election.

T. I. Properties Inc. sold the 100-acre site of its proposed San Quentin Peninsula apartment project for $5 million; the Marin County Housing Authority sold 30 acres of Marin City ridgelands for $1,058,000 for residential development.

Harlan Barry was named acting city manager in Larkspur, succeeding Kent B. Bathurst who resigned; Novato City Mgr. Charles A. Brown suddenly resigned, capping a year in which Novato lost every major appointive department head except its planning director.

Marin supervisors faced a Sonoma County lawsuit because they rejected Sonoma's appeal against a use permit for the Renaisance Pleasure Faire.

Weekend and holiday gasoline closing hampered motoring.

BUFFALO? — Meat almost vanished from meat counters in August as producers held it back to force higher prices. A customer in the Cala Foods market in Corte Madera dopes out the cuts of buffalo meat sold as a substitute during the squeeze on consumers.

Program Set On Saving Of Wildlife

Pop Music Called The New Opiate

MOSCOW (UPI) — The opiate of the people, it seems, is not religion any longer.

According to the Ukrainian youth newspaper Komsomolskoe Znamya, the new opiate is pop music.

It said authorities in the West protect even "scandalous" pop musicians "because they take thousands of young people away from their gloomy thoughts about the present and the future."

Government Needs To Control Itself

"If men were angels, no government would be necessary. If angels were to govern men, neither external nor internal controls on government would be necessary. In framing a government which is to be administered by men over men, the great difficulty lies in this: you must first enable the government to control the governed; and in the next place oblige it to control itself."

James Madison wrote that in the Federalist, during the time the states were considering ratification of the Constitution.

THE DIFFICULTY that Madison saw has persisted to this day. And as government has grown larger — at all levels, federal, state and local — its ability to control itself has weakened.

The year just ended brought realization of this governmental incapacity to many Americans. But corrective measures are yet to be taken. The year just started should be the time for them.

Watergate brought many Americans their first realization of the government's inability to control itself. What started out as an investigation of campaign wrongdoing soon brought to light existence of an apparatus of power within the government although nowhere provided for in its structure — an apparatus uncontrolled by the structure, ungoverned by the government.

This secret operation, sometimes cloaking repressive and illegal activities with the mantle of "national security," gave shocking evidence of government uncontrolled by itself. But there are other evidences all around us —and by no means only at the federal level.

BUREAUCRACY provides a multitude of examples. Bureaus promulgate regulations that affect us all, without public debate or any of the processes attendant on lawmaking under the Constitution. These regulations have the effect of laws. But they are more like royal decrees in the days of all-powerful monarchs. And they often are just as arbitrary.

As bureaus multiply, their regulations multiply — uncontrolled by the government that set up the bureaus. Legislative bodies — from city councils to the United States Senate — spend long hours in debate over supposedly needed laws, then turn administration of those laws over to hirelings not answerable to the public. And these hirelings make their own rules for enforcement, often departing far from the intent of the legislators. Their government controls the governed, but it does not control them.

IF ANGELS were to govern men, as Madison wrote, no controls would be necessary. But the best of office holders are less than angels. And the men with whom they surround themselves, and the bureaucrats they appoint to make and administer the rules, may be far less — as evidenced by Watergate.

The men of the constitutional convention in Philadelphia strove to create a government which would fulfill both requirements set forth by Madison. They did well. But 186 years later, we need major efforts to restore accountability to the elected governors: to enable the government to control itself.

We need to abolish the hidden governments-within-governments. We need to eliminate many unneeded bureaus, and to restrict the rule-making power of those retained. In today's language, we may call this "streamlining." But we need to be very wary of any "streamlining" that merely groups bureaus into larger bureaus, thus widening the arbitrary powers of non-elected office holders — and making government even more unable to control itself.

Assembly Should End Mis-Use Of Speakership

By EARL G. WATERS

With the legislature reconvening next Monday for the second half of the two-year session, there is yet an opportunity for the members to redeem themselves in the eyes of the public.

The scheme to keep the session running for two years was presented to the voters as a plan to improve legislative operations. Most observers now agree the first half of the experiment showed no measurable improvement or accomplishment.

Besides having little to which the lawmakers can point with pride as major legislative achievements to solve the multitude of social problems which confront the state, they have the stigma of their collossal failure to redistrict themselves.

And the recess taken to permit interim committee studies was not only interrupted by a special session but proved to be more junketing and playing than work.

AS THE ANNOUNCEMENTS of the various legislators indicate, too many are more interested in their personal ambitions for higher offices than in doing the job for which they were elected.

Foremost in the field of ambitious solons is no less a person than the Assembly speaker, Bob Moretti. He has dreams of being governor. But his record as speaker leaves much to be desired in a holder of that office, let alone a greater one.

Leaving aside the issue of his performance to date as speaker, his candidacy for governor now makes it incumbent that he should step down and relinquish the office to someone else.

There are many good men in the Assembly. Two of them, Willie Brown and Leo McCarthy, are mentioned prominently as successors to Moretti. Both are honest, hard-working, bright and reasonable men. Either one should make a success as speaker.

The urgency for Moretti to resign is caused by his declaration of intent to seek higher office. It should be crystal clear that he cannot do justice to his duties as speaker while at the same time being engaged in a statewide campaign for governor.

And there are serious questions about his use of staff. He not only opened offices for the speaker in Los Angeles, San Diego and San Francisco, but has greatly enlarged his personal staff. One would have to be most naive not to believe they are being used in behalf of his candidacy.

Then there is the unfair advantage over other candidates that is gained by holding the office of speaker. Publicity wise it is Moretti this and that in the headlines.

THIS RAISES the point of the organizational system of the Assembly. Once elected, the speaker is all-powerful. He alone names all committee members and all committee chairmen. He alone decides to which committees proposed legislation shall be referred. This is far too much power for one man.

The Assembly should adopt the plan used by the Senate. There an elected committee controls committee appointments and bill assignments. Power being diffused, no one person is Mr. Big.

The Assembly should act immediately not only to replace Moretti but to divest future speakers of the authority which makes such a person close to possessing dictatorial powers.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Thinks 'Plate Of Brasse' Is Merely Hoax

I am of the firm opinion that the Francis Drake brass plate is a hoax. Because I find it strange when Drake was a multi-linguist, a very fine English water-colourist, a translator of French, Latin and Spanish navigational books, charts and ephemeris, as well as a fine computer. All taught him by Sir Bernard Hawkins, his mentor.

Then, to have supposedly left a crude-cut plate on foreign shores without embodying the text in Spanish to further aggravate Phillip II's viceroy, who chased him up along the Pacific Coast, is a bit way out.

More so, for the reason that "El Draco" was knighted by the same Phillip II for service to the Spanish crown in the West Indies many years before Elizabeth I Regina, of England, gave him such honors on his return to the Hoe at Plymouth Harbour.

I now refer you to the California Historical Society's September 1962 issue and the statement by M. Leon Bocqueraz, wherein his temporary chauffeur discovered the so-called brass plate on the shore above Drake's Bay. Having myself worked for M. Bocqueraz, former president of the French-American Bank of San Francisco, and, knowing of his Gallic sense of humour, I would not for one moment hesitate to say that the plate could have been planted at Drake's Bay by him!

Further, I would suspect that the late Van Loben Sels, a former Governor-General of The Netherlands, M. Bocqueraz's most intimate friend, and Sels having been a friend to The British Crown, had his part of humor in the planting of the Drake Brass Plate. . .

Happy Memories Of Albert's Association

I want to express my sincere appreciation to the I-J and particularly to Watt Takeshita and Jim Kean for the very nice article published in the Dec. 26 issue about my retirement.

So many good wishes and congratulations have been received and so many old friendships revived by people who have read it that I'm sure many new areas of interest are being opened for me.

However, I shall often reflect upon and treasure the memory of the people and events that were a part of my 48 years in the Albert offices — with the I-J as our good neighbor just across the street.

Open Letters To President On How Not To Save Energy

WASHINGTON — Every national trade organization is now hard at work trying to convince the Energy Council and the president that it is essential its trade be given sufficient fuel to continue the manufacturing of its wares. One of the methods of pleading the case is to take out a full-page advertisement in a newspaper.

Here are the types of messages we can expect to read:

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

Dear Sir,

We, the Electric Pencil Sharpener Companies of America, urge you not to cut down on the use of electric pencil sharpeners during the present energy crisis. The electric pencil sharpener is absolutely essential to a healthy economy in this country, not to mention a strong defense abroad.

One of the reasons we are ahead of the Soviets is that our school children do not have to sharpen their pencils by hand.

Cut energy if you must, but do not deprive the American people of their electric pencil sharpeners at the very moment the Arabs are blackmailing us from abroad. Wouldn't they be pleased to know that their action to embargo oil resulted in every bureaucrat's pencil in this country breaking because no one could get a decent point!

THE SECOND LETTER is from the Electric Knife Association of America.

MR. PRESIDENT,

There are now 56,000,539 electric knives in the United States, or one for every family of four. These people would starve to death if the Energy Council goes ahead with its plans to ban the sale of electric knives during the crisis. Only a few Americans know how to carve a chicken, turkey or ham with a regular knife.

If you recall, in your inaugural address you urged the people not to ask what their government could do for them but what they could do for themselves. What they did, Mr. President, was go out and buy electric knives so their government wouldn't have to cut their meat for them. Are you now going to say to these people, "Put away your electric knives which I urged you to buy and cut your meat as they do in the underdeveloped countries of the Third World?"

THE FINAL SAMPLE letter might be from the Heated Swimming Pool Association.

PRESIDENT NIXON, ARE YOU LISTENING?

We, the 543,890,000 heated swimming pool contractors of America, urge you to give us special attention during the fuel shortage, not because it is in our interest — but because it is to the nation's advantage. We can prove that by allowing people to heat their pools you will be saving energy rather than wasting it. For every person in a heated swimming pool (the average time spent in one is an hour per day) this means one less person using an hour of electricity to watch television. Or to put it another way, the family who swims together in a heated pool means one less car on the highway burning gas. PEOPLE WITH HEATED SWIMMING POOLS STAY HOME. They also invite other people over, which means large savings in oil.

MR. PRESIDENT — DO NOT ELIMINATE HEATED SWIMMING POOLS AS A CONSERVATION MEASURE. As the owner of a heated swimming pool in San Clemente, you owe it to the country to keep its water warm.

1974, Los Angeles Times.

1974 May Be Year Of Decision In Many Areas, Here And Abroad

It may well be that 1974 becomes a year of decision.

So many things are hanging fire as the new year begins. Something definitive may happen about the U.S. presidency. The issues of war or peace in the Middle East should become clearer. The ways by which the industrialized nations, especially the United States, remake their lives and economies to cope with energy shortages should be worked out.

The unexpected is what usually happens; as anybody living through 1973 will attest, and so 1974 should have its share of surprises. But the great unsolved problems which greet the new year should certainly get much farther into the process of solution.

THE ISSUE of the presidency, of all the unfinished business, should come closest to definitive settlement. If it turns out that President Nixon is to remain in office, then the American people ought to put the past behind them and make the rest of his term as constructive as possible. If he leaves, the new beginning also can be constructive.

Obviously, neither peace in the Middle East nor a solution to energy problems is likely to be fully accomplished in a year. But very hopeful beginnings could be made. The Middle East depends on many complex elements: the purposes of the Soviet Union and its naval might surrounding great strategic oil reserves; the age-old fears and hatreds of the peoples of the Middle East; the flat conflict of fully defensible interests of the Arabs and the Israelis.

Some matters, also complex, are more nearly in the potential control of peoples, and especially of the American people. They are capable of evolving a national energy policy and of recasting their values to make it attainable.

For Europeans and the Japanese the problem is more difficult. Their dependence on Middle Eastern oil is so much greater than the American. Yet if even a tolerable beginning at peacemaking comes about, the oil-consuming nations ought to be able to negotiate agreements with the producers with which they can live.

FOR AMERICANS, the goal of virtual self-sufficiency in basic energy necessities is not unrealistic. But if the demands on energy are to continue rising at their post-World War II rate, the whole society enters the realm of the absurd. It is the same with the former rates of population increase, or the rate at which knowledge — measured by books published — has increased. For such things as knowledge to double every 15 years or so reaches a point of fantasy. Already the American birthrate has slowed down. The uses of energy can slow down, too, but it will be more difficult. A "no-growth" society would be intolerable. Moderate growth, surely, is attainable and desirable.

The U.S. Congress in 1974 has a tremendous agenda of unfinished tasks. Many of them will remain unfinished. The weaknesses of the executive branch have been compounded by ineffectiveness on Capitol Hill. If they are not significantly surmounted in 1974, the popular reaction against the "ins" in November's elections could be severe.

ELSEWHERE IN THE WORLD, the decisions of 1974 could be great. For Britain, a general election is probable. A popular mandate is necessary to direct the British government in its desperately needed efforts to escape from present troubles.

Of all nations, China might face the greatest decision if its geronotocracy — its government by 80-year-olders — comes to an end, as some day it will. Will the People's Republic continue on its anti-Russian line? Could it shift, with sensational consequences for the world balance of power? If friendship should again emerge between the two Communist giants, the Nixon-Kissinger policy would face grave challenge.

The general set of the world's economies might be 1974's most pervasive decision. Will the industrial societies surmount the threat of recession? Will economic health, not feverish expansion alone, be the prevailing climate? Everybody with memory of 1929 knows the world wide hazards.

The new year ought to be a time of deepest significance to the well-being of Planet Earth and its dwellers.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Nobody At Beginning Of 1973 Could Have Predicted Year's Events

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. — Looking back at what happened during 1973, only one word will fit: incredible. Anyone predicting last January the disgrace and resignation of the vice president, the threat of impeachment of the president, the indictment of White House officials, and the collapse of the stock market would have been quietly referred to a good psychiatrist.

The saddest of all might-have-beens is that in its catastrophic form it need not have happened. If President Nixon in late January or February had made a clean breast of it, admitting the degree of his own culpability and dismissing the most arrogant of the intriguers, the worst would have been over in a 10-day sensation. That is the considered view of those like Vice President Gerald R. Ford who have stood clear of the whole grisly business.

But to have come forward in that way would have meant a largeness of spirit the president has never shown. That may well be the core of the tragic circumstance in which we find ourselves.

SO NEEDLESS, TOO, was the amassing of $60 million for the re-election of the president. As he said in an interview three days before the 1972 election, the outcome was decided the day George McGovern was nominated on the Democratic ticket. Yet, the shameful shenanigans went on to the end.

Of all the evils brought to light today's predicament — the energy crisis, the slowing of the economy -- owes far more to the domestic failures of the first Nixon term. Except for sending a wordy message to Congress, little or nothing was done to face up to what was visible at least two years ago as an impending shortage of oil. The big oil companies ruled the market and controlled the restricted flow of petroleum into this country.

The rapid rise in the rate of inflation was given the same don't-look-now treatment. Drastic measures, such as increased taxation to mop up spending power, were ruled out, if they were considered at all. The goal was to create an atmosphere conducive to returning the president to office with the largest majority ever.

THE RECORD OF CONGRESS was hardly better. The Democrats, beset by their own divisions, not only failed to mount an effective opposition but, more important, failed to offer a constructive alternative. On election reform, shown in the orgy of spending to be of the first importance, the Democrats have been stuttering in confusion, with the Republicans only too happy to look on. The answer may not be federal financing of presidential elections; but failure to agree on drastic reform will be taken as an invitation to more big spending in anticipation of big favors.

With the record of the last 12 months only a bold prophet would hazard the prediction that we shall come through this bad patch in the new year. Even professional optimists in the administration, such as Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, are beginning to talk about a mild recession in '74.

What colors this dismal record with a profound irony is the fantastic advance in science and technology for creativity as well as for the weapons of annihilation. I am writing this at NASA's Ames Research Center where the course of Pioneer 10 spacecraft is being charted in its flight ultimately beyond the solar system. For the first time man is reaching beyond the stars to other worlds in an adventure undreamed of outside Jules Verne and his successors in science fiction.

Granted that we successfully master the worst of our earthly troubles, it is conceivable that history will record this as the era of Pioneer — the era when man first sent a message to those other spheres. It is a giant step little recognized as such with conflict dominating the news. But one must believe that it is only a first step.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Jan. 3, 1964

Arizona Sen. Barry M. Goldwater formally announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for president.

Paul M. Meredith was sentenced in Sonoma County Superior Court to five years to life in prison for kidnaping, robbery and assault — all committed in Sonoma the previous July while he was AWOL from Hamilton Air Force Base. He had already received a five years to life sentence for similar crimes in Marin during the same period.

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 3, 1954

It was disclosed that Air Marshal Alexander A. Novikov, former head of the Soviet Russian air force, had been sentenced to 15 years labor in Ural Mountains coal mines for conspiracy and moral depravity.

French fighters and bombers attacked coolie supply lines of Viet Minh forces near Dien Bien Phu, last French stronghold in Indochina.

JOSEPH DAVIS
Seeks treasurer's job

An Unknown Challenges Ivy Priest

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democratic attorney Joseph Graham Davis has announced his candidacy for state treasurer, criticizing current Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest for soliciting campaign contributions from banks.

Davis, a 31-year-old Los Angeles resident who is virtually politically unknown statewide, told a news conference yesterday that Mrs. Priest's solicitation of campaign contributions from banks and other lending institutions constituted "nothing less than a holdup."

Mrs. Priest, a Republican, whose office decides which financial institutions receive deposits of millions of dollars in state funds, has received contributions from banks in past campaigns and also in 1973.

Her supporters reported that at least $15,000 has been contributed by banks or their executives to her 1974 reelection campaign.

Mrs. Priest has denied any impropriety existed in accepting the contributions.

Davis, former aide to Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, said he has raised $60,000 so far for his campaign and would need about $400,000 to $500,000 to win the treasurer's post.

Sausalito Adds Policy Clause On Open Space

The Sausalito City Council last night added a policy statement on open space to the city's general plan after deleting several small parcels from a list of proposed green space for the city to buy. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 1.)

Recommended for purchase by the city are about 60 acres, including land on the South Ridge, Cypress Ridge, the Glen area and two parcels at Martin Luther King School that may be declared surplus by the Sausalito School District. Cost has been estimated at about $1.5 million, and the city is considering an open space bond election.

Deletions recommended by the planning commission were seven parcels near the Pacific Gas and Electric substation on the South Ridge and another parcel in the same area at 319 Sausalito Boulevard. The eight parcels total about three acres out of 30 proposed for open space on the South Ridge.

Planning Director Herb Case said the deleted parcels are choice building locations, so expensive they might make it harder to float a bond issue.

He said that the county assessor had estimated their value at $100,000, about one-third the value of the entire South Ridge.

Councilman Evert H. Heynneman complained, as some council members had done at previous meetings that the proposed open space purchases should have included land along the waterfront as well as in the ridgelands.

Case said that the citizens open space committee will study waterfront properties for possible preservation as open space.

The vote was 4-to-0 with Heynemann abstaining.

The Sausalito City Council also:

IMPACT REPORTS — Amended the ordinance on processing environmental impact reports to allow the planning commission to decide it wants to process a developer's applications and plans simultaneously with his impact report or if it wants to hold some parts of his application until a later date.

CHILDREN'S THEATER — Authorized spending $312 for a three-month children's theater program organized by the recreation commission.

CLOSED MEETING — Held a closed session to discuss possible hiring of a city employee.

NEXT MEETING — Agreed to meet next Tuesday evening with Supervisor Michael Wornum to discuss removal of the Sausalito drydocks.

Toll Road Sets Hike In Speed

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The New York State Thruway, longest toll road in the country, will increase its speed limit from 50 miles per hour to 55 mph to comply with new federal standards, the head of the Thruway Authority said yesterday.

The task of converting the signs along the 559-mile higway should be completed within one week, barring inclement weather, said R. Burdell Bixby, chairman of the authority.

"Now that Congress and the President have established a national standard we will certainly conform to it," Bixby said.

President Nixon yesterday signed into law a bill setting 55 mph as the general national speed limit.

Juice Fraud Costs Lives Of Two Soviets

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Soviet citizens who left the fruit out of the fruit juice they manufactured have been executed for fraud, the newspaper Babinski Rabochi said.

The newspaper, copies of which reached Moscow yesterday from the southern republic of Azerbaidzhan, said the men executed were the director and the accountant of a juice factory.

They were accused of selling a mixture of water, citric acid and sugar, and pocketing their $ 865,000 budget for the purchase of fruit.

The men, identified as Tejmur Akhmedov and Zaman Khakimov, kept up the fraud for two years, the newspaper said. The report said their appeal against their sentences was rejected and they were shot by a firing squad.

Change In State Law Restores Declaring For The Legislature

A little-noticed change in state law has restored a requirement that candidates for Assembly and Senate submit a declaration of intention to file for the June primary election.

The declaration must be filed with the county elections office between Jan. 28 and 5 p.m. on Feb. 6. Failure to file will bar candidacy in the election.

The requirement was restored by the 1971 Legislature, but too late to be effective until this year. It previously applied to legislative candidates from 1963 to 1969, when it was dropped from the law.

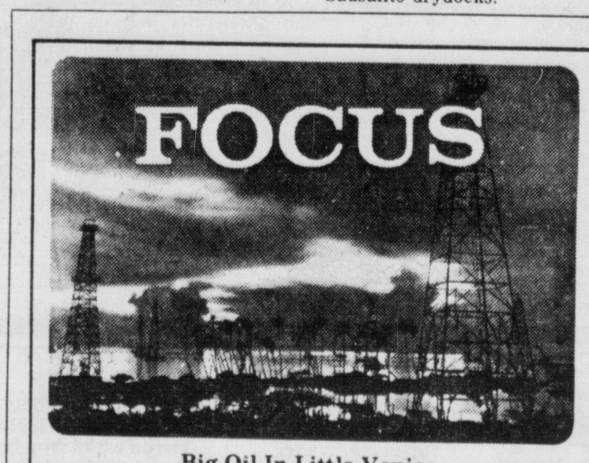

The filing also applies to candidates for judicial office, as it has for many years. In Marin, the only judicial seat on the ballot will be the superior court judgeship held by David Menary Jr.

In Sonoma County, the elections office said the seats held by Superior Court Judges Kenneth M. Eymann and Joseph P. Murphy Jr. and of Municipal Court Judge James E. Jones Jr. will be on the June ballot.

Because of confusion over election law, it still is unclear whether the ballot also will include the seats held by Municipal Court Judges Frank J. Passalacqua and Kiernan Hyland. Passalacqua was elected to a six-year term in 1970 from the now defunct Northern Judicial District, and the attorney general has been asked to advise whether he must run because the county's three judicial districts have been consolidated. It also was uncertain whether Hyland will have to run. He was appointed last March.

The law also requires candidates to pay the full filing fee when the declaration is submitted. The fees, not refundable if the candidate withdraws, are $211 for Senate and Assembly and $370 for superior court judge.

All candidates for the June primary, including those filing declarations of intention to file, must submit nomination papers to the elections office between Feb. 11 and March 8.

Big Oil In Little Venice

Venezuela, which means "Little Venice," got its name in 1499 when a Spanish explorer saw waterfront houses built on stilts. Today, in that same part of the country, oil derricks, rather than houses on stilts, line the shore. Little Venice is an oil giant. It is the world's third largest oil exporter, outranked only by Saudi Arabia and Iran. Crude oil and petroleum products account for 92 per cent of Venezuela's exports. Most of Venezuela's oil is found in the northwestern part of the county, on the shores of the lake shown here. The lake bears the same name as the nation's second largest city, Maracaibo, which lies about 300 miles west of Venezuela's capital.

DO YOU KNOW — What is Venezuela's capital and largest city?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — The world has roughly 3.9 billion people.

If Cars Guzzle Gas It's The Driver Who Pulls The Cork

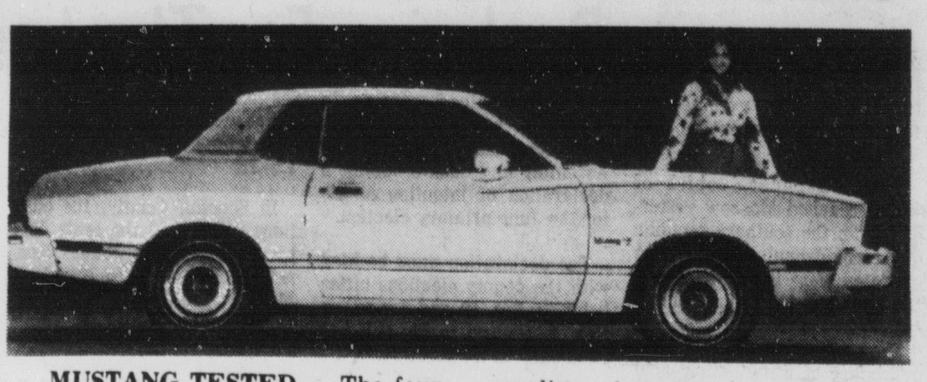

By CHARLES E. DOLE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BOSTON — The car with the high-luxury sheen and gas-guzzling image is hitting back at EPA.

The Environmental Protection Agency tags Cadillac with a high gas-consumption rate of 8 to 10.4 miles to a gallon. But that's only part of the story, insist the people who build and sell the epitome of the large, luxurious American-built car.

"It all depends on who does the driving, where he drives, and how fast he drives," says Peter Fuller of the Cadillac Automobile Co. of Boston. "When the government wants us to put a sticker on the window saying that the car gets just 8 or 9 miles per gallon, it is misleading everyone," he complains.

Dealers are clearly distressed by a sudden falloff in sales. What many of them would like to see is a smaller version of the Cadillac, a project that has been in he works for some time. Dealers complain that in a poll taken several years ago by the company, a big majority of them voted for a small luxury car.

MUSTANG TESTED — The four-cylinder Ford Mustang II, according to government sources gets 15 to 16.5 miles per gallon of gasoline, but the car delivers much more during careful driving in a test.

Fifteen months ago the General Motors division seemed eager to talk about its upcoming cut-down car. Yet last September it hardly wanted to mention it.

The EPA lists Cadillac in the 5,500-pound class of cars along with the Checker Aerobus, a long list of station wagons, the International Travelall, and the Oldsmobile Toronado. In other words, it's in big company — and it should be.

With an engine hovering around 500 cubic inches and a four-barrel carburetor, all the elements for high gas consumption are at hand.

Expectedly, in urban start-and-stop travel, mileage is poor and indeed ranks within the EPA ball park.

But what about on the highway where speeds are more constant, and especially with the lower speed limits mandated by government to try to conserve critically short fuel?

I found that in a 76-mile circuit, about 70 of it on the Massachusetts Turnpike with the cruise control button set at 50 miles an hour, the Coupe De Ville gave a high 17.7 m.p.g.

In fact, the fuel-mileage figures were not too much lower than those for the four-cylinder Mustang II, a car in the 3,000-pound weight class. The EPA charges the Mustang delivers 15 to 16.5 miles to a gallon of fuel.

Yet in a 65-mile-a-day commute to Boston over the past week, I've been getting a consistent 19.5 m.p.g. Ford claims about 20. On a 300-mile expressway trip at a 50-mile-an-hour clip, the car delivered 22 to 23 miles to a gallon. In a 20-mile run, using extreme care with the accelerator and at a speed of 35 miles an hour, the Mustang II gave an amazing 29.6 miles to a gallon of fuel.

All of this just shows the extreme variability in gasoline mileage. Even the very heavy, long-wheel-base, luxury-loaded vehicle such as Cadillac provides a far better account of itself under carefully controlled conditions.

To maximize fuel economy, Les Viland, an American Motors engineer, is one of the best persons to ask. An expert on carburetion, in 1960 Viland set a stock-car record of 51.28 miles to a gallon by using a car equipped with a carburetor he designed.

During 20 years of competition in economy runs and performance trials, he has won 17 titles for AMC. I rode a segment of a cross-country economy run a little more than a year ago when he averaged 26.5 miles per gallon in a brand-new 1973 Gremlin. The route covered 3,300 miles.

GAS GUZZLER? — The Environmental Protection Agency says the Cadillac, such as this Coupe DeVille, consumes gasoline at a high rate, at eight to 10.4 miles to a gallon, but careful testing shows the DeVille gives up to 17.7 miles per gallon.

How does he do it? Here's what he recommends:

Attitude is an important element of economy driving.

Keep a constant pressure on the accelerator but no more pressure than is required to maintain a steady speed.

Avoid jack-rabbit starts. A car uses more fuel to build up speed and momentum.

Study traffic conditions ahead to avoid unnecessary stops. In other words, anticipate traffic-light changes and adjust the speed accordingly.

Turn off the engine if you're going to stand for more than a minute. Idling requires a richer fuel mixture. Too, don't race the engine while the car is stopped.

Accelerate gradually when climbing a hill. At an altitude of a mile or more, have the carburetor adjusted for a leaner mixture to conserve fuel.

Have the car prepared for winter-type driving.

Check the tire pressure frequently, an act rarely performed by the average American motorist. Underinflation increases the rolling resistance of the car, which can have a marked effect on fuel usage. Too, radial tires will provide a real fuel advantage to the motorist.

Drive courteously. The thoughtful driver invariably is a driver whose actions provide better fuel economy.

"It's largely a matter of staying alert, exercising good judgment in varying traffic situations, and in keeping the car properly maintained," declares Viland.

New Zoning Is Asked By Larkspur Council

Unable to fit a proposed regional shopping center neatly into Larkspur with existing zoning rules, the city council decided last night to create a new zoning district.

The Rouse Co. of Maryland and Connoly Development Co. of Oakland plan a $55 million shopping center between Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Corte Madera Creek in the vicinity of Bon Air, presently zoned only for commercial use.

That limited zoning, Planning Director John E. Roberto told councilmen, would frustrate open space objectives of the city's new general plan. On the other hand, he said, the only other zoning available under present ordinances, "planned development district," was too unlimited, permitting every kind of development from residential to industrial.

Consequently, the city council directed the staff to come up with something — to be called a "planned commercial district" — tailored to serve both the requirements of the general plan and plans for development of the shopping center on the 65-acre Schultz property.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

ZONING — Added knife, tool and other instrument repair and sharpening services to uses permitted under commercial zoning.

RECORDS — Delayed adopting an ordinance requiring property buyers be furnished with a record of all permit restrictions, wiring, plumbing or sewer deficiencies, remodeling permits and the like on any building purchased, for a proposed fee of $40. Councilmen asked city attorney to clarify city liability for such records.

AIRPLANE — Continued the use of Bundy Field for flying model airplanes another six months.

STOP — Allowed a stop sign at William and Monte Vista avenues to remain permanently after a 90-day trial.

ANIMALS — Directed acting City Mgr. Harlan Barry to draw up city ordinances for the number of dogs which can be kept in a home, allowing ducks, rabbits and other children's pets to be kept in homes after a permit is obtained and a leash law for dogs.

ENERGY — Was told the council's energy conservation committee will report next month on conservation recommendations for the city.

CLAIMS — Rejected a $25,000 personal injury claim of Germaine Pardon who fell on a city sidewalk and a $168.74 claim of Frank Powell who was injured when his bicycle had a blowout on a city bicycle path.

FIREMAN — Appointed Richard Kohler as a permanent fireman.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to Jan. 16 at 8 p.m. in city hall.

Robber Jumps Into Police Car

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (UPI) — The gunman in a stocking mask dashed from the convenience store he had robbed and jumped into a nearby car, expecting his accomplice to race him away from the scene.

But instead, startled detectives approached the automobile and arrested Bruce Gioletti, 24, who they said had jumped into their unmarked police car by mistake.

Dade County detectives said while Gioletti was in the convenience store, they had approached his getaway car and were routinely interrogating its driver, Bruce Newell, 22, because he looked "suspicious."

Fishing Pact

RABAT, Morocco (UPI) — Morocco and Spain have signed an agreement ending a months-long dispute over fishing rights off the Moroccan coast, Spanish industry sources said today.

Blackwell Stamp Issuance Delayed

GENEVA, N. Y. (UPI) — The Postal Service has delayed until Jan. 23 the issuance of an 18-cent stamp honoring Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, the first woman to receive a degree in medicine in the United States.

The issue was to have been made today in this upstate community, where she received the degree 125 years ago. However, postal officials decided on the delay to have the commemorative issue coincide with the anniversary of her graduation on Jan. 23, 1849, from Geneva Medical College. That institution eventually became Hobart and William Smith Colleges.

The stamp is intended primarily for parcel post and heavy mail.

Developer Of The Sleek Cord Automobile Is Dead

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — E.L. Cord, developer of the Cord automobile, head of mining interests in Nevada, real estate holdings in California and radio stations in both states, died of a heart attack at his home yesterday. He was 79.

Cord was most famous for his association with the automobile which bore his name. The early model of the front-wheel drive car marked by a unique low silhouette, "coffin nose" and disappearing headlights was the Cord L-29 in 1928. But the classic was the 810 in 1936-37.

The Cord of 1937 was supercharged and Ab Jensen set a number of speed and performance records in it that lasted until the 1950s.

Only 3,000 810s were built. They sold for from $2,100 to $3,000 compared to $15,000 for the Dusenberg.

Cord failed, however, in his attempt to bring the Auburn, Dusenberg and Cord cars through the Depression. The failure of the Cord was generally blamed on the fact that it was ahead of its time, few mechanics were for it and the public had little faith in the company.

His holdings included the Auburn Automobile Co., the Dusenberg and Limousine Cos., and Stimson and Lycoming (aircraft) Cos.

He manufactured early largescale airplane engines and was connected with Hughes and Boeing in building early "super-planes" carrying up to 50 passengers.

Cord's real estate holdings included those in Malibu and Beverly Hills and a 3,400-acre ranch in Dyer, Nev.

He owned tungsten mines in California's Owens Valley and silver mines in Nevada.

From 1931-62 he had interests in KFAC radio in Los Angeles and he owned radio-television station KCRL in Reno when he died.

In 1934 Cord hired armed guards and police protection for his two young sons who were reportedly threatened with kidnaping. The Cords suddenly left for Europe and the family later denied threats prompted the trip.

Cord was born July 20, 1894 in Warrensburg, Mo. He never graduated from school. He offered this advice to youngsters starting out:

"Knock around for a couple of years after you get out of high school. Eight or 10 different jobs in different locations because that's the only way you'll find out where you fit so you can enjoy your work and make a success of it at the same time. Then go back to college and really learn," he said.

Judge Agrees To Postpone Trial Of Mitchell, Stans Once Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — Emphasizing "this is the last false start we are going to have in this case," a federal judge agreed to postpone for the third time yesterday the obstruction of justice trial of former Cabinet officers John Mitchell and Maurice Stans.

U.S. District Court Judge Lee P. Gagliardi, who will preside at the trial, granted the motion for a delay on behalf of Mitchell's lawyer, Peter Fleming, who is engaged in a major stock fraud trial in Oklahoma City.

Without setting an actual trial date, Gagliardi said the proceeding would begin within two or three days of the Oklahoma case, which a representative of Fleming's law firm estimated would go to a jury around Feb. 15.

The Mitchell-Stans trial had been scheduled to begin next Wednesday. Gagliardi now has granted the defense three delays for the trial, which first was scheduled to begin early last September.

"This is the last false start we are going to have in this case," Gagliardi said. "As soon as Fleming is finished with his engagement in Oklahoma City this case is going to start."

Mitchell, the former attorney general, and Stans, the former commerce secretary, have been accused of attempting to influence a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of New Jersey financier Robert L. Vesco in exchange for a $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's 1972 reelection campaign.

Vesco, a codefendant in the case, has been a fugitive in Costa Rica and now the Bahamas since the indictment was filed last May 10. The Bahamian government recently turned down a U.S. request for extradition.

A fourth defendant, Harry Sears, a prominent New Jersey Republican and Nixon fund raiser, will be tried later.

At a pretrial conference yesterday, Stans' attorney, Walter Bonner, disclosed he recently had served a subpoena on the White House for three tape recordings which, he said, could have a bearing on the case.

Bonner said witnesses before the Senate Watergate committee have testified to the existence of taped conversations in which President Nixon, his former counsel, John W. Dean III, and his former chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman, allegedly discussed matters concerning the Vesco case.

Dean is a coconspirator, but not a defendant, in the Mitchell-Stans case, and was expected to be a key witness.

A scheduled mid-October start of the trial was delayed because of a controversy over another White House tape. Last month, the White House turned over to Gagliardi a recording of a Feb. 28 conversation between the President and Dean in which Nixon was said to have asked whether his brother, Edward, had been involved in the Vesco affair.

Gagliardi has listened to the recording in private, but has not yet ruled on whether he would allow it to be admitted as evidence in the trial.

Five Missing Fishermen Are Found Alive

HONOLULU (UPI) — Five fishermen, missing in their sampan since Nov. 12, were found by a Japanese ship about 1,400 miles southwest of Honolulu, the Coast Guard reported today.

All five men were reported to be in very good condition.

The Japanese vessel Hokusan Maru No. 8 found the 47-foot sampan Kamokila with the five aboard. The skipper of the missing vessel was identified as Lambert Kanakaole, of Hawaii, and the navigator as Gale Middleton of Philadelphia. The other crewmen were Ed Yamamoto of Hawaii; Don Van Cleave, Albany, N.Y., and Frederick Monroe, Altamont, N.Y.

The boat left Honolulu Oct. 25 headed for Christmas Island on a fishing expedition.

Paroled Slayer Held In Robbery

WEST SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) - A paroled murderer from Oklahoma was held today in connection with a $2,800 robbery of a Crocker National Bank branch.

O. L. Riddel, 63, was arrested yesterday just minutes after the holdup. He was accused of bank robbery and auto theft.

Deputies said the robbery money was found in a car Riddel was driving. A gun also was recovered.

Authorities said the auto had been reported stolen Dec. 24 from an Oklahoma City halfway house where Riddel had been staying since his release from prison.

During the bank robbery, deputies said, the suspect brandished a gun, approached two women tellers and shouted, "Give me your money."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

One-Treatment Gonorrhea Cure May Turn Out To Be A Godsend

A one-treatment cure for gonorrhea, now being used by some doctors, may prove to be a godsend for the estimated 30 per cent of victims that fail to return to the doctor for a second or third "shot." It is easy for a man to recognize that he is not cured because the discharge continues. But a woman may never develop symptoms indicating that she needs additional treatment.

Gonorrhea's "reservoir" of asymptomatic women is a primary obstacle to control of the disease. The "Pill" may prevent veneral disease. If anything, by encouraging promiscuity, it may increase its spread. Condoms eliminate this possibility.

PENICILLIN HAS always been the favorite antibiotic for treating gonorrhea. But when some gonococcal strains developed a resistance to the drug, it became necessary to increase the dosage or substitute another antibiotic. Adding the gout remedy, probenecid to procaine penicillin increased the concentration of penicillin in the tissues by delaying the excretion of the drug. Remedies also are available for those who prefer pills to needles. At present, spectinomycin is the single dose treatment most often recommended. A preventive vaccine is also in the making.

According to HEW estimates, there are 2½ million cases of gonorrhea each year. In the past, the physician reported the disease to the Public Health Service. It then contacted the person or persons suspected of passing it on.

HOWEVER, THE private physicians who see 75 per cent of all VD cases do not trust the system and as a result only 15 per cent of the cases are reported to the health department. Case finding cost millions. This means that the Public Health Service must have the staff to visit, phone, or send a card to those who have been exposed to the disease. Accidents in reporting could ruin a person's career or shatter families.

Perhaps the money could be allocated for public education, better treatment facilities, improving the education of medical students on VD, and well-organized research. Case finding has its limitations. Most victims do not wish to discuss their clandestine activities or be treated as pariahs or social outcases.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquires will not be answered.

HEART STRAIN

A reader writes: What is the cause of congestive heart failure?

REPLY

When the normal heart is under a strain, the old ticker meets the challenge and works harder. But when a valve is too narrow, the muscle is degenerating, or an irregularity of the beat exists, the organ is handicapped and may not be able to meet its obligations. This is particularly true when an ailing heart is asked to do too much or the individual has a cold or another coexisting disease. Heart failure occurs when the organ cannot deliver enough blood; the individual becomes short of breath and develops dropsy.

SEBORRHEIC DANDRUFF

A reader writes: Can eating too many sweets cause dandruff?

REPLY

Not as a rule. Foods that aggravate acne may aggravate the oily type of dandruff.

LIVER INFECTION

A reader writes: Does a person become immune to the virus that causes hepatitis after one attack?

REPLY

Yes; recurrences are rare. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on viral hepatitis.

BEER AND ULCER

A. L. writes: A few months ago I was operated on for a perforated ulcer. Milk is my beverage at each meal. Would it be save to have a glass of beer a few times a week? My own doctor is out of town at a special seminar.

REPLY

Wait until he returns. He may have picked up a few additional reasons why alcoholic beverages are not recommended for persons recovering from ulcers.

DENTED CONTAINERS

A reader writes: Is there any danger in eating foods from dented cans?

REPLY

No, provided they are not dented "clear through." Beward of cans that bulge because of gas on the inside due to contamination and fermentation (botulism).

NODULAR THYROID

J. L. K. writes: I would like information on thyroid nodules.

REPLY

Nodules on the thyroid are relatively common. These tumors may or may not be malignant. Most cancers of the thyroid gland are single, hard tumors that enlarge rapidly.

HYPNOTISM, OBESITY

A reader writes: Do some doctors treat obesity with hypnotism?

REPLY

Possibly, but none that we'll recommend. I assume they tell their hyponotized patients, "You'll get deathly ill if you eat pork chops, gravy, butter, cream pies, pastry, or drink martinis." The advice may or may not work, depending on the individual. The hypnotist would do the fattie a favor if he could convince him to eat properly.

MARIN'S NEW YEAR ARRIVES IN A CLOUD OF WHITE

Snow which fell today on Mount Tamalpais drew people like a magnet (above), filling the Pan Toll parking lot atop the mountain. Despite road closures on the mountain, snow aficionados came in droves, according to rangers, bringing with them toboggans and sleds. The cold white stuff even inspired David Lund of Mill Valley (below) to build a snowman atop his pickup truck. Others threw snowballs and rolled into the snow. (Another photo, page 1)

State Will Put On Push For International Trade

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California will put on a big push this year to increase international trade by making the world more aware of its products and eliminating the mystic of foreign bartering, a state official said yesterday.

To spearhead the promotion program, the state Department of Commerce's Division of International Trade will add an employee to be the state's emissary for manufactured and naturally processed products. The position will have a top salary of $22,000 per year.

David Putman, manager of the division of international trade, said California has slipped as a leading exporter of manufactured and agricultural commodities.

In addition to the state salesman, the division is producing publications outlining export service information, including the how's where's and when's of foreign house broking, banking and transportation abroad.

"This should eliminate some of the mystic in international business," Pitman said.

During the first three quarters of 1973 California exported $4.6 billion in products, compared to the United States' $50 billion. During the first nine months of 1973, the state increased its exports by $600 million over 1972.

The division also hopes to open state offices in the major trade centers of the world. Pitman said in the past the state had offices in Frankfurt and Tokyo.

"We hope to eventually open these again," Pitman said.

In addition, Pitman said, it is also hoped the new employee will be able to travel to foreign events to identify California as the seventh largest producer in the world.

Pitman said the initial push for greater foreign trade will be to inform the producers and the manufacturers in the state that foreign markets exist. Then, the division will continue to inform foreign buyers of California's products and then coordinate the bartering efforts.

James Stern, secretary of the Agriculture and Services Agency said California's ability to deal in foreign markets is vital to the state and the nation.

"Agricultural products are vital to California because it is a principal commodity," Stern said. "Such products are becoming an increasingly large factor in world trade and could mean a gain for the United States in the balance of trade."

California is the leading agricultural state in the nation and is No. 2 in manufactured products.

Chamberlain To Play F. Scott Fitzgerald

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Chamberlain is back on the home screen playing an American for the first time since the "Dr. Kildare" series went off the air.

Chamberlain will be seen in "F. Scott Fitzgerald and 'The Last of the Belles,'" playing the role of the writer. Blythe Danner costars as Zelda in the two-hour show on ABC next monday.

The program traces the return of the Fitzgeralds from France, where he spent the summer "in drinking and general unpleasantness," to their home outside Wilmington, Del.

Woven into their tragic lives is one of Fitzgerald's short stories, "The Last of the Belles." It is a fictional version of how Fitzgerald and Zelda Sayre met.

"I didn't know a lot about Fitzgerald, except what everyone knew," Chamberlain said. "I hadn't read much of his works, except 'The Great Gatsby' and 'Tender Is The Night.' It came up so fast I didn't have much time to get through as much of his writing as I would have liked. I read his biography and some correspondence."

The actor said, "He was a fascinating man. So lucid, so hard to pin down because of all the illusions he seemed to live. I don't think he could ever cope with not being young any more. He and Zelda engaged in frantic acting to create an illusion of youth."

After the cancellation of "Dr. Kildare" in 1966, Chamberlain set out to change his image from a clean-cut American youth to classical actor.

"I wanted to change my image, not only in the public's mind, but in my own," he said. "I lived with 'Kildare' for five years and it becomes a part of you. I had a battle to break away from that and recreate myself in the audience's mind."

Chamberlain, 36, has succeeded admirably, with such productions as "Hamlet," "Richard II" and "Cyrano de Bergerac" and such films as "Petulia," "The Music Lovers," "Lady Caroline Lamb" and the upcoming "Three Musketeers."

A reprise of his stage production of "Hamlet" for the Hallmark Hall of Fame in 1970 was his big re-entry into the American scene after four years spent mainly in England. Last year he was seen as the Duke of Windsor on ABC's "Portrait" series.

This year he hopes to make three films, two of them contemporary, and has plans for two television projects. He is trying to put together a TV production of "Cyrano," which he recently perfomred on the stage in Los Angeles.

Ex-POW Weds Wife Of POW Declared Dead

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A former Vietnam prisoner of war who met his bride-to-be when she asked him about her husband who had been shot down over Hanoi, was married to her New Year's Eve.

Air Force Lt. Col. Ramon Horinek, 41, was on a speaking tour in Salina, Kan., when he met 35-year-old Judi Fitton.

The then Mrs. Fitton asked Horinek, who was a POW from 1967 until last March, if he had any news of her husband, Lt. Col. Crosley Fitton.

Fitton was shot down over Hanoi in February 1968 and was officially declared dead last November.

Reports Due Tonight On Developments

Environmental impact reports for the Schoonmaker and Whiskey Springs development proposals in Sausalito will be reviewed by the planning commission at 8 p.m. today in council chambers on Bridgeway.

The $40 million Schoonmaker plan includes commercial, residential and water-oriented development on 38 acres in the Marinship area. Whiskey Springs proposes residential and commercial construction on about 14 acres on Bridgeway at Nevada Street.

Fuel Crisis Is Called A Manipulation

NEW YORK (UPI) — America's energy crisis is "the master manipulation of the 20th Century," and will disappear in the spring, according to the Gallagher President's Report, a weekly business news letter.

The publication said the energy crisis was masterminded by the $100 billion U.S. oil industry to assure its continued dominant role in the country's economy.

The Report said the energy crisis benefited big business by:

Buying time for the oil giants to develop long-range diversification strategies.

Giving Detroit's automakers the opportunity to lay off thousands of workers in preparation for conversion to smaller cars.

Enabling the petrochemical industry to consolidate its position and tighten credit terms.

Creating competitive weakness abroad against U.S. exports.

$16 Million Buoy Purchase Eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy has spent about $16 million on emergency communication buoys that can't be used and Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., has asked for an investigation of possible "collusion between the Navy and the contractor."

He said he has asked the General Accounting Office to investigate the collusion possibility between the Navy and Collins Radio Co. of Dallas, Tex., because the Navy went ahead with the buoy program even after it realized the buoys were too big to be used.

Pentagon spokesmen had no immediate comment on the collusion charge, but the Navy did acknowledge the basic facts laid out by Aspin were presented during House Appropriations Committee hearings last year.

Gas Is Cut Off To Business Firms

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Gas & Electric Co. has cut off natural gas supplies to 288 large industrial customers to assure enough fuel for uninterrupted service to commercial and residential users during the current Northern California cold spell, a spokesman for the utility said.

The 288 firms whose supply has been curtailed are among 1,234 PG&E customers who have special contracts. The contracts give them lower rates but require them to turn to standby fuel sources when other demands on the utility's capacity make that necessary.

Clocks To Be Reset Sunday Across U.S.

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Most Americans set their clocks an hour ahead at 2 a.m. Sunday as almost all of the country goes on daylight saving time in an effort to save energy. The country will remain on daylight saving time until October 1975.

Under the legislation passed by the Congress, no mainland state is exempted from daylight saving time, though both Alaska and Hawaii are exempted. But 14 mainland states that now have two time zones, such as Indiana, may exempt one of the zones from the faster time. State legislatures could also exempt their states, or the state could ask the federal government for an exemption.

So far, only Arizona has asked for an exemption for the entire state, citing a "hardship" provision. Arizona Gov. Jack Williams, in a wire to Washington, said Arizona is in the western section of the Mountain Time Zone and daylight saving time would not result in saving energy. Williams contended that Arizona's hottest period is in the afternoon and DST would mean trading an hour of lower energy use in the morning for an hour of higher energy use in the evening, especially during the summer with air conditioning.

Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus last week issued a proclamation exempting the southern half of Idaho from DST, thus placing the entire state on Pacific Daylight time. Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon asked that Malheur County in eastern Oregon, the only Oregon county on Mountain time, be exempt from the change, but only if an exemption is also granted to southern Idaho.

A resolution was introduced in the Nebraska legislature to place the entire state on Mountain time. And in Michigan, several legislators have asked Gov. William Milliken to petition for an exemption.

The government of Ontario, Canada, is also expected to adopt daylight saving time because of pressure from business and industry that have close links to the United States.

In some spots, local school boards, under pressure from parents fearful of their children waiting for school buses before daylight, have delayed the opening hour of schools.

In Knoxville, Tenn., for example, schools will open and close half an hour later than under standard time.

Dr. Roy Wallace, Knoxville's school superintendent, said, "We know many students will be riding to school with parents as they go to work, and by moving the schedule only 30 minutes, we believe this will create the least hardship for all concerned."

A similar plan has been adopted in Pinelas County, Fla., where assistant Superintendent Dan McAuliffe said, "the only reason we are doing this is that we don't want those kids, particularly the elementary ones, to have to stand and wait in the pitch dark."

In Raleigh, N.C., starting time was set back by an hour, but protesting parents complain such a plan would leave children at home alone in the morning.

Plans for opening schools later are also under discussion in many other sections of the country, from Utah to Boston.

James Earl Ray Fails In Halting His Transfer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — James Earl Ray, confessed slayer of Martin Luther King Jr., has failed in his effort to block his transfer from the state prison to a federal penitentiary.

U.S. District Court Judge L. Clure Morton yesterday denied Ray's petition for a temporary restraining order blocking the move.

However, state corrections officials said they have not yet set a date for the transfer, pending receipt of an opinion on the move from the state attorney general's office.

Morton ruled that he did not have the authority to interfere with the state penal system and that he could not lawfully restrain state officials from transferring Ray.

The judge also said Ray's petition failed to make factual allegations concerning the transfer.

The petition, filed by Ray at the same time he filed a $500,000 damage suit alleging false imprisonment for a crime "he didn't commit," said the transfer to a federal institution would affect his health.

Ray also claimed federal officials wanted to place him in a facility he said was "little more than an asylum."

Federal officials said Ray, when transferred, would spend 60 days at the facility in Springfield, Mo., but insisted that stay was routine for all prisoners entering the federal prison system and involved medical and psychological testing.

The transfer was requested last month by state Corrections Commissioner Mark Luttrell and officials in the U.S. Bureau of Prisons have since said they approve of the move.

A corrections department spokesman said the move would allow Ray to lead a more normal life. Ray currently is in "administrative segregation" — solitary confinement—at the state prison.

The spokesman also said that while no threats had been received against Ray, there was always danger of attack from other inmates because of the nature of his crime.

Rail Line Abandonment Rules May Ease

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has drafted legislation that would allow railroads to abandon, almost automatically, unprofitable branch lines —estimated at more than 10 per cent of all U.S. rail mileage.

The legislation also would provide $2 billion in loan guarantees to upgrade railroad track, stations and freight cars on profitable lines, and an additional $35 million in grants to establish a nationwide computer system to keep track of freight cars.

The provisions are contained in an ominibus bill, to be submitted to Congress shortly. It would relax government regulation of rail abandonment and rates, prohibit discriminatory state and local taxation of railroad property and, in general, overhaul government regulation of and policy toward railroads.

Included is an overhaul of the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC), which has been strongly criticized for its bureaucratic slowness in railroad regulation.

The legislation is the sequel to a bill signed by President Nixon yesterday that would merge and upgrade the best lines of seven bankrupt northeastern and midwestern railroads —mostly freight—into one system.

The draft bill is aimed at all the country's railroads including the profitable ones of the South and West.

The abandonment provision would require the ICC to allow abandonment of any line which was not producing sufficient revenue to cover long-run operating costs.

States and local governments would be allowed to keep such a line running by subsidizing it, and any other railroad or qualified individual would be allowed to buy the line to keep it running.

The Federal Railroad Administration estimates that approximately 21,000 miles of the present 205,000 route miles of U.S. railroad line lose money for the railroad that operates them. However, this mileage accounts for less than 1 per cent of total rail freight, and the FRA says this rate can be more efficiently handled by truck.

The legislation also:

Would allow railroads, in most cases, to lower rates automatically as long as the rate for a particular product does not fall below the cost of hauling that product. The ICC has been criticized for keeping rail rates artificially high.

Would prohibit discriminatory taxation by state and local governments after three years. The FRA estimates railroads lose $55 million annually because of artificially high taxes.

Would overhaul government criteria for figuring railroad revenue and losses.

Would require government agencies to pay the same rate as private shippers except in wartime. The government now can negotiate lower rates for its rail traffic.

Notre Dame Is Named College Football Champion

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The fighting Irish of Notre Dame are the national champions of college football.

By defeating regular-season leader Alabama 24-23 in the Sugar Bowl Monday night, Notre Dame vaulted from third place to first in the final Associated Press rankings announced today and thereby captured its first national championship since 1966.

The Irish won comfortably over Ohio State, which jumped from fourth to second by trouncing Southern California 42-21 in the Rose Bowl, and Oklahoma, which was ineligible for a bowl trip and slipped from second to third. Oklahoma finished second the last two seasons.

Notre Dame received 33 first-place votes and 1,128 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Ohio State earned 11 first-place ballots and 1,002 points while Oklahoma got the other 16 first-place votes and 965 points.

"Whew, am I glad to hear that news," Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian told the AP when the final rankings were relayed to him last night. "I was sweating like hell. I was worried because of the press that came out of the West Coast after the Rose Bowl. Woody Hayes was making all kinds of statements."

Alabama finished fourth with 834 points. Penn State, one of only three unbeaten and untied teams in the country, was fifth after a 16-9 Orange Bowl triumph over Louisiana State. The Nittany Lions pulled 709 points in reversing positions with No. 6 Michigan, which received 702 points.

The Wolverines tied Ohio State 10-10 and shared the Big Ten title with the Buckeyes, but Ohio State was chosen as the league's Rose Bowl representative by a vote of the 10 athletic directors.

Rounding out the final Top Ten are No. 7 Nebraska, a 19-3 victor over Texas in the Cotton Bowl, and No. 8 Southern Cal, the 1972 champion; while Houston, which walloped Tulane 47-7 in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, finished in a tie for ninth place with Arizona State, a 28-7 winner over Pittsburgh in the Fiesta Bowl.

The Second Ten consists of Texas Tech, UCLA, Louisiana State, Texas, Miami of Ohio, North Carolina State, Missouri, Kansas and Tennessee, with Maryland and Tulane tied for 20th.

Since 1966, Notre Dame's only serious run at a national title came in 1970 when the Irish ended Texas' 30-game winning streak in the Cotton Bowl and finished second to Nebraska in the ratings.

This marks Notre Dame's sixth national championship since the AP rankings began in 1936, more than any other school. The other titles came in 1943, 1946, 1947, 1949 and 1966.

Suyderhoud—Guest Of A President

Water skier Mike Suyderhoud was back home in Petaluma for the holidays, but, the days preceding, he was guest of a president and for Mike it was a very thrilling experience.

Suyderhoud and Lisa St. John of Fall River Mills, Shasta County, both of them champion skiers, spent two weeks in the Philippines as guests of President Ferdinand E. Marcos. They were there for a water ski tournament with some of the southeast Asian countries trying to get their feet wet, so to speak, in the sport of water skiing.

The tournament was just part of it. Mike spent some time with the president aboard his private yacht. So you get an idea of the size of that yacht, Mike said they hoisted five ski boats on the boat and took off to get in some private skiing with the president.

The 57-year-old president is a good skier, reported Mike, and was able to get up on one ski after some coaching from the former world title holder.

"The security was really something," said Mike. There were always helicopters around and "every time he got in the water so did a bunch of frogmen."

Besides skiing with Marcos, Suyderhoud played a form of paddle ball with him and talked for hours, subjects ranging from politics to sports to energy crisis to his World War II experiences. "He was a captain and a member of the Philippines underground," said Suyderhoud. "He's an absolutely amazing person."

Although Suyderhoud was born in Indonesia, his parents moved to Holland right after his birth; so it was the first time for him to really see southeast Asia. "We had a helicopter ride and saw Mount Summit on the Bataan Peninsula, and Corregidor. We saw Indonesia, Hong Kong, Singapore, Formosa. From Hong Kong we could see Red China. I was surprised at the number of tourists in Hong Kong."

Suyderhoud said he met a lot of the Philippine people and enjoyed them. "They were very friendly, and it's a very beautiful country. It was one of the highlights of my life. . . a learning experience I'll never forget."

Before he left, Pres. Marcos gave Mike a photograph album with pictures taken during the two-week stay. That album is going to take a place in front of Mike's hundreds of water skiing trophies.

Mike's now at South Lake Tahoe for meetings which might produce a professional water skiing association. Then he'll leave in mid-January for some exhibitions and tournaments in Brazil. That's a great way to see the world — on a pair of water skis.

'Everybody Has A Chance'—Nicklaus

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — "Everybody has a chance," quipped Jack Nicklaus, only this time the world's greatest golfer was kidding on the square.

This was a few minutes after he checked in at Pebble Beach yesterday for a last-minute practice round before teeing off today in the opening of the $185,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, the first of 44 tournaments on the $8.5 million Pacific Golfers Association tour.

Nicklaus, who rewrote the golf record book in 1973, plays Cypress Point today in the first round of the Crosby, which carries a winner's prize of $37,000. He goes to Spyglass Hill for the second round and to Pebble Beach for the third.

Nicklaus, winner of the Crosby title in sudden death playoffs the last two years, said upon his arrival here he hasn't played a single round of golf since the last 18 holes of the Walt Disney World on Dec. 1.

"That's right, I haven't even played a hole fooling around," he said. "I'm coming out of the box fresh but a little rusty. Now everybody has a chance."

Nicklaus starts 1974 off following one of the finest years in his 12-year pro career. In 1973 he won seven titles in 18 tourna-

Rangers Likely To Tab Smalley

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Texas Rangers were named today to open the annual baseball grab bag and were expected to select 21-year-old shortstop Roy Smalley in the annual winter free agent draft here Jan. 9.

Smalley hails from a distinguished baseball family. His father, Roy Smalley, spent 11 years in the majors as a shortstop with the Chicago Cubs, Milwaukee and Philadelphia. The youngster is also the nephew of Montreal Expos manager Gene Mauch.

The draft will be conducted in two phases, regular and secondary selections, from the office of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. All 24 big league clubs make their selections on a conference call telephone hookup.

Texas, with the worst 1973 record in the majors, was successful in two previous first round picks when it drew pitchers Dave Clyde and Pete Broberg. Selecting in inverse order of won-lost percentages, the Rangers choose first again in the regular phase, while the Cincinnati Reds pick last.

Kansas City selects first in the secondary draft, where the order of choice was determined in a drawing. The last pick goes to the Houston Astros.

This will be the fifth time Smalley's name has been placed in the regular hopper. He was previously selected by the Boston Red Sox, but preferred to finish his college studies at Southern California.

Two other players expected to be taken in the opening round are Brad Van Pelt, who declined offers by St. Louis and Pittsburgh to play football with the New York Giants, and John Caneira, a 21-year-old pitcher from East Connecticut State College who is rated highly by San Diego. The Padres pick second at the draft.

Redwood Rally Subdues Pinole Valley, 60-52

Redwood High School rallied from a five-point halftime deficit last night to turn back Pinole Valley High, 60-52, in a non-league basketball game at Redwood.

Neil Hennessy led a second half surge by the Giants, scoring 14 of his game-high 24 points. Redwood's Darrell Elder produced 20 points and did a good job on the boards.

Pinole Valley shot 42 per cent from the floor to run up a 33-28 halftime lead but the Giants (8-6) tightened up their defense and the visitors could only manage 24 per cent in the second half. The Giants shot 41 per cent. Redwood junior varsity coach Bob Sargent took over the coaching duties for the night from Dick Hart who was ill.

Things were not as bright for Terra Linda and San Rafael high schools last night. Terra Linda was whipped by Vintage High of Napa, 103-76 and San Rafael lost to Vallejo, 49-45.

"They just flew by us," said Terra Linda coach Fred Arnold about Vintage. "They didn't miss."

The Trojans (4-6) dominated the boards but to little advantage, since the (appropriately nicknamed) Crushers rarely missed a shot. "Vintage is the best club we've played this year," Arnold said. "They bombed away from all over the place, from outside and inside."

The Trojans scored quite a few points themselves, with 13 players contributing. Doug Carlisle led Terra Linda with 14 points, while Brian Morey had 12.

San Rafael (4-6) failed to score in the third quarter until the two minute mark, to squander a two point halftime lead. The Bulldogs out-percentaged Vallejo from the floor, sinking 43 per cent of their shots, but the Apaches shot more, putting through 20 of their 57, for 35 per cent.

The Apaches outrebounded the hosts, 28-18, including an 11-2 offensive board advantage. Vallejo grabbed 14 points on follow-up shots.

Seals Open Floodgates In Beating Kings, 5-2

OAKLAND (AP) — When it rains, it pours, and the California Golden Seals opened the floodgates to defeat the Los Angeles Kings.

It was their first victory in 12 tries as the last-place Seals erupted for four goals in the third period to beat the Kings 5-2 last night.

Craig Patrick scored two goals for the Seals and missed a hat trick when Kings goalie Rogatin Vachon foiled a breakaway in the final period.

"I thought I could beat him," said Patrick. "I put my head down to look at the puck and when I looked up, Vachon was right on me."

Patrick scored his first goal in the opening period to tie the score 1-1 just 39 seconds after Whitey Widing had slammed in the Kings' first goal on a breakaway. Patrick also scored what proved to be the winning goal midway through the third period when he backhanded a shot between the goalie's legs.

"I'm feeling a lot better mentally," said Patrick, who had been held to just five goals going into the National Hockey League game. "The whole line is feeling better and it's going to get better."

Bob Berry gave Los Angeles a 2-1 lead in the only scoring of the second period, but California's Walt McKechnie knocked in a rebound by Reggie Leach to tie the game at 6:21 of the third period. Patrick followed with his second goal and Leach came up with an unassisted score when Sheldon Kannegiesser fell down and lost the puck in his own zone.

Stan Gilbertson completed the Seals' scoring with four minutes to play when his high shot bounced and slithered off Vachon's arm and into the goal.

Seals left wing Joey Johnston, pulled down from behind by Kings defenseman Bob Murdoch with 1:09 to play, missed a penalty shot when his 35-foot drive struck Vachon's left pad and bounced away.

Both teams resume action on Saturday, with the Seals traveling to St. Louis and the Kings hosting Toronto in Los Angeles.

Cedeno Confronts Manslaughter Trial

SANTO DOMINGO, D. R. (UPI) — Houston Astros outfielder Cesar Cedeno will go on trial Monday, Jan. 14, for "involuntary manslaughter" in the motel shooting of his woman companion, Judge Porfirio Natera of the 8th Correctional Court announced today.

Natera will try the case of the 22-year-old star, who could receive a sentence of up to three years imprisonment upon conviction. Even if he is convicted, the judge could absolve him under Dominican law.

Cedeno is accused in the Dec. 11 slaying of his companion, Altagracia de la Cruz, 19. Police said she was shot in the head when Cedeno's .38-caliber pistol went off as he tried to wrest it from her after she had picked it up to examine it.

His wife, Cora, of Houston, was in their winter home here at the time of the shooting.

Cedeno surrendered himself eight hours after the shooting and was jailed for 20 days, until Dec. 31, when a magistrate reduced the charge brought by the district attorney from "voluntary manslaughter," approximating the U.S. count of second degree murder, to the involuntary charge.

This reduction made Cedeno eligible for bail, and he went free pending trial upon posting a $10,000 bond. It was expected the trial will be concluded before spring practice commences. Cedeno may not leave the country until the trial is concluded.

He has been in his suburban home with Cora since being released and has not been seen in public.

Sponsors For Racing Team

PARIS (UPI) — Two commercial sponsors said today they will jointly promote a Formula One motor racing team in 1974 providing the oil situation allows racing activities to continue.

The cars will be McLarens driven by 1972 world champion Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil and 1967 world champion Denis Hulme of New Zealand.

The sponsors, Philip Morris Europe and Texaco, said: "As of this date, international events and government-imposed bans or restrictions have cast a shadow on the immediate future of motor racing.

BLANDA BELIEVES

Pro Football Is In Trouble

By ERIC PREWITT

PEBBLE BEACH (AP) — College football's game of the year excited George Blanda, the oldest of the National Football League's old pros.

But he's worried about the pro game he's observed since 1949 as a player.

"I watched Notre Dame and Alabama the other night in the Sugar Bowl.

"It was a great game, wide open with both teams throwing the ball. Our game (pro football) is becoming too stereotyped, it's getting dull," Blanda said in an interview here yesterday.

The 46-year-old Blanda had hoped to withdraw from the 33rd Bing Crosby National ProAm golf tournament, which opens here today, and stay with the Oakland Raiders instead on the road to the Super Bowl. But the defending NFL champion Miami Dolphins, throwing just six passes, defeated the Raiders 27-10 last Sunday in the American Football Conference title game.

"All Bob Griese had to do was call the plays," said Blanda, who added that he wasn't knocking the passing ability of the Miami quarterback.

Even Ohio State, whose coach, Woody Hayes, has thrived with his "three yards and a cloud of dust" offense, threw more passes than Miami over the weekend.

Ground-oriented, ball-control offense have been successful in pro football recently, Blanda conceded, "and all they are interested in is winning."

Blanda is interested in winning, too, but he'd like to see the pass make a comeback in the NFL.

However, he doesn't see much passing help coming immediately from the college ranks, where the wishbone offense is popular and quarterbacks run at least as frequently as they pass.

"I've seen this year's top college passer, David Jaynes of Kansas, and I don't think he'll be any higher than a third-string quarterback in the NFL," Blanda said. "They (colleges) just aren't producing many good passers now.

"But we've got a lot of good young passers in the league right now."

The Raiders's Ken Stabler, who has adapted to an offensive philosophy stressing safe, short passes, is one of the best, Blanda feels.

"He's a good quarterback now, and he's going to be a great one," Blanda said of his 28-year-old teammate who completed 62 per cent of his passes in the regular season but rarely threw more than 20 passes a game.

In 1964, when Blanda was with the Houston Oilers, he once threw 68 passes in a game against Buffalo. It's an NFL record which should stand for a long time.

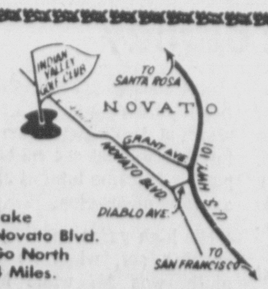

Blanda has played 24 pro seasons. In 1973, he didn't get to throw a pass but had one of his best years as a placekicker.

"I'd like to get in that 25th season," he said, looking ahead to next season. "The Raiders know my intentions. If they want me, I'll be back."

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Koli Vailea, 185, of the Island of Tonga, needed only 2:15 of the first round last night to stop previously undefeated Owen McAfee, 194, of Mesa, Ariz., in the featured bout of a double main event.

MaAfee was woozy after going down twice from rights to the head and the referee stopped the fight.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

A Shot Of Muscle

By LEE TREVINO

When a guy gets excited on a golf course, as I often do, he hits a ball farther. If I didn't know my own strength, I'd think I was Muscles Maldonado, the Mexican Maniac. Adrenalin does it.

A normal 9-iron travels 130 yards for me. But a little excitement -- a run of birdies will do it -- makes 'em fly 150 yards.

Any golfer is stronger when he's charged up. The idea is to recognize when your adrenalin is pumping. Then be sure to hit less club than you normally would. If you think it's an 8-iron to the green, you can reach it with a 9-iron.

Something most high handicappers don't realize is that there usually is more trouble behind a green than in front. What you can't see beyond yon flagstick can mangle a good score -- so better short than over, see?

When your corpuscles start throbbing, simmer down. Be more deliberate.

I don't mean to smoke and tell jokes, but when you have a shot at a career score, don't rush. You'll be excited enough without getting out of wind.

Remember: The better you play, the stronger you get. So throttle back, Muscles.

CAGE PROSPECTS

Novato Is Hoping To Be A Contender

By LEW CODDINGTON

(Sixth in a series on Marin County Athletic League basketball prospects.)

No high school basketball team in Marin has a better record than Novato High School's 8-2 mark, so the Hornets are hoping -- if not actually predicting -- that they will move into the top echelon of the Marin County Athletic League.

"We have beaten some good teams, but the league is always more competitive, because everybody is striving to win the championship," says coach Jim Caranica. "I will be disappointed, though, if we don't have a winning record in the league or if we aren't up there among the contenders in the last few weeks."

Last year's Hornet team led the league early in the season with a 4-1, but was saddled with seven straight road games and went on a losing streak to fade to 6-8, 11-14 overall. Graduated from that squad are front-liners such as Tom Conklin, Joe Powell and Joe Robinson.

If this year's team starts as fast, it will have proven something, since its first two opponents are likely contenders Redwood and Drake.

"We are a lot stronger this year in rebounding and outside shooting," Caranica says. "We play better as a team, and the personalities we have on the court are working better together."

The Hornets have been outrebounded only once this year, thanks mainly to two exceptional leapers -- 6-foot-5 center Willie Barnes (averaging 15 caroms a game) and 6-2 forward Curtis Saine (averaging 10). Both are seniors who started last year. Barnes is scoring 16.8 points a game and Saine 12.3.

"I wouldn't change Willie Barnes for any player in the league," says the coach. "He can play some forward for us too this year, and he'll hurt some people with the 10- or 15-foot jumper."

Mike Moroski, a 6-2 junior up from the junior varsity, is the other forward, and Dave Brazell, a 5-7 senior, plays one guard. Their outside shooting is counted on to help dissolve the zone defenses which choked the Hornets last year. Brazell also is valued by Caranica as one of the quickest players in the league.

Battling for the other guard spot have been 5-8 George Diruscio, 5-10 Tom Bridges, 6-0 Tim Jordan, 6-2 Tom Fisher and 6-3 John Nissen. "Which one we use depends on who we're playing and what the matchups are," said Caranica.

Another valuable substitute is 6-6 Sutart Rowberry, the tallest player on the team. He or Saine can go to the post position when it's advantageous to move Barnes outside.

"We are working on our offensive execution, helping one another out on defense, and minimizing turnovers," says Caranica.

"We have to prove to ourselves that we can win in this league," he continued. "We have the personnel. Don't count this team out."

Plenty Of Leaf Heroics In NHL Play

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

There were heroes aplenty last night for the Toronto Maple Leafs.

First, there was forward Tim Ecclestone who scored two goals to help beat his former Detroit Red Wing teammates 4-3; then there was defenseman Bob Neely who scored a goal for the third straight game, two of which the Leafs have won while tying the other; fans at Maple Leaf Gardens also cheered for Inge Hammarstrom whose goal with just over five minutes left to play turned out to be the winner.

But as far as Toronto General Manager Jim Gregory was concerned, "if you really want to know, I think the best player on the ice was goalie Doug Favell." Favell was credited with 40 saves.

The Wings had built a 3-0 lead on first period goals by Henry Boucha and Bill Collins and a second period goal by Guy Charron before Ecclestone started the Leafs' comeback. The win moved Toronto into a tie for third place with the New York Rangers in the National Hockey League's East Division.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Chicago whipped the New York Islanders 5-1, St. Louis stunned Montreal 8-4, Minnesota clobbered Pittsburgh 8-4 and California beat Los Angeles 5-2.

Jim Pappin scored a pair of goals while Dick Redmond added three assists in Chicago's win over the Islanders.

St. Louis moved into third place in the West, seven points behind Chicago, as Garry Unger and Wayne Merrick each scored twice for the Blues who bombed Montreal goalies Bunny Larocque and Wayne Thomas with four goals apiece.

Jude Drouin, Lester Harvey and Gary Bergman fired goals within a 2:19 span of the second period to lead Minnesota past Pittsburgh as the North Stars posted their sixth straight win at home and increased the Penguins' winless streak to seven games.

ments, including the Crosby at the start, the PGA in the middle and the Disney at the end. In all, he banked $308,062 in 1973 to become the first player ever to win more than $300,000 in consecutive years and go over the $2 million mark for his career.

Only Lee Trevino and Miller Barber from 1973's top 10 on the money list are missing from the Crosby field, which includes 162 pros and 162 amateurs. Also missing is Arnold Palmer, who has played in every single Crosby since 1962.

Bruce Crampton, who finished second to Nicklaus on last year's money list with $271,234, and No. 3 Tom Weiskopf ($243,155) are here as well as Lanny Wadkins, Hale Irwin, Billy Casper, U.S. Open champ Johnny Miller and John Schlee from the top 10. Also here for the first time since 1962 is Gary Player, the little South African who had physical problems throughout 1973 and didn't make the top 100.

Petaluma Hosts Analy Tomorrow In Last Tuneup

Hoping to start 1974 better than it ended 1973, Petaluma High School will host Analy of Sebastopol tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock in a final tuneup for the North Bay League basketball season.

After capturing their first four games this season in convincing fashion, the Trojans just as convincingly lost their next five out of six; they need a win over Analy to carry a winning record into the NBL season.

In other high school court action tomorrow night, Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park travels to Terra Linda for an 8 p.m. non-league contest, St. Vincent of Petaluma starts its North Central League II season with a 7 p.m. game at Kelseyville and Tomales hosts Upper Lake at 7 p.m. in its NCL II opener.

Petaluma's main problem this season has been size, or lack of it; all of the Trojans' losses have come against teams which have had one or two good big men. Unfortunately, Analy has three of them: 6-foot-8 Don Petrie, 6-6 Bob Montgomery and 6-4 Jay Bartholomew.

McCune Grabs Lead In Bowling Tourney

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI) -- Don McCune, the Munster, Ind., pro who won six titles and a leading $69,000 one year ago, was off and running yesterday as play started in the $100,000 Midas Open Bowling Tournament.

The tourney is the first event on the 1974 tour of the Professional Bowlers Association.

McCune, who has eight PBA titles, started out with a 1381 effort at Mel's Bowl then registered 1390 in his second block to put his 12-game total at 2771, an average of 230-plus.

His high game opening in the opening set, when he placed ninth, was 267 while his top lines in the second session were 256 and 248.

As the 160 man lineup first moved into today's concluding six-game elimination block, McCune's lead over runnerup Dick Ritger, Hartford Wisc., was eight pins. Ritger, who shot a 299 earlier in the day, had a 1450 series for openers, then slipped to 1313.

Jimmy McHugh, Lynbrook, N. Y., who shot a perfect game to opener the event, was 23rd after the first round with 1331 sticks but dropped to 31st place when he turned in only 1188 in the second go round.

PREP NOTES

Winning Record For Marin '5s'

By LEW CODDINGTON

Alhtough Marin teams have been losing games against tough East Bay opposition, they have a winning record against all opponents and have been especially destructive against their neighbors up north.

The log of non-league games through last weekend shows Marin 18-8 against the North Bay, 6-11 against the East Bay, 9-14 against San Francisco, 5-1 against the Peninsula and 2-1 against everybody else, for a total of 40-35.

Most of the games against the northern schools are played by Novato and San Marin (a combined 7-4) and most of the contests against San Francisco are played by Redwood and Tamalpais (a combined 4-9).

The strength of the East Bay opponents can be seen by comparing certain records. Against the northerners, for example, Drake, Terra Linda and Marin Catholic are a combined 8-3. Against the East Bay, the same three teams are 2-8.

Certain opponents have been particularly unfriendly. Oakland Tech has clubbed Drake and San Rafael. Washington of San Francisco has beaten San Rafael and Redwood. Lowell has topped Marin Catholic and Redwood.

Marin's favorite foe has been neighborly Petaluma, a victim of San Rafael, San Marin and Novato.

Anbody who enjoys drawing conclusions from comparative scores can have a field day. San Francisco's Balboa, for example, has beaten the three Marin teams with the best records -- Drake, Redwood, and Novato -- but lost to the team with the worst record, Tamalpais. (Drake also beat Bal in an earlier game.)

In another case, Drake and Redwood beat Lincoln of San Francisco, but San Rafael and Tamalpais could not.

Comparative scores of individual games mean little, but the overall trend based on 75 games played by eight teams shows that Marin has been successful more often than not.

CONGRATULATIONS -- A tip of the hat to Joe Burke, freshman basketball coach at Marin Catholic High, who guided the team to the championship of its own tournament for the first time in history.

And the "dark lining in a silver cloud" award goes to Russ Williams, who coached the Tamalpais frosh in the tourney. He's happy to be on the Tam faculty, but the job took him away from the Wildcat frosh, whom he coached last year.

The "hard worker of the week award" goes to Dave Gonsalves, who ran the frosh tourney and coached the Wildcat varsity in the Bishop O'Dowd affair the same three days last week. When the 'Cats didn't have to play Friday because of Pinole Valley High's forced withdrawal, his sigh of relief was audible from Greenbrae to Oakland.

Basketball Outlook Is Bleak

The basketball gods weren't very kind to St. Vincent of Petaluma and Tomales High Schools in last year's North Central League II race, but in 1974 they could become downright nasty.

St. Vincent recorded a 6-3 league mark last year to tie Kelseyville for second place behind Point Arena, but Mustang fans might look back on 1973 with nostalgia as this year's team will be hard pressed to match that record.

The Mustangs have just four returning players, none of whom was more than a spot starter, and will have to base their hopes of dethroning favored Point Arena on a group of untested juniors and sophomores.

Besides inexperience, the main problem confronting St. Vincent will be a lack of height. Rich Capella is the tallest player on the squad at 6-foot-5, but after him, there's a sharp drop downward to 6-1 Dan Tocchini.

"We're not very big, and that's going to be the key for us," commented coach Ed Major. "We'll have to play good defense and keep the ball away from the basket."

Despite nine pre-league games in which the Mustangs compiled a 5-4 mark, Major has not set a starting lineup except from Tom Lounibos at one guard and Mark Tippett at either center or forward. "We've had some discipline problems," he explained.

Tomales does not have a discipline problem, but otherwise is in much the same shape as St. Vincent: inexperienced and small.

The Braves lost all five starters off last year's squad that was 4-5 in NCL II play, and is rebuilding with juniors and sophomores. The tallest player on the team is 6-2 John Riley, a sophomore.

Despite this, and the team's 1-8 mark this season, coach Jim Clahan is optimistic. "Potentially we have a good club," he said. "I don't think we're going to set the league on fire, but if we jell at all we'll give teams problems."

Pistons' NBA Win Is Keyed By Lanier

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Bob Lanier didn't exactly stuff Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in his back pocket last night--even Lanier's pocket isn't big enough to hold someone 7-foot-2 -- but the big-chested, soft-shooting Detroit center did a pretty good job of nullifying Abdul-Jabbar's presence.

Lanier, who came out of St. Bonaventure several years ago with a gimpy knee and a lot of unrefined talent, has been proving himself one of the top centers in the league this year, averaging 23 points, 14 rebounds and 3.4 blocked shots per game.

Last night, Lanier went against the best in Abdul-Jabbar and for the second time in four nights, the best got beat.

Lanier, who had helped Detroit beat Milwaukee Sunday night, gunned for 26 points in the second half, 34 overall, and had 15 rebounds, five blocked shots and six assists in leading the Pistons past their Midwest Division rivals, the Bucks, 106-92.

After hitting only two of his first nine shots, Lanier made 14 of his next 19 attempts. Moreover the 6-foot 11 center held Jabbar, the seventh-leading scorer in the league with a 25.2 average, to only 14 points.

The victory pulled Detroit to within six games of division-leading Milwaukee. Chicago is in second, two games back of the Bucks, who have the second best record in the NBA at 30-9. Boston, which saw its seven-game winning streak broken by Kansas City-Omaha 109-97, still has the best record at 29-6.

In other NBA action, New York whipped Capital 92-81, Phoenix edged Atlanta 116-113, Houston nipped Philadelphia 101-99 and Buffalo beat Seattle 115-111.

Foreman Named Rookie Of Year

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK -- Each January, National Football League teams sit down to divide the best of college football's graduating senior class. The cream this season went to the Minnesota Vikings, who came up with power runner Chuck Foreman, and the Chicago Bears, who found a fierce defensive end in Wally Chambers.

Foreman was chosen the NFL's Offensive Rookie of the Year and Chambers took freshman defensive honors today in a poll conducted by Associated Press.

Foreman recived 24 of a possible 78 votes. Second place belonged to Philadelphia tight end Charley Young, who attracted 16 votes. Wide receiver Isaac Curtis of Cincinnati was third with 15 votes. Chambers had 36 votes in the defensive balloting, far outdistancing a pair of defensive backs, Dick Jauron of Detroit and Eddie MacMillan of Los Angeles, who each had eight.

Oriental Defensive Arts Are Undergoing Boom In America

By FREDERIC HUNTER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

BOSTON — Unlike many women enthusiasts, Eileen Carson did not start studying the Orient's martial arts in order to defend herself.

"I was just fascinated," she says, "by the fact that a smaller person could throw a larger one —particularly when I found that the holds really work."

If Miss Carson had no visions of outwitting would-be attackers, plenty of martial arts students do. "I would like to learn karate and judo," wrote an interested 98-pound weakling, "because kids are always trying to beat up on me."

Whatever the reasons — and they are many — the martial arts are the biggest craze to hit America in a long, long time. The craze has exploded on television and movie screens, in the pages of national magazines, on university campuses, in gyms and cultural centers.

It has all the resonances any fadist could demand: overtones of East-meets-West, undertones of tranquility through violence.

And it has a broad base of disciples. Twice a week a group of United States senators and congressmen practice martial arts in Washington. Intellectuals use them for "active meditation." Students of their theory include PhD's and businessmen, health cultists, physical-fitness buffs, and women hoping to cope with city life.

All in all, claims one estimate, some 10 million Americans are scrutinizing the combat secrets of the once inscrutable East.

"Martial arts," is an umbrella term covering various stylized attack-and-defend techniques developed in the Orient.

They include jujitsu and its adaption, Judo; karate (first developed on Okinawa), Korea's tae kwon do (which is what the senators practice), kung fu (referring to more than 300 styles of Chinese boxing), and aikido, a self-defense system, developed in Japan, which uses leverage to convert an opponent's movements to the defender's advantage.

It seems probable that servicemen returning from Asia — and they have been doing this now for 30 years — gave the martial arts craze its original impetus. But parallel developments have carried the fad along. They include growing interest in the Far East and Oriental philosophies and the political emergence of China.

But these factors alone do not account for the martial arts' mass popularity. The media have played their role, too.

The roamings of James Bond first acquainted mass audiences with Oriental heavies so proficient in combat techniques that only an 007 could escape their skills. With grudging admiration a lot of the audience used to whisper, "Play it again, samurai."

Then, almost by accident, a television series called "Kung Fu" appeared and caught on. Originally introduced as a midseason replacement, the series followed the adventures of a Eurasian martial artist righting wrongs in the Old West.

At the same time it tossed in aphorisms no Westerner would utter ("The truth is often hidden like a shadow in the darkness"). It demonstrated martial arts with at least one fight per segment and showed flashbacks to the hero's youth at a Chinese temple.

One entertainment industry spokesman calls the series "an atrocity." If this is true, the general public enjoys being kung-fooled. A Boston karate instructor, Bob Campbell, considers the show "an honest attempt to show what martial arts and Oriental philosophy are all about."

Meanwhile, a wave of low-budget, Hong Kong-made martial arts films has flooded theaters and drive-ins across the country. Among the cognoscenti, titles "Fists of Fury," "Five Fingers of Death," "Seven Blows of the Dragon," and "Lady Kung Fu" readily signal martial-arts fare.

Oriental fighting techniques are also surfacing in other fast-action films. For example, the recent black exploitation item "Cleopatra Jones" featured flashy karate fight routines staged by an expert. They, and the star's four-week crash course in martial arts, lent some credibility to her virtually single-handed extermination of a dope ring.

One film critic contends that kung fu films have special appeal to minority audiences. He believes that these audiences thrill at the sight of non-WASPs kicking, clawing, and chopping villains.

Whether this view is valid or not, the films are certainly filling distributors' coffers. "At least they aren't sex films," commented Nat Segaloff, spokesman for Boston's Sack Theaters. "The take on them allows us to show other, more artistic films."

The craze has its tonier aspects, too. "The Way abides in non-action," states a genuine aphorism, "yet nothing is left undone." Mystical concepts of this order have a real fascination for some intellectuals.

Aikido, disciple George B. Leonard wrote in Saturday Review, "balances the extremes. It offers contemplation and transcendence."

Miss Carson, an aikido student herself, reacts skeptically to this sort of thing.

Unfortunately, such esoteric concepts have little impact in the streets, but some dangerous side effects have emerged. As a result of the craze, new weapons have appeared in some American cities.

One example is a weapon comprising two foot-long sticks linked by leather, nylon, or chain. When whirled, the flying sticks can seriously injure an opponent. The weapon also can be used for strangling.

Detroit Working On Plastic Auto Parts

By WILLIAM J. HAMPTON
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

DETROIT — When will automakers come up with an answer to parking-lot dents and rusted fenders?

If all goes well, in about four years.

By then, say industry spokesmen, Detroit should be ready to build cars with fenders or even entire bodies of rubbery plastic that pops back into shape if struck.

Plastic is getting plenty of attention since automakers launched an all-out diet program for heavy cars. Extra weight means less fuel economy, and rising fuel costs are making the problem more important each day.

General Motors already has cars like the Chevrolet Laguna and Pontiac Grand Am with soft plastic noses. And the Oldsmobile 4-4-2 has an all-plastic hood.

One of the few plastic-bodied cars on the market today is the Corvette. But as owners know, the car's fiberglass body would rather crack than bend. Rusted fenders are no problem, but cracked fiberglass isn't any cheaper to repair than crumpled steel.

What Detroit engineers have in mind for future plastic cars is urethane, the plastic already being molded into auto interiors and plastic-coated bumpers. GM calls the material "soft face" plastic and predicts cars with "friendly fenders" of the stuff.

But if Detroit can make plastic bumpers now, why not rubbery plastic bodies? Why can't a carmaker simply switch from steel to plastic?

One problem is cost. For body-sized parts, plastic costs more than steel. And the plastics industry has yet to develop ways of keeping up with assembly-line production speeds for body panels.

Almost all plastic in cars now, about 160 pounds in a typical 1974 model, is molded. Plastic pellets are melted into a peanut butter-like goo, then shoved into a mold.

Tremendous pressure is needed to keep the halves of a mold together during the injection. And the bigger the part being made, the more pressure is needed.

Frank Daley, director of manufacturing development at GM, estimates it would take presses exerting 12,000 tons to form fender-sized "soft face" plastic this way. But the world's biggest injection molding machine can muster only 5,000 tons of pressure.

Even if a super machine was built, it would still take several seconds at best to make a part. That is too slow for Detroit, which is used to stamping out metal body parts in an instant with punch presses.

One solution is to squirt two watery chemicals into a mold and let them turn into plastic inside. This method is called liquid reaction molding, and it requires much less pressure.

The process is fast but still experimental. Until the bugs are worked out, carmakers will take the cautious road and stick with metal.

And even when equipment for soft plastic car bodies is ready, autos must be redesigned for the new material. This is because flexible plastic needs more support than stiff steel.

For that reason, a simple swap of plastic for steel in one of today's cars would not work well. Some parts might sag of their own weight, while others would prove too floppy without added support.

Clouding the future for plastic is the same problem that made Detroit look to plastic as a weight-saver in the first place: petroleum shortages. Crude oil is used for plastic as well as for gasoline.

Plastic, however, can be made from other materials such as corn stalks and wheat stubble, though the economics are not clear. Adds GM's Frank Daley, "If we didn't think there would be a supply to make plastic five years from now, we sure wouldn't be looking at it now.

Nevertheless, GM and the other major auto firms are keeping their options open. The industry is busy wooing aluminum suppliers with visions of all-aluminum cars.

Though aluminum has some fabrication and cost problems of its own, Ford and GM spokesmen recently have touted the abundant metal as "one of the most promising materials available" to automakers.

Among the problems facing an aluminum car are the need for better alloys, proven ways to recycle junked parts, and lower cost.

But at one-third the weight that could improve fuel economy.

Plastic cars may offer similar savings, but the data is not clear. And, recycling problems with plastic remain.

"We're in no position to say what will replace what at this point," comments Daley. "We need to know more than we do now."

Pilot's License Is Surrendered

SAN DIEGO (UPI) - A student pilot who flew over the city Dec. 18 and threatened to crash his plane into the ocean has voluntarily surrendered his license, the Federal Aviation Administration said today.

Michael Grill, 29, flew over the city for several hours before his wife was able to convince him by radio not to crash.

He was taken to the Community Mental Health Center for observation and was released with no charges being filed.

An FAA spokesman said Grill surrendered his student pilot's license and medical certificate and will have to demonstrate that he meets all requirements to regain them.

Standard Plans To Spend $1.6 Billion

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Standard Oil Co. of California said today it planned expenditures of $1.6 billion this year for capital improvements and exploration.

This will represent a 40 per cent increase over the expenditures of $1.2 billion last year, the company said.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Knock, Knock: Police Here!

Knock, Knock.

California's law requires police to knock before they enter your home.

Our Penal Code (844 and 1931) says police must identify themselves, demand admittance, and explain their purpose. Then they may enter, make an arrest, and serve a warrant. If necessary, they may break down a door.

This rule protects the homeowner's right to privacy and discourages violence.

If officers don't comply with this rule before entering, the arrest or seizure of evidence is illegal.

May a policeman rap lightly, whisper his presence? No— he's got to speak loud enough to be heard.

There are some exceptions. Where the police are in "hot pursuit" of a fleeing criminal, they have a right to continue the chase. Or when there is danger or emergency, say, to give aid, which requires instant entry. Another when there is danger that evidence will be destroyed — for example, the sound of flushing toilets where someone may be dropping stolen goods or drugs into the drain.

May the police use "trick, ruse, or disguises" to gain entry? No — the homeowner is entitled to an official warning. In one case the police got the hotel manager to call up telling the roomer that there was to be room service. The police entered under that disguise and seized evidence. The court held this illegal.

But in another case, after the policeman's identity was learned, the defendant slammed the door attempting to escape. The police were then justified in entering and grabbing the defendant.

In another case the wife answered the door and immediately yelled, "It's the police!" Police heard the sound of a shot, and running footsteps inside. They rushed in. The court said their immediate entry was justified.

Let's say the police knock and announce who they are. No answer inside. May they then break in to serve their warrant? Only if they have some reasonable belief that the person is inside but intentionally refused to open up.

REFUSES TRICK

West opened the king of clubs. South refused the first trick as a matter of principle but won the second club with the ace.

Declarer then ran the five diamonds, discarding a club from his hand. West saw that South would win six tricks in clubs and diamonds combined and that he would need three tricks in spades and hearts. Obviously, South would have to try a finesse in one suit or the other.

When the fourth diamond was led, West calmly discarded the six of spades, blanking his king. On the fifth diamond, West discarded the three of hearts.

FINESSE LOSES

South then decided to try the heart finesse. This lost, and West took the rest of the clubs, defeating the contract.

West couldn't beat the contract by discarding a club, since then declarer could afford to give up a heart and three clubs. West could save his clubs only by blanking one of the kings, and this he did with great aplomb.

COLD CONTRACT

Nobody saw that South had "blown" a cold contract. South should win only three diamonds — with the ace, king and jack. Then he should lead a club, allowing West to take his tricks. After finishing with the West would have to lead a spade or a heart, and either lead would give South a free finesse. Then, and only then, South could go on with the fourth and fifth diamonds.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - A 10
♥ - A 10 6
♦ - J 7 5 2
♣ - A 9 8 5
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club.

There may be some excuse for passing three aces if the rest of the hand consists of microscopic cards. (Even then, they'd have to tie me hand and foot to make me pass!) There is no excuse at all when the hand is bolstered up by a jack and some tens.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

A Diversified Fund Package

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We hold 1,000 shares of Chemical and Delaware funds. We are considering Reserve Fund but would like your comments on it andour other holdings. We will retire in three years. — H.J.

A. The Reserve Fund, which commenced operation early in 1973, is a no-load with a $1,000 minimum investment requirement. The fund's portfolio is comprised of short-term (one year or less) instruments such as banker acceptances, governments, agencies and certificates of deposits. Interest rates in these areas are extremely sensitive to money market conditions and wide fluctuations are the norm. Currently these rates are close to record levels hovering above 9 per cent while just over a year ago around 5 per cent was the going rate. Should you decide on this particular fund you will be relatively sure of capital preservation and an interest return which will follow the going rate for short-term investments.

Chemical Fund has an excellent record of growth. NAV rose 62 per cent over the five years ended 1972. The income dividend is a modest 1 per cent currently. While Delaware has not moved up as spectacularly (20 per cent in the 1968-1972 period), the yield from income distributions is a satisfactory 3 per cent. The three funds are a diversified mutual fund package.

Q. I am a widow, working and in my early fifties. My money is all in savings accounts earning 5¼ per cent interest. In order to reduce my income tax, would it be wiser if I bought U.S. Savings Series E bonds? — J.G.

A. The postponement of income tax liability on savings bond interest until redemption would certainly help reduce your current tax burden. Thus, if current income is not a requirement I would favor your purchasing E bonds. However, keep in mind there is a limit of $5,000, issue price, on purchases in a calendar year. With the recent boost in E-bond interest to 6 per cent you will reap the additional advantage of greater return from such a move.

As of the end of Nov., 1973, total E, H and Freedom Share holdings had reached a record high of $60.6 billion.

Construction Off In Marin County

Construction activity in Marin County during November of 1973 dropped by more than 48 per cent from November of 1972, according to the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

The chamber of commerce report shows that building permits were issued for $5,021,557 worth of construction in Marin during November, compared with $9,759,847 worth of construction one year earlier.

Despite a drop in November, the cumulative total for the year 1973 was running well ahead of 1972. During the first 11 months of 1973, building permits were issued for $120,069,766 worth of construction, as compared with $91,472,780 for the first 11 months of 1972.

Good News, Margin Cut Boosts Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks put on a sparkling performance today at the New York Stock Exchange, inspired by a sharp lowering in the Federal Reserve's stock margin requirements and by a report the Israelis had agreed to a unilateral withdrawal from the Suez Canal.

Analysts had predicted a rally after the move by the Federal Reserve late yesterday lowering the credit requirements for holding stocks on margin by 15 points to 50 per cent. Investors got another lift from a report in the Israeli newspaper Ma'Ariv that the Israelis had agreed to withdraw unilaterally from the Suez, in an effort to break the deadlock at the middle East peace talks.

In another helpful news item, Chase Manhattan Bank of New York lowered its prime lending rate, the interest charged to best business customers, by a quarter point to 9 ¾ per cent.

Responding to the reported breakthrough in the Middle East talks were international oils. Exxon rose 2, Mobil 2 ¼, Texaco and California Standard 1 ⅛ each.

In the rallying blue chip group, Dupont, Monsanto and Bethlehem Steel advanced at least a point apiece.

Gulf Oil, the volume leader, rose ⅜ to 24 ⅞ on 138,800 shares.

Stocks also rallied powerfully on the American Exchange. Wright-Hargreaves Mines topped the actives, up ⅛ to 2 ¾ on 73,000 shares.

Big Board gold mining stocks fell in profit taking, despite sharply higher gold prices overseas. ASA Ltd. and Dome Mines fell 2 ½ apiece.

Glamors moved irregularly. Honeywell advanced 3 ½, National Semiconductor 3, Corning Glass 1 ¾, and Texas Instruments a point. Burroughs and Avon Products declined a point each.

Motors moved irregularly, but other transportation issues joined the rally. Union Pacific gained 3, Chessie System a point, and Flying Tiger 1 ⅛.

Crown Zellerbach, ahead a point, paced the paper group.

AMC Cuts Back On Big Models

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors Corp., which has been able to buck the drop in new car sales, is slicing production of its big cars to make sure enough parts are available to build the hot selling small models.

In a statement issued yesterday, AMC joined its competitors in cutting back on the slow-moving big cars. Some 200 workers at plants in Kenosha and Milwaukee, Wis., will be laid off to accomplish the cutback, but will be called back when small car production is increased, a spokesman said.

In a recent interview, AMC Chairman Roy D. Chapin Jr. said the only thing holding AMC back from building more cars was the problem of getting parts from its suppliers, especially critical now because of the fuel crisis.

"If we could build one more automobile, we'd build it," said Chapin. "Presently, we're constrained entirely by the capacity of our suppliers."

Since the "big four" automakers began reducing production in the face of falling sales caused by the fuel crisis, more than 175,000 auto workers—one-third of all U.S. auto workers—have been laid off for varying times. In that figure are more than 45,000 laid off permanently as a result of the slowdown in the economy.

Despite the sharp downturn in big car sales, the U.S. automakers yesterday reported a record 9,660,857 cars were built in 1973, topping the 8,791,694 in 1972 and just above the previous record of 9,329,104 cars built in this country in 1965. Altogether, a record 10,884,870 cars were built in U.S. and Canadian auto plants in 1973, compared with 9,959,551 the previous year.

AMC said it would reduce its production of the Ambassador and Matador models by 60 units a day, beginning next Monday, to ensure that supplies are available to build the compact Hornet and subcompact Gremlin.

$1,000 Donated To Club Fund

The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Contractors Association of Marin, Sonoma and Mendocino has donated $1,000 for the proposed clubhouse for the Central Marin Boys Club, according to Joseph Gereghty, club coordinator.

The fund from the association, which also was a contributor to the Novato Boys Club, will go toward establishing a clubhouse in Central Marin, Gereghty said.

The association represents about 40 firms in the three counties.

"There seems to be a new breed of hunter in the woods this year."

Christmas Tree Pickup Scheduled For Saturday

A Christmas tree pickup will be conducted in Central Marin Saturday by the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Contractors Association of Marin, Sonoma and Mendocino counties.

Trees will be picked up at five locations starting at 9 a.m. with local firms donating trucks and manpower as a community cleanup project, according to Walter Louis of San Rafael, association chairman.

Residents can deposit their trees at the Marin Civic Center parking lot, the San Rafael City Hall parking lot, a Christmas tree lot at Center Street and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, the Christmas tree lot at the Corte Madera shopping center or at the Christmas tree lot at Highway 101 in Greenbrae, Louis reported.

Association volunteers, assisted by boys from the Central Marin Boys Club, will load the trucks, which will haul the tree to dumps.

Participating firms will be Walter Louis Plumbing and Heating of San Rafael, Dill and Sederberg of Mill Valley, Collins-Marlod Supply Co. of San Rafael, Ernest Ongaro and Sons Inc. of San Anselmo, Denny's House of Plumbing, Corte Madera, and Ferrer Plumbing, Inc., of San Rafael.

Skeleton Of Marinite Is Discovered

I-J Special Report

LAFAYETTE — The skeleton of a 51-year-old Ignacio woman, who disappeared in the hills of Contra Costa County Oct. 6, has been found in a wooded area here by a man inspecting a prospective building site.

She was identified by her name on the label of a pill bottle nearby. But, according to Sgt. Clifford Clark of the Contra Costa County coroner's office, dental X-rays of the missing woman, Patricia A. Garner of 230 Calle De La Mesa, will be compared with those from the remains found New Year's Day for confirmation.

Mrs. Garner left the home of her brother-in-law, Clyde E. Ireland of Moraga, last fall after saying that she planned to take a long walk. She had been despondent over the death of her husband Oct. 1 and the death of her son a month earlier. According to the coroner's office, she had tried suicide previously.

Sheriff's deputies searched for her at the time but found nothing.

Full Disclosure Due On Nixon California Income Tax Status

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A full public disclosure of President Nixon's California income tax status will be made, but not until state tax officials privately review all the facts, a Nixon attorney said yesterday.

"We plan to make a disclosure of all facts pertinent to any tax questions that may arise in California," said attorney Dean S. Butler of Los Angeles.

However, Butler said, "we first want to develop all the facts that may bear on any of the questions and see to it that they are presented properly to the state Franchise Tax Board."

The White House divulged last month that Nixon had paid no state income taxes while he was President. State tax officials have refused to openly discuss Nixon's tax status because the President has not issued a "waiver of confidentiality."

Butler said the waiver would be granted, but not until members of the Franchise Tax Board have been supplied with all information needed for their current investigation of Nixon's tax liability.

"A decision has not been reached on when the waiver will be delivered," he said. "I'm not entirely sure what kind of information might be of interest to the board members or that the president may feel is important to present to them."

The morning glory is the flower of the month September.
